To Start Operations Early This Week

Lima's 18 months program of street and water main improvements carrying an expenditure over one million dollars and the sewer extension program costing approximately three quarters of a million dollars will be completed this fall, according to an announcement made Saturday by City Manager C. A. Bingham.

New pavements for the 18 months period carry a total expenditure of $940,000 his figures show.

Water main extension, covering 25 miles for 18 months, carry a total expenditure of $300,000 according to Bingham's figures.

Sewer work which it is expected will be completed during the fall carry an expenditure of $306,157 according to figures obtainable from the office of the city auditor.

15 STREETS READY

Contractor George Walther, according to Bingham, has 15 of the street paving jobs and every one of his streets, with a single exception is ready for asphalt. Curb and basins are all in place, Bingham said. Walther had the greatest number of streets of anyone to get ready for asphalt.

P. A. Frohase has six streets to get in shape for asphalt, Bingham said. The grading has been done on all streets and the curbs and gutters have been set on Market-st. Frohase will have his streets ready for asphalt in a short time, according to Bingham.

Churchill & Eneck had three jobs,
W. North-st. being finished while Robbav. will be ready Thursday and Haller-st. ready Friday, according to the city manager's estimates.

Summers & Hardin will be thru with Grand-av. by Tuesday and this will complete their year's work, according to Bingham.

CONDITION GOOD

"It will thus be seen," said the city manager, "that the paving contractors are getting thru their work in due shape this year and they will all be ready for the Johnson Construction Co., which will soon begin asphalt the streets."

Lima made asphalt will be used on all these jobs by the Johnson Construction Co. of Findlay, which has the asphalt contract. President William J. Lang and General Manager McKendry of the Findlay company were in Lima last week and purchased an improved Merriam asphalt plant, made by the Lang Iron & Machine Co. of this city, according to A. J. Filler, sales manager of that concern. He said that the Johnson company would use the new Lima made plant for making the asphalt to be used on all the streets this fall.

Portions of the Johnson Construction Co. equipment at Findlay is being moved to Lima and will be set up near Kirby and Mainville-sts.
Tuesday morning. They will then begin asphalt the streets in the $244,000 paving program.

Boy Shoots Sister When Cap Is Lost

Youth Turns Quiet Play Into Tragedy at Franklin, Ohio

FRANKLIN, Ohio — (Associated Press)—Angered because he thought his sister Viola, 16, had hidden his cap while at play, James Fluhardy, 10, shot and wounded her probably fatally with a shotgun here Saturday.

The children had been playing quietly. When the boy sought his cap and was unable to find it he accused his sister of having hidden it.
This she denied and the boy went into the house, obtained a shotgun and, without warning, fired at his sister.

The girl was rushed to a hospital at Dayton.

Cincinnati Man Made Rail Chief

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. — (Assoc-

Chemist Not Shot As Result Of Row

NEW YORK — (Associated Press)
—The shooting of Milton A. Mass, manufacturing chemist, at the Sound Beach, Conn., home of Mrs. Ida M.
Leslie, wealthy widow, was not the result of a quarrel, officials investigating the crime declared Saturday.
Prosecutor Walsh and Police Captain Flanagan of Greenwich, Conn., both said nothing had been found to upset the theory of Mass and Mrs.
Leslie that the three assailants were bent upon robbery.

Mass' improvement from the bullet wound in his shoulder continued and total recovery was regarded as certain by physicians.

Probe Of Bank's Affairs Is Begun

KENTLAND, Ind. — (Associated Press)—Investigation of the affairs of the Discount and Deposit Bank of this city, of which Governor Warren T. McCray was president until recently, was begun Saturday by Thomas Barr, deputy bank examiner, who came here when informed that directors of the institution had voted to close its doors. Judge William Dar-roch, who succeeded Governor McCray as president, and other officials of the institution indicated that a reorganization would be attempted.

A statement issued by the bank attributed its difficulties to "the continuous and incessant notoriety from the press" resulting in a rejection of the bank's funds and making it "difficult to acquire additional cash."

Part of the bank's assets, including the building, are being sold to pay the debts of the institution.

According to the statement, the bank's affairs are being handled by a receiver appointed by the federal court at Indianapolis.

The bank was organized in 1914 and had a capital of $100,000. It had a deposit of $1,000,000 at the time of its failure.

The bank's failure is the first of its kind in the history of the state of Indiana.

ONION LAND THREATENED BY BOG FIRE

All Night Battle Waged Against Onrush of Destroyer

BARRIERS PLACED

Period of Greatest Danger Is Believed to Have Been Passed

Two hundred Hardin-co.
farmers were battling Sunday morning after an all night fight to check a slow moving peat bog fire of alarming proportions which endangers the valuable onion region near Dola on the Lincoln Highway between Ada and Dunkirk in Hog Creek Bog.

Thousands of acres of rich loam land and valuable farm buildings in the heart of the state's richest onion belt are threatened by underground flames eating west along the Lincoln Highway toward Ada.

Fire started Thursday night from a cigarette stub carelessly thrown in the grass at the edge of a wide peat bog, is the opinion of Richard Orth, county surveyor.

FIRE GAINS

Fire gained rapidly Friday. It spread over the entire bog, pouring out a steady cloud of smoke over the region.

Rich soil land at the edge of the bog destroyed by the underground menace alarmed Hardin-co. officials and farmers and Saturday several hundred farmers armed with picks, shovels, spades and other implements started to dig trenches several feet deep to stem the progress of the fire.

Workers divided in sections worked furiously during the night by lights of automobiles parked on Lincoln Highway to save their property.

ALL NIGHT BATTLE

Grim and determined, covered with smoke, and with a knowledge of the ravages of the last bog fire near Ada one year ago, emergency fire-fighters spread over a wide expanse continued their efforts as daylight spread over the region darkened by a thick cloud of smoke seeping thru ground fissures cracked by intensity of heat from the underground inferno.

The area presented a picture of battlefields in France. Trenches from two to six feet in depth and two to four feet wide cut the land, acre after acre, in the shadows of farm houses and rich farm land.

Lincoln Highway on the south served as a barrier for south farm land and trenches from the highway in a semi-circle have partially checked spread of the fire in some portions while workers are extending trenches on all three sides to cut off the progress.

DANGER AVERTED

While fighters believe the greater danger is averted no letup is being made and hundreds of farmers are on the scene digging away to prevent a re-occurrence of the Ada onion field disaster.

Farm of John Keith, on the Lincoln Highway, is directly in the path of the fire. Trenches were dug immediately adjacent to his property, it was announced after an all night vigil.

One year ago a peat bog fire similar to that now under control at Dola destroyed 1,500 acres of valuable onion land near Ada, causing thousands of dollars' damage.

DISORDERLY HOUSES ARE OBJECTIVE IN CRUSADE

Liquor Parties Objects of Crusade Waged by Lima Police

HEARINGS MONDAY

Evidence to be Presented to Judge Ben Motter In City Court

Vice crusade aimed at disorderly houses in the former notorious "red light district" and at "blind tigers" and "hip pocket" bootleggers, inaugurated by police Saturday night, trapped seven persons in the dragnet.

Two were cited on liquor charges, three in connection with a raid on an alleged disorderly house and two others on disorderly counts.

Those cited were:

SEVEN HELD

Charles Carter, 33, 1203 W.

North-st., illegal possession.

Mrs. Eva Banty, 63, of 134 1/2 E.

Wayne-st., keeper of a disorderly house.

Myrtle West, 35, Marion, inmate of a disorderly house.

Edna Miller, Toledo, disorderly conduct.

George Evans, broker, of Columbus, disorderly conduct.

Oren Spyker, 21, Cridersville, drunk and illegal possession.

John Brown, Columbus Grove, for investigation.

Special Police Runyan, said to have been appointed Saturday to as-ist in successful completion of the vice drive, was responsible for the arrest of Charles Carter, whom he accused of possessing a quart of alleged liquor.

CONFESION CLAIMED

Confession implicating Mrs. Ban-ty and West woman is said to have been signed Saturday night by John Brown, Columbus Grove, trapped at the Banty house during the raid by Detectives Clapper and Hargrove.

Mrs. Banty is at liberty under bond. Myrtle West and Brown were released on bail of $25 each.

A whisky bottle, two bottles of ginger ale, a tumbler and a whisky glass fell into police hands in a raid on the N. Pine-st. house occupied by Edna Miller and George Evans.

Raiders claim the couple dumped a quart of Old Charter whisky before they could break into the room occupied by them. A small amount of alleged liquor in the bottle is at headquarters as evidence in event police change the charge against the two.

CRUSADE EXTENDED

Crusade drive extended to Mc-Cullough's lake and one victim, Oren Spyker, of Cridersville, was confined on a drunkenness and illegal possession charge. Police took a pint bottle off his hip.

A 16-year-old boy, a companion of Spyker, was locked up. He was so intoxicated, police said, he was unable to give his name for registration. He will be turned over to juvenile authorities.

Those trapped in the crusade will appear Monday morning for arraignment before Acting Judge Ben Motter in criminal court.

INJURED IN FALL

CANTON—Gordon Leonard, 14, is in Autman hospital here in a serious condition as a result of internal injuries received Saturday when he fell 40 feet from a chestnut tree. The accident occurred near the grounds of the Lakeside Country Club where the boy is employed as a caddy. He is the son of John Leonard, this city.

Local employees of Henry Ford's Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railway are keenly interested in his profit sharing plan for employees which was laid before the interstate commerce commission two years ago and approved Saturday.

Under the plan any employee can invest in the company's certificates of indebtedness in denomination of $100, $500 or $1,000. They can withdraw their payments any time but cannot sell their certificates when they have paid for them in full.
In no event is the amount to be paid on certificates to exceed 25 per cent of the net earnings of the company; that is, the employee cannot share in net earnings above 25 per cent.

Money received from its employees thru sale of the certificates will be invested by the company in additions and betterments. In approving the plan the interstate commerce commission, according to advices from Washington, said that "the success of the plan is speculative."

LICENSE LAW IS ATTACKED

Soft Drink Proprietor Claims He Ask Court Ruling

RULING EFFECTIVE MONDAY

City Is Ready To Defend Measure Should Fight Start

Attack on the city's new license ordinance which becomes effective Monday is threatened in court according to notice served on City Manager Bingham Saturday afternoon by Eli W. Brentlinger, proprietor of a restaurant and soft drink parlor at 232 N. Central-av.

Brentlinger made application for a soft drink license under the new ordinance and was refused by Police Chief T. A. Lanker to whom such applications are sent for his approval. Lanker claimed that he refused to ratify the Brentlinger application because the applicant has been convicted in common pleas court of selling liquor in violation of law and also because he is now out under a total of $15,000 bonds for alleged violations of the liquor laws.

Saturday morning an attorney for Brentlinger appeared at city hall and made a tender of $1.05 in cash as payment for the soft drink license for the period from October 15 until the end of the year, which is the amount the city will collect from all soft drink licensees for the remainder of this year. The tender of money was refused and the license likewise refused because of Chief Lanker's action.

NOTICE SERVED

Saturday afternoon, when City Manager Bingham was present, the attorney returned again and again made his tender of money and served notice that Brentlinger is going to open up Monday morning and sell soft drinks in defiance of city authorities and without getting any license as the new ordinance requires.

Should Brentlinger open up and actually sell soft drinks without getting a license, city officials are prepared to make an immediate arrest, City Manager Bingham said. Brentlinger will then test, in court, the right of the city to refuse him a soft drink license.

According to record furnished the city manager, Brentlinger was arrested May 27, 1922 and on June 9, 1922 was convicted in common pleas court of violating the prohibition laws. He was arrested Jan. 23, 1923 on a similar charge and next day was held to the grand jury in $10,000 bonds, according to Bingham. On Feb. 21, 1923, according to Bingham, Brentlinger was again arrested and this case, Bingham says is now in the federal courts.

CITY IS READY

City Manager Bingham said Saturday that he is ready for a test in court to determine the right of the city to judge the qualifications of those to whom it will issue licenses, not only for selling soft drinks but for any other purpose under the city licensing ordinances.

Lima's new license ordinance, affecting 19 lines of business and employment, will become effective Monday morning and all persons, firms, corporations, associations and partnerships coming under its provisions must have their licenses tags, City Manager Bingham announced Saturday.

With the ordinance becoming effective the city is again confronted with the old question of its rights to compel persons taking orders for goods having an interstate commerce character to take out the licenses.

Saturday City Manager Bingham said that if a person solicits orders for goods made in another state, the goods to be shipped later, neither such person nor his workers can be licensed but they will be given permits at the nominal cost of 15 cents per permit. Solicitors, peddlers and transient retailers come under the new ordinance. Bingham also ruled that if a person solicits orders and delivers goods at the same time, such person must take out the license while if the person is a transient retailer he or she must pay $35 per year.

MANY AFFECTED

Among those who are required to have licenses under the ordinance are owners of drays and moving vans, bill posters, bus owners, taxi cab owners, taxi drivers, detective agencies, dance halls, persons hauling explosives thru the streets or storing them, garbage collectors, milk wagons, owner or operators of soft drink parlors, hucksters, vendors and peddlers, theaters, moving picture houses, movie picture operators, electrical contractors, transient retailers and solicitors.

The striking street car men have announced their intention of circulating a referendum petition asking the city commissioners to repeal that section of the ordinance requiring that taxi drivers be licensed.

City officials estimated that the new ordinance will bring in about $10,000 additional revenue to the city during the course of a year's time.

SPEAKS TO WORKERS

CLEVELAND. Bishop Joseph Schrembs of the Catholic diocese of Cleveland, was principal speaker tonight at a banquet to 500 workers in the $3,000,000 campaign drive for the John Carroll University. MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

Services at the Fourth-st Baptist church will be held Sunday as follows:

Sunday school, 9:30 a. m.; Robert H. Siler, superintendent; morning worship 11 a. m.; B. Y. F. U. 6:30 p. m.; Love Altman, president; prayer and praise service, 7:30 p. m.; Sermon by Rev. Jim Woodley at 8 p. m.

Annual meeting of the Lima Club will be held Friday, October 12, at 7:30 p. m. F. J. Banta, president of the club said Saturday he did not know of any important matters that would be discussed at this time.

Mr. Ida Fintrock, 787 S. Metcalf-st., was called to Tulsa, Okla., by the seriousness of her little grandson, Harold H. Hadley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart H. Hadley, former Lima residents. The child has been ill with diphtheria with little hope held for recovery. The mother before her marriage was Miss Lura Mae Fintrock.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Ferner and son Bobbie, are week end guests of Mrs. Ferner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Caffrey, W. McKibben-st.

An address on "Our Foreign Relations" will be given in the Y. W. C. A. building at 8 p. m. Monday by Miss Emily Kneubuhl of Minneapolis who will speak before a joint meeting of the Chautauqua, Philomathean and Twentieth Century clubs. The public is invited.

At the annual meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Medical association held at Findlay last week, Dr. C. C. Yingling of Lima was elected vice-president, and Dr. J. R. Johnson of Lima elected treasurer. Next flex of the East Iron & Machine Co., the purchase by the Johnson Construction Co. of the Merriman Asphalt plant will enable the contractor to finish his asphalt work in about half the time it would have taken for the job. He claims that all paving work will, therefore, be finished long before cold weather begins.

WATER MAINS READY
In announcing the completion of the 18 months paving program this fall, City Manager Bingham also announced that the water department will soon finish laying new mains in the O'Brien and the Bentz subdivisions of the city and that when these two jobs are completed the city will have laid 25 miles of new water mains at a cost of $290,000 in the past 18 months.

Relative to the sewer work, City Manager Bingham said that contractor J. W. Farley is nearly thru. On the Wapakoneta-rd. job he has yet to build 400 feet of his 600 feet of tunnel work and then finish the Kibby-st. job between Main and Elizabeth-sts. Figures on this entire intercepting system, according to the city auditor's office calls for an expenditure of $599,121.

Two sewer jobs, according to Bingham, are yet to be finished by the McHugh-Cole Co. The one on Main-st. which carries, according to estimates in the auditor's office, an expenditure of $65,556 while the one thru the driving park, which carries, in all, a total of $141,478, according to estimates in the office of the city auditor.

Taking the figures on the paving, water mains and sewers, as given by city officials, the total cost of all the improvements thus to be completed is given as $2,048,157.

HOUSES SWEEPED IN FOREST FIRE

Many Flee From California Homes
As Flames Advance

(BULLETIN)

GLENDALE, Calif.—(Associated Press)—Thirty minutes after church bells had sounded a warning for residents to prepare to leave their homes, flames from a forest and brush fire north of Eagle Rock City, apparently had been checked at the crest of the last ridge separating them from the community. About 2,000 men were battling the flames.

PASADENA, Calif.—(Associated Press)—A forest and brush fire, which for a time Saturday threatened four or five communities in this section was brought under control in the force of Sycamore Canyon Saturday night.

Earlier reports of damage were found to be exaggerated. Only one large partially completed home on Verdugo Knoll and half a dozen small houses were destroyed, although the flames, fanned by a high wind, swept over several thousand acres in a few hours.

The fire started on the outskirts of Montrose and for a time threatened that town, as well as La Cienega and La Canada, but instead skirted the edges and turned down Sycamore Canyon. Some times it leaped forward half a mile at a time. Scores of summer homes and cabins near Glendale were abandoned as the flames advanced.

Hundreds of men, many conscripted, were thrown into the line established in Sycamore Canyon to battle the blaze and late in the afternoon as the breeze died down a number of trees in the fire's path were dynamited.

annual meeting will be held in Toledo.

Fall millinery in the shape of caps for some police officers arrived at the office of City Purchasing Agent Frank Hummel Saturday. There were three of them, one for the inspector and two for traffic officers.

Gas and water mains in streets on which improvements are being made are giving contractors considerable trouble because they have to be tunneled under, according to reports in city hall.

Contractors working with a steam shovel in a 16 foot alley at Laney-av broke down a small brick wall, City Manager Bingham said Saturday.

Miss Vera Jewell of the city engineering department was a visitor in Cincinnati Saturday.

ACID TEST FACED BY POLITICIANS

Three Groups to Fight It Out
When Congress Meets

WHAT WILL COOLIDGE DO?

Also, What About La Follette
Asks Lawrence Martin

(By LAWRENCE MARTIN)

WASHINGTON.—(United Press).—The congress has fallen into disrepute among the American people, largely because of its failure to function effectively, each succeeding session seems to hold more importance in the life of the nation than the previous one.

When you realize this, you will find the secret of it is we are becoming more and more a politically-minded people more interested in a politics wear by year and, as a natural result, more critical of politicians and their works.

Congress is made up of politicians and their works. Some day a way may be found to turn it into a true legislative body, where more attention will be paid to national welfare than to individual ambition. But the point of the present situation is that congress gets its importance from the fact that the lives of individual politicians and groups of them, combined into party organizations, depend on congress to such an extent that if congress were abolished the present brand of national politics would practically disappear for a time.

The coming session of congress is, therefore, important to the politicians. It is important to the rest of the country, too, but primarily it is important in its effect on the perpetuation of the present political system in this country. The people probably would manage to muddle along somehow whether congress met in December or not. The politicians would be entirely out of luck.

The 68th congress is expected first to show whether Calvin Coolidge is the man for the Republican presidential nomination in 1924. If he is able to dominate it enough to get former relief legislation enacted, and to prevent the liberal progressive bloc from defeating his immigration policy, his appropriations for government departments, or from taking the bit in its teeth and enacting a lot of measures not desired at this time by the administration, he will be voted a success by his party and probably will be renominated.

Second, it is expected to prove the courage, intelligence and strength of the liberal-progressive group, headed by Senator La Follette. La Follette has plenty of courage himself and considerable intelligence; but whether he will be able to lead the somewhat headstrong progressive bloc intelligently remains to be seen. So how important this is to the politicians: If La Follette falls, the old line party organizations of Democrats and Republicans will be that much stronger. If he does not fall, these two party entities will be correspondingly weakened, and La Follette will loom once more as a truly national figure, with perhaps millions of voters at his command.

Third, it is expected to show whether Democratic party leadership is capable of uniting the Democratic party. If this can be done, much effective sniping at the Republican program may be accomplished, with the aid of the progressive bloc and, what is more important, a definite and constructive program may be evolved as the basis for the Democratic campaign in 1924.

All these things will come about or fail to come about through the channels of legislation. Congress will be dealing with hundreds of millions of dollars and questions affecting the welfare of the whole country—to some extent, the welfare of the whole world.

PEACE AS SCARCE AS DARKNESS

British Empire Finds Trouble in all Parts of Domains

LONDON.—(United Press).—Englishmen proudly declare that the sun never sets on the British empire.

They might with equal justice claim that empire wide peace is as rare as empire-wide darkness. In Mesopotamia, India, Aden and Transjordan, the outposts of Empire are maintained by constant watchfulness and sometimes continued fighting.

British troops and officials have been the victims of a war of assassinations and assault in Palestine, where the bulk of the population is Arab. The Arabs are bitter against British attempts, under a League of Nations mandate to found a "New Jerusalem" on the site of the old.

For the present the political situation is described as "unsettled." In Transjordan another potential midge war is brewing in an age-old pot of discontent.

Wahabi tribesmen constantly threaten a renewal of hostilities. "Active operations are not being carried out now." The British soldiers are waiting for the natives to start something.

In Mesopotamia the game is more exciting. Scarcely a day passes but that some lurking band of natives attempt to pot British outposts.

The natives are potted in their turn and when the irritating exchange has attained respectable proportions, with a well-nourished grievance on both sides, a miniature war takes place forthwith.

There is no need for a formal declaration of war. The English foreign office gets lumped reports of these little misunderstandings. If the officer in command makes his report weekly, then he puts his entire week's wars in one report and sends it along.

English soldiers have been doing this sort of work ever since the first English flag strayed from the home soil to find a resting place in foreign territory.

Kipling's famous "Mulaney" and his kind have been succeeded in Mesopotamia and India by trim young subalterns, who joyfully bomb desert and mountain villages alike. The aircraft pilot have struck terror in the hearts of natives who would dash themselves into machine-gun fire without a quail.

The fiercest Mesopotamian battles are immortalized for a day by a paragraph in the papers and are forgotten.

LLOYD GEORGE GIVEN WARM WELCOME AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Man.—A warm welcome was given David Lloyd George, the war-time premier of Great Britain, upon his arrival here Saturday in his tour of the dominion, crowds lining the station and cheering as he stepped from his private car to be greeted by provincial and city officials.

The distinguished visitor was taken immediately upon a drive about the city where thousands applauded his appearance. From there he went to the business section and placed a wreath at the base of the Cenotaph, erected by the people of Winnipeg to the memory of heroic dead of the World war. He was then escorted to government house with Lieutenant Governor Sir James Atkins where he will be guest during his stay here. An official dinner was given in his honor at Government house Saturday night and later he left for Olympia ring to deliver a public address in which he extended to western Canada his thanks for the part it played in the World war. Arrangements also were made for him to address an overflow meeting in the auditorium of the board of trade building.

WOMAN BANKER BOSSSES HUBBY

LAY, Ky.—(Special) Mrs. C. E. Hearin is vice president of the Farmer's National Bank of this city.

Her husband takes orders from her—at the bank. He's secretary of that institution.

Strange to relate, Mrs. Hearin started as her husband's assistant, on state treasurer in the country.

And more, she has just been elected vice president of the American Bankers' Association, in convention at Atlantic City.

And she jumped over his head. Not only that, only recently she turned down a wonderful opportunity—that of becoming the first woman

WOMEN SOUGHT AS BLACKMAILERS

Linked With Suicide Of New Jersey Mayor

IRVINGTON, N. J.—(Associated Press)—Two women, one from New York and the other from New Jersey, and a man said to be a former politician, are being sought in connection with the suicide of Mayor Edward Folsom of Irvington who took his life because he had seen his fortune pass into the hands of blackmailers who knew he once served a term in prison. This announcement was made Saturday night by Assistant Prosecutor J. Victor D'Alia, who was said to have been given the names of the alleged blackmailers by the former mayor's son.

While the search was on, Mrs. Folsom, the daughter of the rich man for whom Folsom stole, when he was a youth, so he could marry her, cried out for punishment of the blackmailers. There was one thing that baffled her, however—the mysterious disappearance of a letter her husband wrote two weeks before he took his life. Mrs. Folsom has searched all the former mayor's effects without avail for the document which she believes will show in detail the acts of those who made her husband's life a parallel to that of Jean Valjean.

Folsom, who had built up a business and made many friends in the community to which he and his wife came after he was released from Auburn prison, was penniless when he died. His coal company was mortgaged for $35,000 and it was believed most of that money, and more, had been paid to the blackmailers.

MRS. HARDING TO LIVE AT MARION

Will Not Become Leader In Washington Society

LIMA NEWS BUREAU. After Edge, Washington, D. C. Washington society will see little of Mrs. Florence King Harding this winter, although she plans to spend much of her time here, according to word brought back from Marion today by George B. Christian, Jr., private secretary to the late president.

Recent reports that Mrs. Harding had rented a large apartment of this town rooms suitable for extensive entertaining were contradicted by Christian, who said that Mrs. Harding would live while in Washington with her brother, Charles King, at his home here.

Warren G. Harding's widow has no thought at present of becoming a leader in Washington society, or even a prominent figure, Christian says. She will continue to make Marion her home and to spend the larger part of her time there, and her stays in Washington will be temporary and they may be of some duration.

SCHOOL BOARD SLATE IS PROPOSED ON DODGERS CIRCULATED UNSIGNED

Circulation of campaign dodgers advocating the candidacy of three of the nine candidates for board of education November 6, on Saturday was the initial manifestation of interest in the coming election in Lima.

Typewritten slips of paper, unsigned, were handed about. The dodgers asked the voters to support a slate composed of E. G. May, Dr. R. A. Buchanan, and J. F. Judkins.

Rumors that the Republican county organization was behind the candidacy of the trio were denied by H. E. Simonton, member of the board of elections and party wheel horse, Saturday.

The nine entrants are Fred Calvert, Frank W. Mullenhour, L. G. May, Dr. R. A. Buchanan, J. F. "Dick" Judkins, Mrs. Josephine Peirce, R. N. Thompson, Mrs. Ethel H. Milley, and Homer Sionker.

WALTON GIRDING FOR COMBAT

Oklahoma Legislature Scene Of Bitter Political Struggle

OPENS DEFENSIVE MONDAY

New Organization Is Built Up By Governor

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(Associated Press)—Oklahoma's legislative session Saturday night assumed the proportions of a bitter political controversy with forces of Governor J. C. Walton girding to combat an impeachment act instituted by the lower house of the state legislature.

Having already thrown aside his most prominent administration advisors—Aldrich Blake, the executive counsellor, and Dr. E. T. Bynum, state bank commissioner—the governor now is said in official quarters to be building an organization by which he hopes to split the ranks of his executive opponents.

While the executive himself refused to outline his plans, it is rumored that his supporters have prepared a definite campaign and are awaiting the reconvening of the legislature Monday to launch their defensive.

NEW ADVISER
Meanwhile, Clifford W. King, an assistant to the attorney general whom the governor appointed Saturday, will act as the executive's personal adviser.

No successor to the former bank commissioner has been named. Both Blake and Bynum issued statements attacking the governor for his recent official activities. The former executive counsellor declared that he had been ousted because the governor had been defeated in his fight against the Ku Klux Klan but that despite his removal, he intended to carry the anti-klan campaign into "every precinct in the state."

The house committee, appointed to investigate impeachable offenses, alleged to have been committed by various state officials, continued its session today and examined more than a score of witnesses. Several of the governor's special agents, including Buck Garrett and Zack Mulhall, were called before the committee, as were also a number of Oklahoma City business men and bankers.

BROKEN ROLLER HALTS WORK

Napoleon-rd Delay Is Laid To Machinery Breakdown

Breakdown of the county steam roller, used in compacting roads, is delaying the completion of the section of Napoleon-rd from Harrod to Lafayette, County Surveyor E. Smith declared Saturday.

The roller was pulled into Lima for repairs several days ago but is not ready for use, Smith said. He hopes to have the roller back on the road early in the week.

Construction of a mile of base on the Lincoln highway thru Gomer, and a mile on three streets in Delphos, to P. W. Agerter, Lima contractor, is being performed by the Frost Construction Co. of Defiance, and the Delphos job has been turned over to J. J. Johnson Construction Co.

FEE HEARING IS DUE MONDAY

Former Congressman To Face
Federal Court Charge

SUBPOENAS ARE SERVED

American Legion Leaders Among Those Named To Appear

Final arrangement was made Saturday for the trial of Benjamin Welby, former congressman, charged with obtaining an exorbitant fee in a war compensation case which is to be staged in the U. S. District court in Toledo Monday.

Armed with a sheaf of subpoenas, Jack Cass, U. S. deputy marshal, invaded Lima Saturday, and commenced serving a half score of witnesses, who are to be actors in what promises to be one of the most dramatic trials in the annals of northwestern Ohio.

Among those served with notice to appear in court to testify are Fred C. Becker, judge of common pleas court; Jesse H. Hamilton, judge of Allen-co probate court; John Franklin Cover, post commander of the American Legion; Maurice C. Cover, world war veteran, and post commander; John T. Cotner, clerk of the courts; Lawrence Strayer, brother of Franklin R. Strayer, disabled world war veteran; William Strayer, father of Franklin; and a long list of others whose identity was not learned.

LEGION INVESTIGATES

Charges against Welby were brought out a year ago when William Paul Gallagher Post American Legion voted to investigate whether or not Welby, acting as counsel for the Strayers, had charged an alleged illegally exorbitant fee for obtaining compensation for Franklin R. Strayer, world war veteran.

The investigation culminated in an indictment being returned against Welby by a federal grand jury sitting in Toledo last April.

Judge Paul Jones, of Youngstown, who is holding court in Toledo, while Judge Killis is in Texas, will preside during the trial. Judge Jones was appointed within the past year by the late President Warren G. Harding.

5 BUILDINGS ARE BURNED DOWN

Heavy Toll Is Taken By Flames
At Akron

AKRON.—(Associated Press)—Firemen at 12:30 had under control the fire which for three hours Saturday night threatened to wipe out the entire east end business section of Akron. The fire started in the yards of the Dietz Lumber Co. and spread rapidly, destroying two homes, a boarding house, a small apartment house and a store building before the firemen were able to check the flames.

Loss at the Dietz lumber yards was estimated at $50,000. At 11 o'clock a fire broke out at the M. M. Mell Co. warehouse, a quarter of a mile from the Dietz lumber yards. The warehouse and its contents, feed and building material were destroyed. Mell's loss was $28,000. Firemen stated that the Mell fire could not have been started by sparks from the lumber yard fire. Fire Chief John Merz has been unable to determine the origin of either fire.

A score of police officers were rushed to the scene of the fires to stop looting, which began on a large scale as soon as tenants of the homes and store buildings were ordered from their places.

10 RESIDENCES BURN

NOGALES, Ariz.—(Associated Press)—An entire block of residences and business buildings have been destroyed by fire which broke out Saturday night at the edge of the main business district of Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, across the international boundary. No lives have been lost, according to the report. Flames swept across the street from the Hidalgo theatre, where the fire is believed to have originated and destroyed the Lujan hotel. Ten residences also were destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Fire fighters from the American side were rushed to aid the Mexican fire department in extinguishing the flames.

The damage was estimated at upward of $80,000.

LECTURE COURSE OPENS OCT. 26

Central High is Enthusiastic Over "The Impression"

The first number of the Central High Lecture course will be presented Tuesday, Oct. 26 when "The Impression," for a long time an operatic hit, will be given by a capable company.

The company, directed by William Wade Henshaw, is said to boast some of the best singers and actors on tour who are at the present time starting a trip that will last all winter and carry them into the largest cities in the country.

Percy Hemus, baritone, said to be one of the best in America at the present time, will play the leading role and is ably supported by a stellar cast. Hemus, we hear, has been a decided success in every city he has played and should be a real treat to local people.

R. E. Offenhauer, principal of Central and director of the course, announces that more than 900 tickets have been sold and 200 more probably will be disposed of before Tuesday evening. Seven numbers are on this year's course.

Much interest is being manifested by Central students in the coming "gym" exhibition which will be held Friday, November 21 in the school auditorium.

This is an annual affair and the benefits derived from it are used for the purchase of athletic equipment to carry on the "Everybody plays" program. A. W. Schultz, "gym" director of the boys and Miss Shellenberg, girls "gym" instructor, are arranging the entertainment.

It is expected that more than 100 students will take part in the various dancing, tumbling and athletic exhibitions. Tickets will go on sale some time this week.

A meeting of the junior class will be held some time during the coming week when the Junior Literary society will be re-organized.

Last year not much was done as the society was organized toward the latter part of the school year. Juniors are anxious to make this one of the school's leading clubs before the year ends.

The "C" association, membership in which is one of the highest honors in Central scholastic life, will hold its first meeting of the year, some time this week.

Several athletic problems will be considered at the first meeting as well as election of officers for the coming year.

First announcement of the dates for school plays was made last week by Prof. Offenhauer. The Trobadourian Dramatic club play will be given Jan. 25. Parts for the play will be assigned before the Christmas vacation.

The seniors will have their play Feb. 15 while the juniors will break into the dramatic limelight March 2.

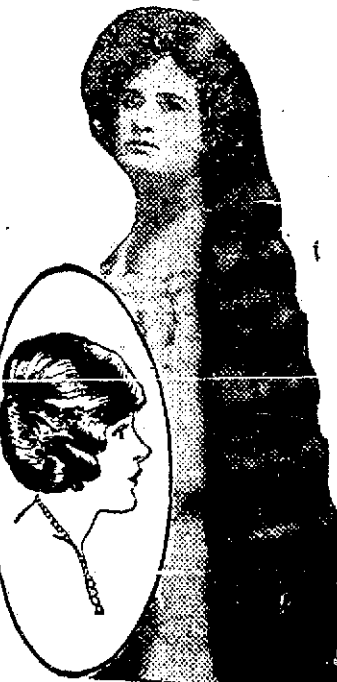

Central students will receive their Mirrors Monday. Delay on the part of the printers made it impossible to issue copies Friday.

Rev. Robert A. Elwood, pastor of Boardwalk church at Atlantic City, talked to the Hi-Y club at its last meeting. A bi-weekly dinner meeting will be held at the local "Y" Wednesday evening.

Central's 21 clubs, representing almost every student's hobby, will hold weekly meetings Wednesday noon.

JOHNSON TO FIGHT FOR OHIO NATIONAL DELEGATES

INVADE STATE IN 1924, PLAN

Buckeye Leaders Look to Senator Fess as "Favorite Son"

GOVERNOR ANSWERS CRABBE

Harvey Will Return Home, to Stay—Political Gossip

With the disclosure that United States Senator Hiram Johnson is preparing to invade Ohio in 1924, to contest for the Buckeye state's 50 delegates in the next national Republican convention, comes the inevitable jockeying for the selection of a "favorite son" to spike the aspirations of the westerner, in addition to the furor kicked up among the party leaders in the state.

Efforts on the part of friends of Johnson to keep his plans carefully concealed were successful for a time, but inevitably they leaked out, and now there is wonderment as to how and where it was done. In 1920 the Cantonian held aloof from the Ohio primary, thru personal friendship for the late president, Warren G. Harding, and as a reward that got him nothing, he had the pledge of the Harding delegates for second choice.

There is nothing of that kind of character to keep Johnson out of Ohio next year, and—well, he'll be here. That's the word that is out now, disclosed during the past week when advance scouts entered the state to pave the way. However, it was not a case of the game being flushed, for anti-Johnson folks had the tip weeks ago and were already engaged in making counterplans when the affirmative word came that "Hi wasn't bluffing," but meant exactly what he said.

The fight to be made for Ohio's delegation next year recalls that although Johnson did not set foot inside this state or even seek to get his name on the presidential ballot, he received several thousands of votes, by the write-in route, as an evidence of the strength and determination of his local followers. With his name printed on the ballot, friends "figger" that Hi will show President Coolidge a clean pair of heels in this state.

Right here is where the necessity of a "favorite son" becomes apparent. The Old Guard must prevent Johnson from walking away with the custody, at all hazards. Ohio's two United States senators, although having declared for Coolidge for next year, may be required to lend their aid by the use of their names, one or both of them. However, it is believed by Ohio that one will be sufficient to provide a stop-gap servant for Coolidge. Fess is preferred, because there is no considerable contingent of "lids" in his party oppose to him. He gets along with equal facility with both the wets and dries and is accredited with possessing more of what might be termed diplomacy than does his colleague in the upper house of congress. Besides, Senator Willis doesn't shine up so well with the folks in the larger cities. Senator Fess is fresh from a battle of his own, having won against odds last year his place in the senate.

Republican party leaders freely admit that Johnson will be a dangerous contender for the Ohio delegation. His radical isolationist policy, the direct opposite of the spirit President Harding was inculcating in behalf of his world court ideas, is expected to hold in line a large contingent of the party faithful who were fed up on anti-league and anti-court and anti-everything stuff in 1920 to the point where they were ready to believe most anything. It may not be so easy now to get them to change their viewpoint. There is where Johnson may profit.

Senator Fess may become a candidate. If he does, you'll know just why, gentle reader. It isn't with the expectation of a possibility of winning the Ohio delegates meaning anything in the convention, but men are desired who can be flopped to Silent Cal at the psychological moment. Although that will be the plan, there's no telling what might occur if unexpected opposition to the Massachusetts man should develop. Senator Fess always was lucky. If he should hold the Ohio delegation up to a certain point, with scattering votes from admirers in other states, he might land the nomination. Imagine it! But anything can happen in political conventions.

There'll be fireworks in the Ohio campaign, with Johnson in, that's assured. It was what is generally termed a "boner" for Ohio leaders, including Sir and Frankie, to declare for Coolidge early in the game. It might have profited them to be more cautious. If necessary, the Ohio crew might flash Johnson's letter on him, written from Europe, wherein he virtually passed up possibility of nomination. But conditions have changed since then, and Hi has also changed his mind.

Governor Donahay and Norman Beck, the latter sitting as the head of the State Securities department, haven't decided whether to provide the political rope for Attorney General Crabbe to hang himself, figuratively speaking, or permit the chief law giver to do the job for himself.

It's assured that Crabbe is well on the way to something—either a downfall. He's riding con-sciently, but his political enemies point out that pride goeth before disaster. When the governor took a fall out of Crabbe in connection with a long list of charges adduced against John McNamara, former superintendent of grounds at the Girls' Reformatory at Delaware and now assistant welfare director of the attorney general dropped McNamara like a hot potato, asserting that the charges against him were only "misdeemeanors" anyway. He refused to go to the grand jury with them.

Having kept his hands off the Securities department while endeavoring to drive McNamara into a corner, Crabbe returned to the Blue Sky department over the weekend, accusing it of having an "understanding" with the Dollage crowd for years past and hinting at about everything from connivance to actual graft. Norman Beck, clever chap that he is, politely requested Crabbe to spit all he knows about the securities department and stop dealing in generalities.

Charles Chester has been polking around to such an extent that it appears to be doubtful if he can do as requested. The governor, more amused than angered over Crabbe's attacks, has joined with Beck in countering, pointing out to the attorney general the record of the department and defying him to lay his cards on the table—if his hand amounts to anything. In the meantime, Ohioans are watching on the sidelines, umpiring the game of "tit for tat" engaged in so persistently by members of the official family.

And don't forget that while all this is transpiring, the attorney general has ambitions to be governor.

It has come to pass even as has been on previous occasions foisted in these columns. Colonel George Harvey, United States Ambassador and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of St. James, England, is soon to return home—to stay. Even before the death of President Harding, who had named Harvey for the English post, it was patent that he would not long be retained overseas.

For you see, George has a way all his very own of getting his foot inside this state or even seek to get his name on the presidential ballot, he received several thousands of votes, by the write-in route, as an evidence of the strength and determination of his local followers. With his name printed on the ballot, friends "figger" that Hi will show President Coolidge a clean pair of heels in this state.

When one recalls some of the great characters of history who have represented the United States in England, it is indeed painful to contemplate this man Harvey. President Harding was on the point several times of recalling him, but it was delayed from time to time, for some reason, until it was up to President Coolidge to relieve the situation. To his credit it must be said that he wasn't long in doing it.

Now that Harvey is closing up his affairs overseas and getting ready to return home to stay, charity should abound. And, in truth, there are good things that may be said of Colonel, even though he has been the storm center of ill advised utterances at times. He possessed courage and was not a bit backward in his official position when it involved taking a stand in a manner reflective of the position of his chief.

After all that is about all there is to a position of that kind. An ambassador is supposed to be the mouthpiece of the administration he represents. He cannot give good service if his ideas run counter to instructions laid down. In bringing Harvey home, it may be that the Coolidge administration sees further need of his talent in the preparation of sacrilegious cartoons for political purposes.

Secretary of State Thaddeus Brown has another big job off his hands and the army of stenographers and typists in the office of that official has been materially reduced as a result. The publicity pamphlet, hearing arguments for and against initiative and referendum measures on which the people will vote in November, are going into the mails.

It is not so much an important matter now, since for weeks past the newspapers have been carrying details of the measure in their columns. The reading public long ago was given a concrete idea of the questions being put up to them to decide, so it is doubtful if more than a small percentage of the thousands of pamphlets sent out to voters in every community of the 88 counties will be opened by those who receive them.

First comes the Taft law, increasing tax limitations and giving the people right to run wild in the matter of levies, if they so elect. It permits an increase of two mills in the tax rate in every city and village in Ohio, adding to tax burdens. On the other hand, its advocates point with pride to the statement that it is the first real budget system for local expenses, with publicity at every step.

Then there is the Albaugh law, which sets up new and expensive taxing machinery, in which the people surrender a certain portion of their rights in being relieved of the necessity of the election of assessors.

Both of these laws, enacted by the legislature, were vetoed by the governor, with a flourish, and when the general assembly came back for the "cleaup" they were passed over the protest of "Veto Vic."

The third proposal on the ballot is an initiated petition, fethered by the Federation of Labor and the Fraternal Order of Eagles. It proposes an old age pension law in Ohio. It would be difficult to state whether the hardest fight will be developed by the Taft law or the old age pension proposal. It is assured, however, that both will draw severe opposition, with the Albaugh law getting its share of the same sort of treatment.

Ohioans are getting to the point of being suspicious about most any new measure. In case of doubt, they generally vote No.

The past week has brought about something of a more decisive character in the Ohio gubernatorial situation, altho the number of positively declared Republican candidates has not been increased. The nearest to it has come from Hamilton-co, where Myers Y. Cooper is said to have gotten near the point of getting out from under cover.

Those who are able to read political signs, as they affect developing candidacies, see in the Cooper movement assurance that at the proper time he'll be in plenty. He is evidencing all the symptoms of preparing for an honest-to-goodness effort. Altho there will be many seekers, no doubt, there is always room for one more, the same as in the case of doctors in a small town.

Rupert R. Beetham, of Cadiz, former speaker of the House of Representatives, who was in the race in 1922 but did not run far or fast, is nursing the gubernatorial itch again, according to word coming from his place of habitat. In his advance statements, Beetham takes a filing at Senator John Burke, of Elyria, terming him an agitator.

In the Democratic household, those who are opposed to the reelection of Governor Donahay, are still endeavoring to locate the "right" man for the task of retiring Vic at the half way post.

It has not been decided exactly what the color of the hair of the "right" man should be, but it is becoming evident that the Meyers, former mayor of Akron and head of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, is anxious to be helped into a position of hurling defiance at Democratic tradition by opposing Governor Vic in the next primary election. If Ike gets in, there'll be others, that's assured.

In the meantime, the governor isn't worrying. He's apparently the most cheerful of the lot, according to the opinion of Allen-co men who have visited him lately. Maybe Vic wants a fight. Everything he ever succeeded in getting, politically, he has been required to fight for. He seems to like it and is reported to be even now preparing his thunder for the next battle.

When the Ohio lid is pried off, some time the coming winter, there'll be action aplenty for the folks who delight in political strenuities.

Simultaneously with the announcement that United States Senator Hiram Johnson of California is to contest for the Ohio delegates to the 1924 Republican national convention, his backers in New York have started things for him there. Formation of the first "Hiram W. Johnson for President club" has been effected in New York state, announced by Arthur B. Murtha, an organization Republican.

Murtha was a follower of Roosevelt and has always been a progressive in his party. Murtha—and others believe that Johnson is the only Republican who can be elected in 1924 and further that he is the only Republican who can carry New York. Murtha is not the only adherent of the Republican party who entertains misgivings about the ability of President Coolidge to "cut the butter" in a manner that will make assured the continuance of the party in power in national affairs.

Johnson's activity in 1920 did not enable him to reach the goal then, but if President Coolidge names Frank Lowden of Illinois as successor to Colonel George Harvey as ambassador to England, it will help pave the way to the fruition of the ambitions of Hiram.

Announcement made by Governor Donahay that he will not be a candidate for delegate at large to the 1924 Democratic national convention, but that he will go if elected, savors of small town stuff. At that, it is a clever way the Gov. has of letting it be known he is not averse to becoming a shining light in the next big powwow to be staged by his party.

Since the beginning of time—politically—it has been a favorite method of candidates just dying to get somewhere, to meekly assert they will serve if drafted. Maybe Vic has caught the infection from certain quarters wherein he has been "mentioned" as the possible Democratic nominee for president.

According to reports reaching this center of activity from Columbus, Governor Donahay hasn't changed his mind about favoring the Ohio delegation to be instructed for the support of former Governor Cox. But in event the Dayton man cannot be nominated—well, that's different. It might be added that Vic always was a lucky chap.

According to the expressed views of political writers elsewhere, the gubernatorial aspirations entertained by Congressman John L. Cable have been knocked into a cocked hat as a result of the action of striking street car men here putting it up to John to get to his father, D. J. Cable, president of the street railway company, and induce him to treat with the men on their terms.

The fight between the strikers and the company is far from being ended and drawing of the congressman into it is unfortunate for him, to say the least. Business is one thing, and politics is another. Our fellow townsmen has elected to become a receptive candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, rather than endeavor to overturn precedent in seeking a third term as district representative.

Perhaps, after all, John L. did about the only thing he could do under the circumstances—keep hands off.

Friends of the Taft and Albaugh taxation laws see in the decision of Judge Sater in Federal court in the case of the Dayton Street Railway Co. against Montgomery county, cutting down the taxes of the utility 40 per cent, a straw for them to grasp at in getting to the people of Ohio their message in favor of retention of the measures passed by the legislature over the protest of the governor.

Members of the State Tax commission assert the decision puts the officials of Montgomery-co in a very embarrassing position and that reappraisal immediately is the only remedy. Here is where Dr. Taft steps in with the offering of his measure as a panacea for what ails Montgomery-co as well as all other units of the commonwealth.

It's a good political move on the part of Taft, but so many Ohioans are constitutionally opposed to all increases in taxation that he may not be able to use the Dayton case to advantage after all.

Congressman John L. Cable was not lost in the shuffle when members of the Ohio legislature, on a play trip to Cincinnati and Chattanooga took a stray vote on Republican gubernatorial possibilities. There were many others lower in the scale in vote getting than was John, altho a bid not succeed in getting into the first tier.

Attorney General C. C. Crabbe was first, with 49; Harry L. Davis, second with 23; Carmi A. Thompson, 21; Thad H. Brown, 17; Theodore E.

Burton, 12; Roscoe C. McCullough, 12; John L. Cable, 8; George H. Clarke, 7; John F. Burke, 1; James A. White, 1; Mae VanWye, 3; Myers Cooper, 3; Robert C. Dunn, 5; I. M. Foster, 3; Frank Murphy, 3; Joseph T. Tracey, 2; Ralph Cole, 2; William N. Halley, 1; C. L. Knight, 1; Roy Fitzgerald, 1; Rupert Beetham, 1.

The legislators also expressed their preferences for president, as follows: Coolidge, 154; Hughes, 20; Hiram Johnson, 3; Fess, 1; Senator Watson of Indiana, 2.

Democratic members of the body cast 10 votes for Pomerene, 9 for Cox, 8 for Henry Ford, 5 for McAdoo and 5 for Senator Ralston of Indiana.

Governor Donahay received 31 votes for reelection. Newton D. Baker was given one and Hugh Nichols one.

James R. Marker, of Columbus and Versailles, Darke-co and former state highway commissioner, has set at rest all chatter about the prospect of his name being advanced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress, in the Fourth district.

With the Marker boom for congress having been flattened out by himself, his legion of friends insist that he again be elected as a delegate to the national convention. Jim was at Frisco in 1920, with J. H. Goetz, boosting the nomination of Jimmy Cox. If he should go again next year, he'd likely be shouting for the same man—Cox.

One of the surprising things in the fourth district is the fact that there is failure of a flood of Republican seekers for the place John L. Cable is voluntarily dropping out of. However, in good time there'll doubtless be a goodly harvest of the untutored Republicans in that district, each and everyone convinced he is the particular liddle boy who should be chosen to step into Cable's shoes as congressman.

Senator Brand's gravel roads in Champaign-co, which got him into heaps of trouble with the former Governor Harry L. Davis administration and succeeded in impelling former Highway Director Leon Herrick to cut off state aid from that county, is recalled by action of the Highway with 23; Carmi A. Thompson, 21; Director L. A. Boulay in restoring Thad H. Brown, 17; Theodore E.

with promise of at least one hard surface road thru the county.

Champaign-co folks are just now beginning to understand what the row between Senator Brand and the Davis administration was about. Herrick distributed road funds to contractors in a manner that recalled the statement concerning the "drunk-en sailor." Gravel roads were not favored, because they did not afford a sufficient amount of velvet for those who built them—perhaps.

When twitted by his political enemies about an apparent lack of carrying out campaign pledges for the building of cheaper roads, Governor Donahay instructed his highway director to take off the lid and show 'em just what is being done, b'gosh! There has been silence since.

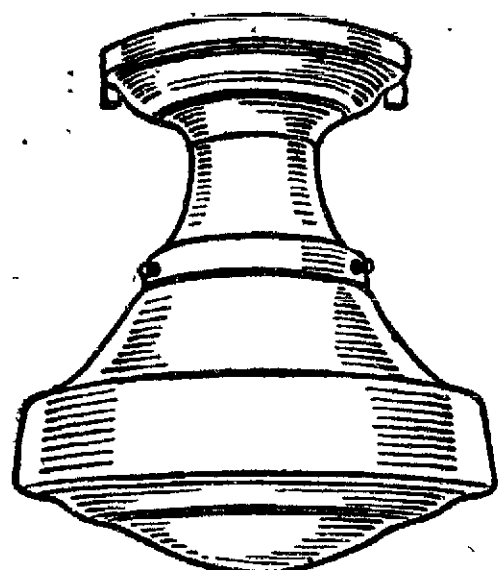

Democratic women of Ohio will probably advantage the opportunity to meet on common ground their enemy of the opposition party next year in the matter of campaigning. It must be admitted without fear of contradiction that the Republican women's organization showed more speed in developing orators for political campaigns than did the Democratic women.

But that is to be remedied now. A national school of democracy will

SOUTH BUSY WITH MANY AFFAIRS

Students Are Active in Wide Variety of Endeavors

Activities at South other than athletics are now coming to the limelight. Organization of various clubs is under way or has been completed and everyone is looking forward to a year full of successes in every line of school endeavor.

The "Ye Merrie Players" dramatic society will give, as part of their program Monday a playlet entitled, "Tab Grove." It deals with two sisters of different characters and their final fates. Margaret Fensler and Lila Rothlisberger hold the leading roles. This will be the first regular meeting of the society this year. The committee on the revised constitution will also make its report.

Headed by Miss Brumby and Leonard Lambard, Pres., the "Art Club" will hold its second regular meeting Monday. President Lambard will lead the discussion on "Great Artists," a topic in which the art students are deeply interested. A new election of officers will take place and a committee will be appointed to revise the constitution.

An informal discussion on "Student Government in the High School" will take place at the next meeting of the "Public Speaking Society." This is a new club at South and is expected to do much in the promotion of better public speakers. Miss Bowlus is supervising the society.

The Girls Glee club, under the leadership of Miss L. Smith is planning to have a few vocal selections on its program at the next meeting. But most of the time will be taken up on business. Mildred Erskine, President of the club will appoint a constitutional committee to revise the constitution and plans for the year's work will be laid out.

"Try outs" for the "Masquers" will be held Monday. This club is only open to students of the eighth year. It is the primary club of the "Ye Merrie Players" dramatic society. Much talent is developed by the Masquers. They expect this to be their most successful year.

The next meeting of the Commmercial club will be for cabinet members only. They will make plans for the year's work and a committee will be appointed to draw up a new constitution. Miss Stiles and Miss Bower are aiding in the work of this club.

Plans are being made by Miss Cantrath, head of the Spanish department to organize a "Spanish Club" and it is expected that when some of the young Senecas and Senecoras lose their bashfulness, a successful Spanish club will be formed.

"Nature Study," a new club at South will hold its initial meeting next week. Miss Action will have charge of the organization. The idea of the club is to make a collection of insects, birds and flowers and to make a more detailed study of nature. Miss Action says much of the time will be taken up in outdoor work.

To the girls who desire to learn many useful things for the household the "Girls Science Club" affords a great opportunity. Miss Davidson is at the head of this club and she will lead the discussion on "Removing Stains" at the next meeting. Election of officers will also be held.

The Girls Welfare League has set definite plans for a carnival to be held Nov. 2. Supporters of this club believe it probably does more public service than any other club in the high schools and deserves much support and praise for the work it is doing. Marie Becholdt is President of the League.

Soccer is holding sway during the noon hour at South and has proven to be a very interesting game. Inter-class games are held each noon and much interest and enthusiasm is being shown by all the classes. Tournament results will develop more fully during the next week.

Additional lockers are being installed on the first and second floors of the building. This will relieve the congestion and inconvenience which many of the students had to endure. Up to this time as high as three persons have kept their belongings in one locker.

Three new classrooms in the new addition will be opened the latter part of the week. Three others, at the south end of the building were opened two weeks ago and are serving regular classrooms purpose although they are not completely finished yet. This makes six rooms in the new addition which will be used this school year. Work on the other parts of the building is progressing as rapidly as possible.

The program committee of the Science Club has planned to have a lecture on the "Dry Cell" at its next meeting. Raymond Boyer is chairman of the committee. Henry Apple is President of the club assisted by Graham, superintendent.

FATHER CLAIMS HIS SON BROKE HIS RIBS, HAS HIM PLACED UNDER $400 BOND

Kenneth Moorman, 20, farmer living near Zion church, west of Lima, was placed under a $400 peace bond by Justice of Peace Ernest M. Botkin.

Moorman was accused by Ed Moorman, his father, with attacking him and breaking two ribs. He also testified his son had struck at him with a hammer.

The hostilities between the two were the outcome of a family altercation.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

BECAUSE of some unseen economic condition, business over the nation may be of a pessimistic hue, as reflected by the stock and bond markets. If there exists such a condition, certain it is that no such cloud of pessimism inhibits Lima prosperity.

The sale of an entire lot addition in one day; the quadrupling in floor space of one big mercantile establishment; the persistent inquiry and purchase of new homes, the continued total disappearance of unemployment, surely places Lima in the niche of the prosperous and progressive class.

Retail trade, despite warm weather more than seasonal, was generally brisk the week thru in all channels. Banks are taxed to meet demands for new expansion and enterprise, not demands to meet discounts or pay off old debts, a decided difference.

Lima is growing in every direction. There continues to be more little business concerns springing up, and those of this type launched during the year, are proving successes. Our smaller industrial factories are running to their full capacity under their present capital.

Money is in freer supply at the Building & Loans, and construction work over the city has failed to decline as expected. Our home builders have disposed of everything built during the season, and one firm is starting fifteen new structures at the very inception of winter. There is every indication that fall mercantile trade will exceed last year, and probably equal and mayhap overlap the banner year of all time, 1919.

In prospect, there is the doubling of the Lake Erie shops, the new tank car factory, the rumored removal here of the D. T. & L. shops, and further expansion of the Loco Works. Optimism must continue for some months into the future to be the keynote of the city and district surrounding us.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

COLUMNS of the political press of the state are being loaded to the limit with echoes of a fight in progress among members of the Ohio official family, stirred up by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe and maintained at the boiling point by charges and counter charges of incrimination and recrimination.

The attorney general is apparently endeavoring to make political capital out of the Dollings company failure, using the cudgel against Governor Donahey and his State Securities department, better known as the Blue Sky Division. The head of the legal department charges that an "understanding" has existed between heads of the Dollings company and the securities department for ten years past. His attacks are so worded as to cast reflection on the Donahey administration.

Crabbe's attacks were ignored for a time, but when they became so persistent and vicious as to merit rebuke or an admission that they were true, a fusillade of shots were fired at him in newspaper statements. Newspapers of the capital city have been loaded to the guards with accusations and answers and the wires of press associations have taken up the refrain, while special correspondents maintained at Columbus by various newspapers have been fairly jangling in the emanations from the warring forces.

The whole thing might be summed up in this fashion: The attorney general has a severe attack of gubernatorial itch. The recent legislative reunion, taking a straw vote, gave Crabbe a majority of the ballots cast by the Republican members. It is significant that he was present when the vote was taken, in which Congressman John L. Cable gained fine recognition—but he was not present to boost his cause.

It is difficult at times to read the hearts and minds of men and women, but it is probably pretty safe to venture the assertion that the attorney general is not aiding his own cause by showing evidence of being a perpetual trouble breeder, particularly so when his accusations are quickly disproven or where they are so thinly veiled as to merit no notice whatever. The present state administration has been in existence less than a year. It will be weighed in the balance when the proper time comes, by the people themselves. The attorney general was not chosen for the purpose of giving all his time to picking flaws in the conduct of offices not controlled by representatives of his particular party. That fact should impress itself upon him.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

AMAZING growth of a department of state effort, in behalf of those who toil in the workshops and factories and elsewhere, in industries that come under the supervision and requirements of the workmen's compensation law, is shown in a report compiled by J. H. Lameck, chief of the division in the department of industrial relations.

During the month of September the total number of claims filed with the department, non-fatal cases, is 18,316. There were 67 death claims filed. Claims heard total 24,155. Of this number 13,522 had their first hearing. There were 316 new risks added and 255 cancelled.

Receipts for the workmen's compensation fund total $1,340,036, and disbursements for the month $778,664. The balance in the fund for the protection of workmen is given at $44,043,544. While disbursements in this department are increasing, due to recurrence in cases of old injury, it is noted there are fewer accidents, probably due to better inspections, more safeguards and a better understanding of the law generally.

Pending file for state claim involving compensation decreased 123 during September, the report shows. There were 1944 fewer accidents reported during the month, compared with August.

Lameck's report is designed to show the value of the compensation department, as an aid to a campaign that is being made by labor and capital unitedly in behalf of a constitutional amendment for the elimination of open liability in connection with the law. Its adoption by the people in the November election will effectually head off ambulance chasing attorneys and remove the possibility of suits by injured workmen in cases that are better taken care of by the compensation law.

The Farm Bureau federation has joined with capital and labor in the espousal of the amendment for adoption.

LEARNING WHILE WE SLEEP

A STUDENT, sleeping with a telephone headset over his ears, can be educated by radio. While he slumbers, knowledge comes thru the phone, into his brain, and stays there almost as indelibly as lessons learned while awake. This apparently was proved at the naval air station, Pensacola, Fla. Now the navy assigns two medical officers to study the matter.

It suggests that the efficiency experts soon may make us get our education while asleep and keep us working all the time we're awake. Will hypnotism become a short-cut to education?

SIMPLE AFTER ALL

EIGHTY-SEVEN out of every 100 wives omit their husbands in their insurance policies and leave their money to some other relative. According to an insurance expert in Philadelphia.

His explanation is that the wives feel if they die their husbands can take care of themselves and don't need money help.

Nevertheless, it's a queer bit of psychology that makes a wife decide against leaving her money to her husband because he doesn't absolutely need it. The answer probably is that the money usually is left to a child or dependent parents. Things that seem "queer" on the surface usually have a simple explanation. Life in its various ramifications is simple, after all, not complicated.

ABE MARTIN

It's gittin' to require twice as much courage to say yes as it ever did to say no. Squire Marsh Swallow, who was poisoned by the evidence, in the Iko Soles case, is still lamin. Belowstairs, with no interest in the furnace, to a nutritious breakfast. Radishes all gone for a time. Out and down Garage avenue, auring invective at the waving plume on my Fall bonnet. Which confused my vision of the passing show. What would Hope do with a such bonnet? Saluted Mr. and Mrs. A. L. White, she turning back up the avenue at Elizabeth. On his descent from the carriage. Paused in brief discourse with Ronald Cuthbert. Whose gas wagon has gone a pretty distance beyond mine, its brother.

At the poste, did not pry into the gleamings from the shoppe's box. They not to come to my notice until I must needs make the replies. Albeit, shall not answer prettily. Until the postman favors me, too. Bowed in pleasant greeting to our one-time neighbor, Mr. Harry Workman.

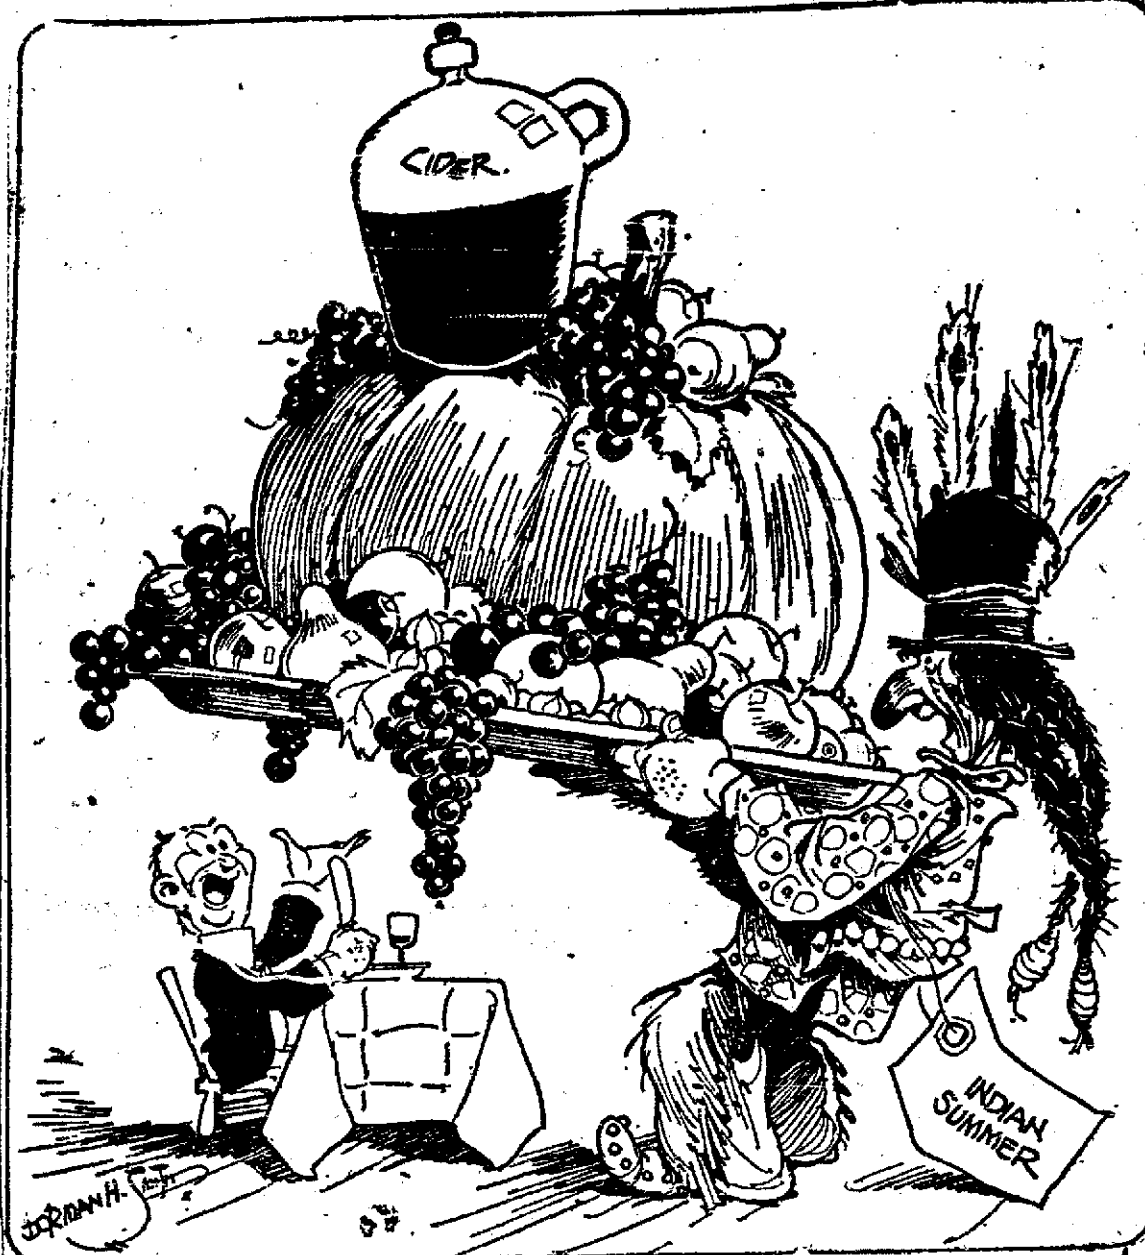

With awe, did make my first attendance at a College Woman's club meeting. Where the inimitable Dr. Elwood spoke. Sat between Miss Ruth Seymour, of the Y. W. C. A. And my one-time relative, Mrs. John Breese. With many other ladies of the import within speaking and nodding distance. And a fine chance it was to gather evidence of all the modish new styles. Saw one love of a hat, which my mother, browbeaten unfortunately, would have encountered with admiration. Enroute to shoppe, parked Dr. Alan Kutley and did compliment him on yesterday's prowess on the links.

With flying footsteps, home to wash away the printer's ink. Against a right smart sprint to the D. J. Cable country place. And the ladies of the honorable Altrurian circle were not yet at table. Where later we did serve them to royal helpings. Of the most delicious chicken and candied sweets I ever did see. And a real Hallowe'en pie for the sweets. Albeit, I rewarded later. After I had smuggled a sugary biscuit to appease the hunger of W. W. Wyre. Grown famished in waiting to escort his mother home. Did really chat with Mrs. Samuel Huecker, at last, and was much pleased thereat. Also seeing Mrs. Fred Bradley and Mrs. Owen once again.

Home in the feeble starlight, which did stud the dark blue heavens right gloriously, mothet. With no preface of a storm. In, to play the ivory, with skill more than rusty. And distracted again thereafter, in my deep musing on the extreme solidity of the German cities. And the unequalled industry and efficient genius of the inhabitants. Albeit, they have not the army, for which we may rejoice in the coffee-shoppe. To the upper story, to lose a delightful hour in the further pursuit of Athos, Porthos, Aramis, and D'Artagnan. Till the 11 o'clock interurban. Thence, without my cup of tea, to set the alarm. And so to bed.

FIRST LESSON IN MATERNITY

The public schools are now offering several kinds of useful instruction, such as carpentering, printing, cooking and sewing. By the time Germany gets ready to pay we may have courses in the Care of the Baby and First Lessons in Matrimony, using for the purpose some of the time now frittered away.

Here's a subject I have always wanted to teach here—First Lessons in Matrimony—for I have the feeling that in a department such as this we should teach not only health but do all we can to dispel the unhappiness and misfortune which overtake so many expectant mothers and experienced mothers. Human life and its perpetuation, surely the most vital and important matters to understand, are carefully omitted from the education of the young, with the result that any animal or any untutored savage or any "ignorant" immigrant is as a general rule more competent to bear and rear offspring than is the "educated" woman. The infants of the crowded tenement dwellers in some parts of New York city have a better chance to survive the first year than the infants of the "four hundred," according to statistics of the health department.

But convention prohibits the publication of the proposed "First Lessons in Matrimony." I could arrange the course, all right, with the help of so many authorities right at my elbow, and I believe I might make it fairly understandable but convention would edit my stuff severely.

Still, I am glad of the opportunity to refer the expectant mother to a master instructor, Mrs. Max West, who prepared the series of pamphlets on the care of children for the children's bureau of the United States department of labor. Mrs. West's first pamphlet is on "Prenatal Care," anybody may obtain a copy by sending 5 cents to the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., and asking for pamphlet on "Prenatal Care" published by United States department of labor children's bureau. Besides giving the expectant mother much sound information which she will find cheering, the pamphlet gives lists of supplies needed, baby's clothing nursery equipment, and the like. Mrs. West prepared the pamphlet with the aid of many authorities, particularly Dr. J. M. Slemmons, whose book "The Prospective Mother" (D. Appleton & Co., New York, N. Y.) is about the best in the field. The excellence of the three pamphlets in this series by Mrs. West, namely, "Infant Care" (10 cents), "Prenatal Care" (5 cents) and "Child Care, the Freshstart Age" (10 cents)—all publications of the Children's bureau, labor department, and obtainable from the government printer is remarkable.

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Goss

THE SICK GOLFER.
I shuddered when I heard him say,
"I am not feeling well today."
I hoped he'd not propose a bet,
I've never licked a sick man yet!

And as we stood upon the tee
A sense of fear came over me—
I heard him talk of asphixia,
And knew I had no chance to win.

I've tackled men with fevers high,
And golfers just about to die,
Neuritis patients, men with boils,
And never gathered in the spoils.

I've played them when they couldn't see,
Set down and moaned at every tee,
Sobbed dolefully their list of ills,
And stopped the game to swallow pills.

I've tackled men with swollen knees
And men with every known disease,
Men who could hardly use their legs,
And never taken home the eggs.

I've played with men whose backs
Were lame,
Men who'd come out to play the game Against the doctor's stern command,
So weak, they said, they couldn't stand.

I've played them after nights of woe
When indigestion laid them low;
And when much younger, and less wise,
With golfers I'd sympathize.

So sorry for their plight I felt,
I could not give the ball a belt—
And then walked up too late to see Those poor sick men outdriving me.

And so I sighed to hear him say:
"I am not feeling well today!"
Though countless invalids I've met,
I've never licked a sick man yet!

Each kept one card. The four then separated and, except for two who were brothers, lost all track of each other.

But on the date designated the four met, each coming from a different direction. Two lived in San Francisco, one in Santa Barbara and one in Calaveras.

Two had fulfilled their stated ambitions, to be a jeweler and a painter respectively. The other two had both said they would be bankers, but one had become a chauffeur and the other an accountant.

Plans Are Completed for Ohio Welfare Conference

SESSIONS OPEN TO PUBLIC

Judge Florence Allen Among Headliners Promised

Local committees working on the plans for the annual session of the Ohio Welfare Conference which opens Tuesday have completed plans and are now waiting for the big opening session which will be held that evening in Memorial Hall. The conference will continue thru the week closing Friday.

Announcement is made that all sessions, luncheons, dinners and division meetings are open to every person who is interested in welfare work in this state.

One of the chief events of the entire week will be the conference banquet which will be held Thursday evening at the Elks' home with Judge Kent W. Hughes of this city as toastmaster and Rabbi Abba Helmi Silver of Cleveland as the principal speaker. He will have as his subject, "The Impulse Back of Social Work."

JUDGE ALLEN COMING
Another meeting in which officials say there is exceptional interest is that of Wednesday night when Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio state supreme court will give an address on the outgrowth of war. Judge Allen, who has been in Europe this summer, has hastened back to Ohio to participate in the conference sessions. She will have European condition today as the background for her address, the local committee has been advised.

Tuesday evening the first general session will be held and this will be a symposium on prison work. Chief interest in this session centers around the address of Dr. Hastings Hart of the Russell Sage Foundation of New York, who will bring to the session his message "New Idea of a Prison." At the same meeting Warden Thomas of the Ohio state penitentiary will give "The Warden's Plan." The other address in this symposium will be by C. Shaw, former chairman of the Ohio prison commission. His subject will be, "The Development of the Ohio Prison Farm at London." Judge Jesse Hamilton of this city will introduce the speakers at the Tuesday evening session.

MAYOR TO WELCOME
Mayor Harold Cunningham will make a short address of welcome Tuesday evening extending the keys of the city to the delegates and visitors who come to the city for the conference sessions. He will then present the chairman of the evening, Rev. Dr. Charles Rowand of the Trinity Methodist church will offer the benediction which will close the initial general session.

Child welfare workers are keenly interested in the announcement that Mrs. Lucia Johnson Bing, chairman of the committee on education and child welfare of the Ohio League of Women Voters will speak at several of the divisional meetings which will be held every day during the entire week. The divisional luncheons Tuesday noon will mark the formal opening of the conference. Division chairman for this year's conference includes:

R. G. Leland, health; T. B. Wilson, adult dependents; Rev. W. H. Kellogg, delinquents; H. D. Wehrly, community organizations; E. G. Eklund, industrial and economic problems, and P. B. Cunningham, children.

As has been announced a number of the leading welfare workers of the state and nation have agreed to act as a consulting staff during the conference when the individual delegates can talk with them personally about particular problems they have to face in their own communities.

PRIZE CUP COMES TO LIMA "Y"

State Membership Champions
Title Won in Campaign

VICTORY BY .6 PER CENT

Local Association Goes Over the 1400 Quota by 63

Lima "Y" won it.
By the narrow margin of six-tenths of one per cent, Lima Y. M. C. A. is winner of the cup offered as a prize in the state-wide enrollment contest held this week. Results tabulated late Friday disclosed the fact that Lima "Y" reached its quota of 1400 members but it was not until final returns were received from all competing cities and rechecked that the nip and tuck race between Lima and Steubenville was decided and winner of the cup made known.
Lima "Y" enrolled a total of 1463 members in the contest, giving the local association a final percentage of 104.6 per cent. Steubenville had a quota of 450 and secured a final total of 476 which gave Lima's nearest competitors a percentage of 106 per cent or .6 per cent behind the winning Lima "Y."

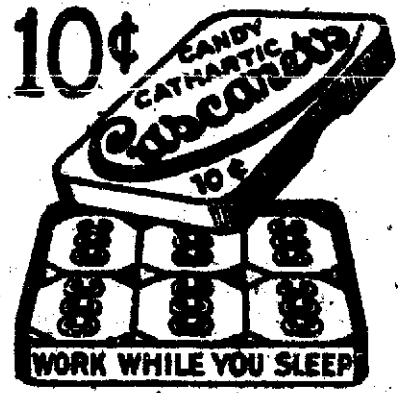

STATE CHAMPIONS
Lima will now receive the handsome silver cup presented by the association college at Chicago and will be known as "Membership Champions of Ohio" for the coming year. The cup will be presented to T. Reid Alexander, local membership secretary for the Lima Y. M. C. A., at a banquet of the International Y's Men's club convention to be held at Canton, Monday evening. The cup will be on display in a downtown window this week and later placed in the lobby of the "Y."

Following is the final standing of the various cities:

City	Goal	Score	Pct.
LIMA	1400	1463	104.6
Steubenville	450	476	106

300 TO WORK FOR COLLEGE FUND

$125,000 Needed In County for Bluffton Institution

PART OF $650,000 NEEDED

H. O. Bentley Announces Plan for Campaign

Three hundred workers next Thursday morning will launch a drive in Allen-co to raise $125,000 as a part of the $625,000 endowment and expansion fund for Bluffton college that the institution may meet the standards of the North Central Association of Colleges.

Future of Bluffton college, H. O. Bentley, chairman of the Allen-co campaign, said will be decided during the week, and every citizen will be asked to aid in contributing toward the necessary fund.

Bentley says Success in Allen-co will mean a gift of $100,000 from a Cleveland friend of education; fulfillment of the pledge of the Mennonite church of North America to give Bluffton $400,000, thereby completing the total fund sought.

Prominent men and women interested in the development of an educational center in the county, second to none in the country, for quality of product—have volunteered their services to help canvass Lima and Allen co for donations.

NO GIFT TOO SMALL Campaign officials are determined to succeed and give Bluffton college the financial means to perform its mission. Large gifts are hoped for but no offering is too small.

Today Bluffton college, its officers point out, meets all but three of the eight requirements of a standard college. These include: Sale value of faculty—$2,500 or more; value of buildings and equipment—$275,000 or more; productive endowment—$500,000 or more.

It meets the requirements in enrollment four times over, in entrance requirement of 14 units, has eight departments with professors in charge, in length of term and in qualifications of faculty.

It needs $100,000 for building and equipment and not less than $350,000 for endowment.

Disposition of the $625,000 fund sought has been decided upon as follows:

Music hall with auditorium, $100,000.

Completion of Lincoln Hall, men's dormitory, $20,000.

For ten years' accumulated maintenance deficits, $55,219.

For maintenance while pledges are being paid, $75,000.

For permanent endowment, $373,584.

The highest salary paid at Bluffton college is $1,000; the average is $1,487.

The campaign will be directed from two division headquarters, Lima and Bluffton. H. O. Bentley, president of the Board of Commerce, is general chairman of the drive, while Dr. Oliver S. Steiner is chairman of the Lima section and David W. Bixler is chairman of the Bluffton section. More than one dozen towns are included in the campaign territory embracing the counties of Allen, Putnam, and Hancock.

Bluffton college was founded in 1900 and had 20 students. Its first year. It was reorganized in 1914, that year marking its first real progress. Today more than 400 students are enrolled and the college buildings are crowded to overflowing.

FIRST OUTSIDE PLEA

This is the first time in its history that the college has asked money outside of Bluffton. It believes it is worthy—that its record justifies support.

ROPP HALL

So far Bluffton has been built largely with small gifts of many friends, accumulating in the years 40 acres of campus, eight buildings and a staff of 28 on the faculty.

"The thing that impresses me about Bluffton is the opportunity its enlargement will afford Allen county boys and girls to obtain a higher education at far less cost than in other colleges of the state or nation," said General Chairman Bentley. "It costs $329 annually to educate students at other colleges in Ohio—at Bluffton it costs $162. Bluffton could increase its costs but it won't—Bluffton is determined to place education within the reach of every boy and girl."

The success of this campaign will give us a college right at home second to none for education."

Dr. Steiner and Mr. Bixler, the division chairmen, in a joint statement on the eve of the campaign, point out that increasing recognition is being given the small college for these reasons:

"The discipline is better, the student body being under better control; it is like a big family with a more democratic spirit; each student's part is dignified by greater importance, the invaluable influence of personal contacts between faculty members and students is increased; the proper character building atmosphere is better and hurtful distinctions less; the student body as a whole is likely to be more in earnest, more ambitious."

ENTERS ATHLETICS

The expansion program is outlined for every department of the college. This year marks the entrance of Bluffton into conference athletics and for the first time the college has a football team in the field.

"We are determined to realize what we feel is our divine call to serve," declared Dr. Mosiman, the president.

Although founded by Mennonites, Bluffton college is not sectarian, it is open to all faiths and creeds. The student body last year represented 19 different religious denominations and its faculty includes persons of Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian and Reformed church connection.

Bluffton college claims to be a producer of producers and points to her graduates as substantiating the claim. Including 71 graduates before the college was reorganized in 1914, 279 have been graduated.

208 with A B and A. M. degrees including 22 teachers in colleges there are 318 Blufftonians engaged in educational work, 63 are in religious work, 47 in business and professions.

The campaign cry will be sounded Wednesday night at Hotel Barr, when all the workers of both Lima and Bluffton divisions will assemble for final instructions.

"Bluffton Must Win" is the campaign slogan.

PURPOSE OF COLLEGE

Purpose of Bluffton college was explained in the following message from Dr S K Mosiman, president: "Bluffton college stands for the development of the highest type of manhood and womanhood on the enduring basis of a vital Christian religion which expresses itself in terms of life and service rather than dogma."

"It believes that the only thing of ultimate value in the world is a human personality and that personality grows by living contact with other personalities."

Hence it endeavors to bring the students into intimate association with Christian teachers and fellow students and aims further to provide the religious atmosphere, the curriculum and the college activities which will inspire the student to order his life in accordance with the principle of love and unselfish service to all mankind enunciated by Christ in the gospels.

"It emphasizes the simple life and the fundamental importance of peace and good will as applied to groups and nations as well as to individuals."

"It aims to inspire the student with sincere love for the truth and to cultivate within him a passion for the truth in the firm trust that 'the truth shall make free'."

LIMA TO OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

American Legion and Board of Commerce Cooperating

Initial steps for the observance of Armistice Day in Lima this year, will be taken by a joint committee representing the American Legion and Board of Commerce at a meeting to be held on a date to be announced during the coming week.

Members of the committee will be appointed by Franklin Cover, for the Legion and James E. Morton for the commerce board.

Armistice Day, Nov. 11, will fall on Sunday, and it is planned to hold memorial services on that date.

The services will be held in Memorial hall. Speakers of state-wide prominence will be engaged for the occasion, it is announced.

The actual observance of the day may be held Monday, when veterans of all past wars and civic and military organizations will participate in a parade.

Plans for the celebration this year are to eclipse the four previous Armistice Day observances held in Lima.

Co-operation of the Board of Commerce in putting over the Armistice Day celebration on a larger scale than ever before was pledged before the Legion Friday night by James E. Morton, secretary of the board.

Among the first steps the committee will take is to call on Mayor Harold Cunningham to issue a proclamation calling for a general observance of the day.

DRY AGENT UNDER 9 INDICTMENTS

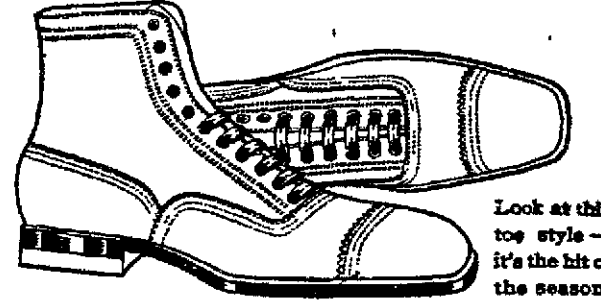

Milan Deputy Charged With Extortion and Embezzlement

SANDUSKY—(Associated Press) John Lowe, 32, deputy employed in the state prohibition inspection department, was Saturday served with nine indictments charging extortion and one charging embezzlement, as a result of a probe of the records of Mayor Beare's court at Milan. Prosecutor Krueger declares Lowe "commercialized his occupation by demanding and receiving excessive fees" from persons arrested on charges of liquor law violation. Lowe worked under special arrangement with the village of Milan, making many arrests in Sandusky and other places in Erie-co and taking the offenders to Milan. Lowe is also under indictment on two counts charging criminal assault and contributing to the delinquency of a minor child. He is held under $4,000 bond. The grand jury will probe the Milan court at a sitting in November.

MAYOR TO PRESS BUILDING CODE

Seeks Definite Action Monday By City Commissioners

FOES OF PLAN CITE COST

Opponents See Zoning System As Proper Solution

Definite action, one way or the other on the proposed building code for Lima will be asked of the city commissioners at their meeting Monday night, Mayor Harold Cunningham let it be known Saturday. He is expected to press the matter.

Copies of the proposed code were delivered to the city commissioners by Chairman Peter Hulsken of the code commission, about a month ago with the understanding that when the commissioners had studied the proposed code they would meet with the code commission and seek an agreement on any disputed points.

Provision is made in the proposed code for a building inspector and assistants and that plans must be drawn in duplicate for all structures estimated to cost $5,000 or more. Some of the city commissioners are said to be opposed to the $5,000 limit believing that it is too low. They say that it will take $5,000 to build only a modest home and that to require the home builder to buy a duplicate set of plans for submission to a city building inspector would be an unnecessary expense.

SEE CODE IMPERATIVE

In discussing the question when the proposed code was submitted to the city commissioners some weeks ago, both Chairman Hulsken of the code commission and Secretary J. E. Morton of the Board of Commerce told the commissioners it is absolutely necessary to have some regulation governing the erection of buildings. They said under present conditions a person can erect almost any sort of a building that is not itself a public nuisance, in any residence section of the city.

Some of the commissioners have expressed belief the better way to handle the situation is to pass a zoning ordinance instead of a building code ordinance. When Mayor Cunningham brings the code question up Monday night it is expected there will be a discussion of both phases of the local building situation.

HEALTH COMMISSIONERS WILL MEET IN LIMA

Next meeting of Northwestern Ohio Health Commissioners will be held in Lima Thursday, October 23. Ohio Welfare Conference will also be held in Lima October 23-24.

Interesting program has been arranged in connection with the commissioners' conference and many members are to be present. Among state health officials who will come to Lima are Dr. R. G. Leland, chief of the division of hygiene, and Dr. F. G. Boudreau, chief of the division of communicable diseases.

WILMINGTON DORMITORY GIVEN TO WILMINGTON COLLEGE

WILMINGTON, Ohio—Announcement was made Saturday that former Congressman and Mrs. Matthew R. Deaver had given a girl's dormitory to Wilmington, the name to be erected as a memorial to Miss Kathryn Deaver, their little daughter, who lost her life in an accident a few years ago.

At the opening of the public campaign for $400,000 for the college last night, preliminary gifts totaling $250,000 were announced.

BIDS MUST BE IN BY MONDAY

That's Last Day To Get Space In City Building

Monday is the last day for persons who desire to rent space in the city building to put in their bids for the store rooms on the ground floor and also the lodge rooms on the third floor of the building.

Up until late Saturday City Manager C. E. Bingham had received notice of but one removal from the building, that of the Western Union Co., which is going to move to the southeast corner of the building at Elizabeth and Market-sts which is now undergoing extensive repairs.

All leases on stores and lodge rooms in the city building expire Dec. 31, 1923, and City Manager Bingham hopes to get bids which will give the city a greater income than heretofore. He said, when he first asked for bids, that many tenants were subsiding at a nice profit with the result that the city was not getting the full income from the use of the building.

FIRST REFORMED CHURCH HAS SPECIAL SERVICES

Special programs will be given at the morning and evening services at First Reformed church Sunday in connection with the sixtieth anniversary of its founding. Anniversary services have been held each evening since Wednesday and Sunday's services will conclude the observance.

Sunday morning services will represent the anniversary and home-coming. Dr. J. M. G. Darms, of the Mission House, and Rev. T. P. Bollinger, D. D., Madison, Wis., general secretary of Home Missions, will be the principal speakers. Rev. Bollinger will give the anniversary address, while Rev. Darms will deliver the sermon at the evening service.

Application for a divorce filed by Paul Mummaugh, 25, against Mrs. Jessie Mummaugh, heard Saturday was taken under advisement by Judge Fred C. Becker.

U. S. ON TRAIL OF DELINQUENTS

Narcotic Dispensers Fail to Register, Says Collector.

There are 3,700 registrants in this collection district who hold permits from the federal government to dispense and use narcotics, according to a survey of the district just completed and made public by Internal Revenue Collector Charles H. Nauts of Toledo.

Nauts' report also shows there are about 25 delinquents in the district who have failed to register. He later says even the they so narcotics on hand they must register, failure to do so carrying with it a penalty of $2,000 or imprisonment for five years in a federal penitentiary or both.

Collector Nauts has prepared a list of these delinquents and field agents will be sent out in a short time to round them up and bring them into court. They should have registered not later than July 1, 1923, his letter to deputy collectors says.

LEGION PLANNING SERIES OF INTERESTING PARTIES

William Paul Gallagher Post, American Legion, is planning a number of social events to be held for divertimento of members during the remainder of the year. It was announced by Franklin Cover, post commander.

The initial affair will be a Halloween party to be held in Knights of Pythias hall, Oct. 25. The formal ritual of the post will be put on by the officers and members. Dancing, cards and music will be features of the evening.

Coffee, apple cider and pumpkin pie will be served by the ladies' auxiliary.

Other social events are to be Armistice Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas parties.

DISTRICT INSURANCE MEN ARE BANQUETED AT THE BARR HOTEL

Officers and agents of the Lima district of the Western & Southern Life Insurance Co. were guests at a banquet at the Barr hotel Saturday night. Affair was attended by 40 persons which included a number of insurance men outside of the Lima district.

Murray L. Conn, superintendent of insurance for Ohio, was the principal speaker.

Conn had many fine things to say to workers in the Lima district. The speaker gave a number of interesting figures dealing with life insurance business, declaring it no longer is an avocation for persons seeking something to do on the side, but is a profession requiring the highest type of character in man.

Among things spoke of was the Ohio license law requiring licenses be issued to salesmen of insurance, and also comparative sales of life insurance policies with other sales. People in this country spent five billion for automobiles in 1922 as against a billion and a half for life insurance, Conn declared. Men in Ohio approximately $125,000,000 for cigars and cigarettes as against less than $110,000,000 for life insurance during 1922.

Conn, speaking of the state insurance department, said the difference between supervision and regulation of insurance companies should be borne in mind, declaring that when Ohio as a state entered the insurance business, the companies would have to quit.

Other speakers were L. F. Mackley, Samuel H. Smith, Joseph D. Cassidy, Cincinnati; R. G. Hartling, Detroit; Dr. J. B. Poling and Dr. F. W. Smith, Lima.

BOOST PARALLEL PARKING

City Officials Believe System Has Given Satisfaction

After one week's trial of parallel parking, complete satisfaction with the system is expressed by city officials.

Beside providing more space, a paramount issue in the stringent congestion, more operating space on the streets tend to greatly reduce the number of accidents, officials say.

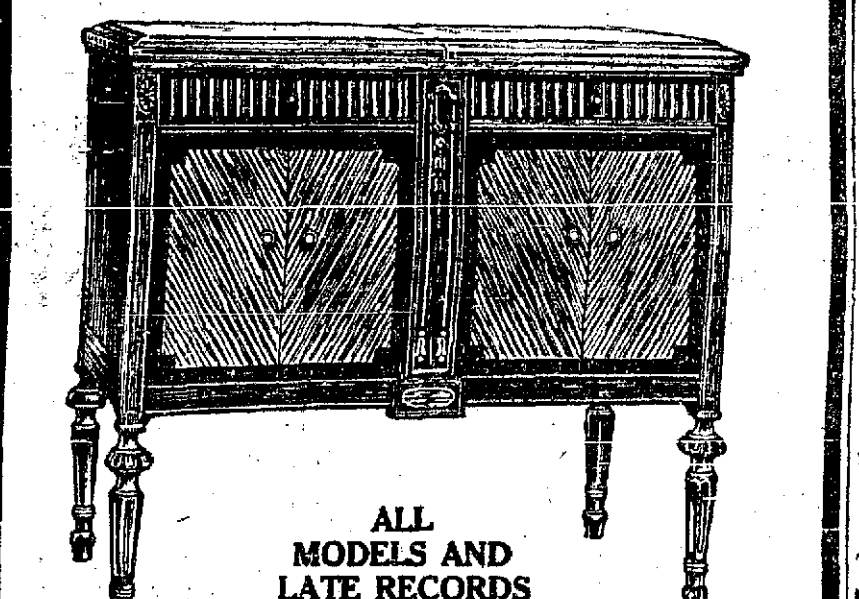

Police Chief Lanter approves the system and is exerting efforts in education of the public in the new system which is enforced over the city with the exception of Main-st and Market-sts.

Revised traffic code formulated by the appointive traffic commission is pending before city commissioners for passage. It probably will be introduced Monday night at commissioners' meeting.

Southworth Of Boston Braves Will Help Locals Defeat Strong Wapak Reds Today

Wapak Reds and Locals To Clash For Championship Of Three Counties Today

There is one thing certain, it is as needless as to try to forecast a world's series game, as it is to know whether one will see a ball game on the local grounds, played entirely by league players, or the reverse. Halloran is out with the statement that in the game this afternoon Billy Southworth, captain and star player of the Boston Braves, will be in a local uniform, playing against the Wapak Reds. This figures practically an all league team.

But the funny part of this no limit standpoint of these teams, is the fact that Wapak is doing the same thing as Halloran is doing, so there is no telling who will be in the lineup for the visitors, and it would not be surprising to see Bubbles Hargrave, star catcher for Cincinnati Reds, or someone else of equal calibre. There is a deadly rivalry, and the local fans of Wapakoneta have put their hands down in their pocket, sparing no expense towards getting a team together that will defeat Lima.

It is past history now; everybody knows that the Wapak Reds won handsily from Lima on their last visit; they are after the championship of this part of the country, if within the scope of human endeavor. "Lefty" Houtz is an old veteran at the game; he knows all the five points; knows the playing strength of Lima, and knows where to lay his hands on players, just a little better, or at least thinks he does. So this knowledge corroborates the statement that the lineup of both teams is mostly likely to contain names of ball players of national reputation.

Big Bill Moretette, American League star, will be on the mound for Lima, that is sure. He did so well against the strong hitting Delphos team, that Halloran is banking on him to turn the trick in the game this afternoon. Bobby Wells will be behind the bat, with Pittenger and Heath playing important positions. With Billy Southworth in the field, and Gilchooley, Schaffer, Poorman and Costello, helping to do their share, it is certain that Wapak will have to demonstrate playing strength, both at the bat and in the field, to expect anything but a defeat. Wapak must win this game to hold on to the chance of winning the championship. Should Lima win, it will conclude the series and the championship of the three counties.

It is stated on good authority that no less than 300 good, loyal fans will be with the Wapak Reds, to help them on to victory, so far as the tactics with a long triple over his brother's Emil's head in left field and Dugan and Ruth cantered home with the fifth and sixth runs. That blow knocked out Ryan and McQuillan ended the inning by causing Pipp to fly out to Stengel.

Witt's Gorbie in the third, his third straight hit, scored Ward, who had walked and advanced on Scott's single, with the seventh Yankee run. The eight and last came in the fourth when Ruth walked and tallied on hits by Pipp and Ward. Only twice thereafter did the Yanks get a man as far as second, Shawkey reaching the keystone sack in the fifth on his single and Witt's sacrifice, while Ruth doubled in the eighth.

Meanwhile the Giants were hitting Shawkey freely but not in the pinch. Twice they were checked by double plays, one engineered by Dugan in the seventh that stands out among the most sparkling defensive feats of the championship.

Bentley, batting for McQuillan. Texas leaguer to left to start this inning. Bancroft caught one of Shawkey's curves and sent it crashing on a line toward left field labeled, it seemed, a certain hit. But Dugan lunged instinctively, shot out his gloved hand and the ball struck. Maguire running for Bentley, was off to second with the crack of the bat and was easily doubled as Dugan completed his marvelous play.

Not long ago two young boys came to Havana from Maryland, put up at an expensive hotel, and began looking for jobs. Their small savings melted away in a few days, and while the American consul was seeking a chance for them to work their way home on a ship, Mr. and Mrs. Bratzel were keeping the lads out of mischief and in food.

Another interesting was the return home of an American drug addict whose papers showed he had held an army commission during the World war, and on the same ship with this man, went a negro woman, stranded in Havana, whose son in New Orleans had been located by the secretary of the "M. M. Y."

BILLY SOUTHWORTH

Billy Southworth, who will play with Lima today against the Wapak Reds, is captain of the Boston Braves. He is one of the most valuable players in the National league. His home is in Columbus, Ohio.

Bill learned the rudiments of the game with Portsmouth, of the Ohio State league. He was drafted by Cleveland, who farmed him to Toledo in 1912; was recalled in 1914 and played with the Indians until 1916, when he went to Portland of the Pacific Coast league. He drifted back in 1917 and 1918 to Birmingham of the Southern league, and from there went to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

He finally landed in Boston. He is one of the most valued players of the Braves. He is able to turn the Wapak pitcher pale, when he comes to the plate. He batted for an average of .305 in 1922 and this season is among the choice hitters of the league with a batting average of .321.

He expressed his opinion to the Lima News Sports editor that the Giants were most likely to win the world's series.

As A Matter of Fact

BY HARRY BRADBURY
Sports Editor

In the last few years the wrestling game, from a sporting point of view, has increased in importance. There have been enumerable bouts which did not seem honest or fair. Under the supervision of the Commission that there will be a greater degree of confidence with the public.

The hippodroming of championship matches in the past has set a dampening effect which leaves the title empty in importance. In the past it has been a hard game for the wrestler on account of these influences. The new laws in the state of New York will be to elevate the game and to make the title of champion of greater value. This is substantiated when we consider what the A. A. U. has done for amateur sport. It is regarded as part of the curriculum of every important college and the enthusiastic spirit of all games is entered into with a spirit dominating the whole country.

Let professional sport of all kinds come under the jurisdiction of the state board. It will elevate the game, and purge it of objectionable features which have predominated. Keep the gambling element out of it.

With a feeling of confidence hereafter in the wrestling game, there will be correspondingly a higher interest in champions. Stanislaus Zbyszek—proper name Stanislaus Zbyszek—the forty-two year old gladiator who gained the last championship.

It is not often that a man so old as Zbyszek—pronounced Zabisco—has been successful. Wrestling is the most strenuous game in all the category of sports, unless we except the Marathon runner. It requires, not alone, stamina but great strength, and these as a rule slip away from the athlete long before he reaches his fortieth year. But with this man there is an example to be pointed out to the student of right living and the young fellow given to dissipation.

With a strength rarely possessed by the human being Zbyszek has retained it together with suppleness, quickness and heart action as regular as the beating of a clock thru living right. The philosopher who once said he did not see any reason why a human should not live two or three hundred years if he lived right, brings this wrestler more into mind as a glorious example against the idle and dissipated.

Like so many of the greatest wrestlers Zbyszek is foreign born, and comes from near Krakow, the ancient capital of Poland. The schools of that country are noted for their athletic training, and it was in one of them he learned the rudiments of wrestling. At an early age he made a trip thruout several countries of Europe and threw practically all the best men, after which he came to this country. He says the American wrestler is the best in the world. He has the American spirit, as well as the American proclivity for making money. He owns a large farm at Oyster Bay, Me.

But at forty-two, champion wrestler of the world, that is the wonder part of this physical giant.

There is just one other example among the wrestlers who extended his years of usefulness. Farmer Burns was the miracle man of all the wrestlers. He was active until his forty-fifth year. He was a model of deportment, lived the simple life and retained his great strength and suppleness until he was several years older. Burns now 64 of age is running a sanatorium in Omaha, Neb., where he is building up the run-down constitutions of the overworked businessmen. He is more of the freak human than Zbyszek for the reason that he is a much smaller man, possessing marvelous strength, and all the other attributes that go to make up a champion. He probably knew the game better than any other man of modern times. He possessed his strength thru applying himself to the best hygienic rules. It is a valuable lesson to learn. Burns principle diet was milk.

Zbyszek states that there may be wrestlers in China and Japan as old as he, but in no other country. He declares himself willing and ready to defend his title against all comers.

He should have an easier time now that the state of New York has declared wrestling included in professional sports. With laws governing the ancient game there is sure to be an improvement noticeable. The shady influences which have demoralized the order of the sport will be obliterated. It is to be hoped that other states having boxing laws will add wrestling.

Here is just ONE example of the excellent results gained by using LIMA NEWS WANT ADS.

Tuesday, Oct. 16—Market Street Presbyterian vs. Emmanuel Lutheran; First Congregational vs. Central Church of Christ.

Wednesday, Oct. 17—Trinity M. E. vs. Grace M. E.; Epworth M. E. vs. First Christian.

ALL STAR LEAGUE

One of the late leagues to be formed in Lima is The All Stars, made up from among the best bowlers in the city. The league will be composed of eight five-men teams. The games will be bowled over the Recreation alleys. The teams are as follows: Harley Davidson, Little Odin, Sigma Theatre, Bantam, Coles Specials, El Versos, Bernard Bolders and San Felice. The schedule will begin October 15.

Joe Lynch, bantamweight, breaks forth with a long statement in his behalf following his reinstatement with the New York State Boxing Commission, along with his manager Eddie Mead.

The bantamweight champion has gone thru the formality of posting a $2500 challenge forfeit for the Burman match. Lynch now claims that he does not fear Joe Burman or any bantamweight or featherweight alive.

He is so sure that he will defeat Joe Burman when they meet in a 15 round match at Madison Square Garden, Friday that he now challenges Johnny Dundee, to meet him within 60 days following the Burman fight, in a match for the featherweight championship of the world.

Joe makes no bones of the fact that the Burman match is not as tough a one as the fans and writers think. Lynch states that he has boxed Burman five times. Burman always weighed 122-123 pounds in the five no-decision battles.

The "Hell's Kitchen" Irishman declares that Burman will be forced to make the bantam limit 115 pounds at 2 o'clock. Lynch states that he has been a bantam for years and knows the trouble and worry accompanying weightmaking.

Joe states that a fighter doing 115 pounds, must necessarily train for 117 pounds. Burman and Lynch have posed $5,000 weight forfeits.

Also newspaper critics were divided as to the winner of the five no-decision battles Lynch engaged in with Burman, Joe states that in his opinion he was the winner in each start.

Lynch bases his hope for a knock-out victory over Burman inside of 13 rounds on the form he has displayed against the Chicago star by conceding him four to six pounds in their Illinois battles.

Burman will be making weight for the first time in two years. He will be under the mental strain of boxing a lad who is recognized as the champion of the world of his own domicile.

Brains Proved Superior To Brawn When Central Hi Beat Findlay Easily 19-0

Superior knowledge of the game, open field generalship and speed over beef and brute strength was demonstrated to complete satisfaction of nearly 2,000 football enthusiasts Saturday afternoon at College field when Central High's undersized eleven romped over the highly touted Findlay eleven for three touchdowns. The final score was 19-0.

Coach Thiebert's open game completely bewildered the slow moving and slow thinking Findlay team. Passes completed with regularity, aided by split formations and jump formations, were contributing factors in the three touchdowns of the prettiest scholastic gridiron struggle witnessed here this season.

Thiebert's game was a Knute Rockne, Notre Dame, game by hard playing high school athletes. It was the kind of a game Central is depending on to win from all indications Saturday Central looms as one of the most dangerous teams in this section of the state.

Offensive strength produced the three scores but on defensive Central played a bang up game which should be given special credit as Findlay outweighed the locals at least 20 pounds to the man.

Findlay's continual pounding of the line, while producing results in mid field, fell flat when in the shadows of Central's goal line, and in the aerial game Findlay was woefully weak, completing only four passes for a scant 45 yards. The game follows:

FIRST QUARTER
Stanyer kicked off to Marquet at the 25 yard line and the latter returned it to the middle of the field. With a series of line bucks and a 7 yard gain, Central gained the first down. Findlay tried the Central line but was forced to punt. Schuchardt booted away for 35 yards. On the 15 yard line, Michael punted back to Voreas at the 60 and he returned 10 yards. Findlay tried a normal attack but it failed and Schuchardt again punned. This time over the goal line. Michael gained 11 on an end run and punted to their 25 yard line and the latter returned it to the 17 yard line. On an exchange of punts Findlay was taken back to its own 30 yard line. Schuchardt punted to the 50 yard line and the latter carried the ball to the 47. Central started to use her effective split line plays at this time and in a brilliant march down the line carried the ball to the 40 yard line and first down. Michael made 6 thru the line and on the next play carried the ball over for the first play down of the game. Taylor droppedkick on the try for extra point. Score, Central 7, Findlay 0.

Stanyer kicked off to Meins at the 30 yard line and he returned 12 yards to the 42 yard line. Findlay gained a couple of line bucks and Schuchardt punted to Michael on the latter's 15 yard line the ball being returned 7 yards to the 22 yard line. Central punned the Findlay line in three attempts for a first down but they held on the next series of 44 yards. Michael gained 2 in the middle of the field, Schuchardt returning to the 32 yard line. The quarter ended here.

SECOND QUARTER
Findlay's ball on the Central 33 yard line. After trying the Central line twice, Schuchardt punted to the 30 yards across the goal line. Referee Swisher called the ball back declaring that it was to be outside. Central held after good work by the opposing backs and Central recovered the ball on her 22 yard line. On the next play, Taylor to Michael to Poline gained 20 yards. It was a beautifully executed play. Ebling smashed left tackle for 8 and Mike hit the same hole for 6 more. It was Central's ball on their 10 yard line first down. Bayh 7 off tackle. Poline went over for the second touchdown. Taylor missed the try for extra point. Score, Central 14, Findlay 0.

Stanyer kicked off to Marquet at the 25 yard line and he was thrown out side at the 30 yard line. Bucks against the impetuous local line having failed, Schuchardt punted to Taylor on the latter's 25 and he returned 10. Passes and bucks failed and Taylor punted to Schuchardt at the 44 and Poline kicked him. They made a first down on successive line bucks. Schuchardt passed to Ross for the 29 yard gain. Findlay's ball on the Central 25 yard line. Michael grabbed a fumbled forward pass on the 10 yard line and returned it to his own 20 yard line.

THIRD QUARTER
Schuchardt kicked off to Taylor at the latter's 5 yard line and he returned it 5 yards. Michael made 5 around left end. Bayh sliced center for 3 and Poline went off tackle for 3 more. Central held after good work by the opposing backs and Central recovered the ball on her 22 yard line. On the next play, Taylor to Michael to Poline gained 20 yards. It was a beautifully executed play. Ebling smashed left tackle for 8 and Mike hit the same hole for 6 more. It was Central's ball on their 10 yard line first down. Bayh 7 off tackle. Poline went over for the second touchdown. Taylor missed the try for extra point. Score, Central 14, Findlay 0.

Stanyer kicked off to Marquet at the 25 yard line and he was thrown out side at the 30 yard line. Bucks against the impetuous local line having failed, Schuchardt punted to Taylor on the latter's 25 and he returned 10. Passes and bucks failed and Taylor punted to Schuchardt at the 44 and Poline kicked him. They made a first down on successive line bucks. Schuchardt passed to Ross for the 29 yard gain. Findlay's ball on the Central 25 yard line. Michael grabbed a fumbled forward pass on the 10 yard line and returned it to his own 20 yard line.

FOURTH QUARTER
Michael passed to Taylor for a 4 yard gain. E. Blatter (sub for Bayh) 4 and first down. Findlay recovered the ball on Blatter's fumble. Findlay attempted to pass but Taylor grabbed it up and returned it to the middle of the field. Both teams were unable to make substantial gains because of the splendid work of the lines, each quarterback resorting to the kicking game. Central finally started an offensive campaign that told, starting from her own 35 yard line. Michael 3 off tackle. Mike passed to Taylor for a gain of 8 yards. Blatter made 8 on a split line play. Ebling 7. Michael ran 25 yards thru a broken field on the next play. Central's ball on the victor's 10. Central first down on alternate plays by each back fielder. First down and goal to make. Michael obliged when he made an off tackle smash for the last touchdown of the game. Taylor missed the try for extra point. Score, Central 19, Findlay 0.

Stanyer kicked off to Dye at the 20 yard line and the latter returned it 11 yards where he was stopped with a killing tackle by Poline. Findlay tried passes and bucks but they failed as Findlay went off. Final score, Central 19, Findlay 0.

ST. JOHNS ARE IN FOR BUSY SEASON
First week practice in basketball at the local St. John's High school, proved to be highly beneficial both to the players and Coach Heitz; for the players it served to put them in condition while for the coach it gave him the satisfaction of seeing the earnestness of the players striving for a position on the team and of the abundance of material he has to work with.

The initial game of the year has definitely been settled by Manager Quinlan who has booked a game with Delphos, at Delphos, Nov. 18. Games will follow with La Fayette and Waynesfield according to present plans.

With scarcely five weeks to whip a team into shape for the first frats, Coach Weitz has the following list of candidates to select a team from: Henry Kayser, Farley and Vansky, last year's regulars, together with Mumaugh, Schrock, Murray, Johnson and several freshmen and sophomores.

Coach Weitz is also in negotiation with the strong St. Marys Cathedral High team of Chicago for a game to be played there sometime during the latter part of the coming season. It is highly probable that the game will be scheduled, and if so, it will give the local boys a big boost in scholastic circles.

With everyone working for the best interests of the team, St. John's is contemplating on turning out the best basketball squad in the history of the institution.

THE EVOLUTION OF TRANSPORTATION

THE early man walked or crawled, he carried his burden on his back. Later, he learned to use the ox, camel, mule or horse.

Then man found an easier way. A bigger load could be transported by using an improvised sled. This was the mode about five thousand years ago.

The wheel came next and the Pharaohs of Egypt are recorded as being the first to put this form in use.

The stage coach, traveling about four miles an hour, and considered a dangerous innovation so far as the general public was concerned, was put in operation about two hundred and fifty years ago in England.

The cart, wagon and stage coach were improved upon, from time to time, but the big innovation was the steam carriage invented by a Frenchman in 1770, improved upon by Murdoch, Trevithick and Stephenson. From time to time, improvement has been made until now we have the very comfortable means of transportation called "Transcontinental Trains."

Elwood Haynes built the first successfully operated gasoline car, and was followed by Duryea and Ford; the mad rush was on. Today, we think nothing of going faster than a locomotive. In 1922, more than twelve million cars and trucks were registered as being in use; more than eighty percent of these were owned in the United States; and these cars probably carried 8,000,000 passengers during the year. More than one hundred thousand physicians were among the number, and no doubt did twice as much work as they could otherwise have done without the automobile. Millions of others went to and from their work, while millions more appreciated the wonderful pleasure derived from the use of the automobile.

All of this leads us to say that but for the industry of manufacturing storage batteries these twelve million cars would have stood idle by the roadside. There has, perhaps, been less improvement in the battery than in any other integral part of the automobile since the early mode.

Most cars require a six volt battery. All six volt batteries have three cells each, and in each cell are plates—positive and negative—and these are connected by lead connectors and separated by specially provided separators. We mention this, so that you may understand that in a general way, all batteries are constructed alike, and except for workmanship, there is little mechanical difference.

Blue Ribbon Battery solution is made from chemicals so compounded, blended, annealed, dissolved and held in suspension, that it utilizes the sulphation of the plates; that is to say, when united with active material on the positive plates called "lead peroxide," and the negative plate material called "sponge metallic lead" it creates a primary electro-chemical action, which produces electrical energy under certain conditions.

DOWN THE ROAD—To Go or Not Go—That Is the Question

—By Beck

THE TIME YOU WERE CAUGHT ON A DESERT ROAD BEHIND A STALLED CAR WITH NOTHING BUT DRIFTING SAND TO DETOUR IN—

CLOSED CARS NOW REPLACE OPEN

"In the closed car idea lies the hope of prosperity for the motor car industry," said D. M. Cleveland, Hudson-Essex distributor today.

"The big business in the next few years will be replacing open cars with enclosed ones."

"It is a fact that three out of five open-car owners want enclosed cars. That means that the present preponderance of open cars will have to be reversed in favor of a balance of enclosed ones."

"Just that market alone is going to keep the automobile business active, and that means that the related lines of textiles, leather, lumber and metal will likewise be busy and prosperous."

"Since Hudson became a specialist in enclosed cars, its factory has been operated at maximum speed, and today is turning out more Super-Sixes than ever before in its history in an attempt to catch up with public demand."

"Let us analyze what the Coach is. To the public it is an enclosed car at an open car price. To the manufacturer, it is an enclosed car so designed that it can be manufactured in volume under the best scientific, progressive assembly methods, with very great economies due to its volume. To the dealer it is a car which sells very fast and easily, and which therefore does not pile up various high sales expenses. All down the line, the Coach is a product which can be supplied to the customer at an extraordinary price, without the slightest compromise in the quality of materials or workmanship."

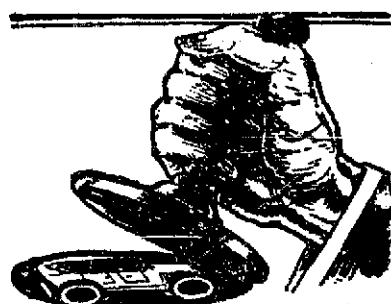

"One of the great advantages of enclosed car ownership is that the resale value is high. There is nothing theoretical about that. The classified-ad columns of the daily papers will prove it. Indeed if this factor is taken into consideration, as it certainly should be, the owner will find that he can own an enclosed car more cheaply than he can an open one, and have the much greater service besides. Of course, the original enclosed car must have been purchased at a reasonable price."

"When I talk to car buyers, I am more and more impressed with their viewpoint on prices. They believe that enclosed cars must come down in price—and I agree with them. Quality must be present of course, but there must be quality, utility and low price, and not simply quality alone at an inflated price."

DANGER HOUR 5 P. M.

Five o'clock in the afternoon is considered the most dangerous hour for automobile traffic of the day and night. The Connecticut department of motor vehicles counted the machines on heavy traffic streets during the day and came to this conclusion.

SUCCESSFUL men abhor rubber stamps—in people, clothes and cars. Lexington drivers are invariably prosperous individuals who could pay twice the price for a car of greater dignity, individuality and dependability were built.

JEWETT SIX

PAIGE BUILT

$1065
At Detroit

Look at the Way It's Built—
A Sturdy Six—Not a Light Six

SOME folks make a mistake. They class the new Jewett Six with "light" sixes. It costs so little more than "light" sixes. But Jewett is a very different car. It is sturdy, powerful, rugged, fine performing.

To find a car of the new Jewett's sturdiness you must pay $200 to $500 more. It is the only car in the thousand-dollar field built first for sturdiness, dependability and performance. Jewett's six-cylinder, 50 horse-power motor fills the hood. One look at the motor of any other comparable car and you'll realize why Jewett will pass most any car on a hill. Jewett accelerates from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high gear. Such power was never before put into a car this size.

Nor is any car near the new Jewett's size and price so strongly built. Jewett touring car weighs 2805 lbs. without equipment. This is 200 to 400 lbs. more than "light" sixes. These additional pounds mean sturdier construction—thousands and thousands of miles—longer life. And more comfort and smoothness every one of these miles!

Ask any Jewett owner to lift the hood and show you the way Jewett's built. Or come in and let us show you, not only the motor, but the 6-inch-deep frame, Paige-Timken axles, front and rear, all-steel universal joints, and springs that are 80% of its wheelbase. Then you'll see why Jewett is called a Sturdy Six! [C2]

We extend you a cordial invitation to visit the new Chandler headquarters.
You will find on display the

containing the finest power plant assembly ever placed in a motor car, the

PIKES PEAK MOTOR

and the

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION

With its nationally established high gear supremacy, the Pikes Peak Motor provides a range of performance unsurpassed by any car costing up to $3000.

And the Traffic Transmission (used only in the Chandler) completely eliminates the evils of the old-fashioned gear shift, permitting the least experienced driver to change speeds instantly and without clashing.

We urge you to try the 1924 Chandler and experience the extraordinary delights it now gives to driving. Ten minutes at the wheel tells all!

We take special pride in the completeness of our service facilities and our service policies. And it is our purpose to place at the disposal of present Chandler owners a car maintenance service, which, in promptness and general satisfaction, leaves nothing to be desired.

The Traffic Transmission is built complete at the Chandler plant under Campbell patents.

CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY

When reports of Interstate Commission show that 421 persons were killed and 1383 were injured at railroad grade crossings during the first quarter of 1923, when recent Monday morning papers told of from 15 to 20 killed on the preceding Sunday, every motorist who loves his life must consider the chances against him if he persists in lack of caution.

Unless there is an instant, right-about-face by motorists in general, the grade-crossing fatalities will soon increase in motor cars during the last few months places a million more lives in such danger than there were in the early part of 1922. The roads are more and more crowded, and the difficulties facing highway users because of reckless drivers are increasing. The law of averages calls for an increased caution to those who would be safe, and make the highways safe for the rest of the people.

In the old days rarely a man thought of crossing a railroad grade crossing unless he first changed into lower gear. This slowed him before he attempted to run up the slight rise that marks a large part of the open-country grade crossings. His old style car could then make the grade with ease and safety, and he knew that in second or low it was quite impossible that the motor could stall no matter how much gas he fed into the carburetor by throttle or accelerator.

In these days every smart aleck attempts to do everything "in high." Many a driver who is not at all of this type also tries this stunt. Perhaps a few over-enthusiastic salesmen, dealers and a few manufacturers are partly to blame because of their constant boasting that "this car will go anywhere in high."

It is to be noted that there is not a single gasoline driven car on the market that is made without a change-of-gear set or appliance. If second gear or even "low" were unnecessary, do you think the makers would go on putting such an expensive verniform appendix into their cars?

You can bet a stack of gold eagles that if there is a gear set in the car, the maker figured that at times "second speed," or "low," is necessary, and advisable for the motor and the safety of motorists. In the hands of an expert some cars can do almost anything in high, from starting from a standstill to climbing many of the steep hills. Perhaps there is such an expert among 10,000 people. They are quite rare.

As long as manufacturers equip their products with second and low speed gears, the humble motorists may take it for granted that they are absolutely essential for proper operation of those cars. Half the news-paper tales one reads of grade-crossing accidents hint that the "car stalled" on the track, or the driver "killed" his engine. Panicky fear, realized too late, has much to do with it, but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, you will find that the car was being operated in high gear.

Often the stricken car is not running at a high rate of speed. Suddenly the driver realizes he is in danger and he tramps on the accelerator or opens the throttle wide. In high gear, and with the little grade to climb that is so often found in such places, too much gasoline is fed to the laboring engine. It chokes and dies, and the reporters and the doctors or the undertakers have another grim and needless job.

The very act of checking up the car at an approach to a "crossing" to change into a lower "speed gear" puts the car under complete control. If a sudden stop is necessary, it can be made. If the way seems clear and the car goes on under second or low, it can be spurred quickly with no fear of stalling the motor if the engine is operating normally. It is a simple procedure and will save many hundreds of lives every year if the wise old method is followed at least by those who do not qualify as experts, who never lose their heads and always act coolly in the face of death.

It would take some twelve billions of dollars and several years to eliminate all the highway grade crossings of the country. Much is being done for highway crossing betterment, but for several years even some very important highways will have such danger spots. The federal bureau of roads in co-operating with state highway departments in building federal aid roads is doing much for safety along these lines.

Among the 13,000,000 motorists there must be many who have to be guarded for the public good. They can be made to be better motorists. In time every state will demand a motor driving license and proof that the fellow who buys can be depended upon to operate his vehicle intelligently.

In time even those who are injured by their own recklessness will be prosecuted for negligence. In the meantime those who want to live to drive another season can go into "second or low" when approaching grade crossings where there is any doubt and help keep down the motor accident records that at times reproach the intelligence of the average driver.

N. M. A. TO MEET IN D. C.

N. M. A. TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

General plans for the annual convention of the National Motorists' Association already are beginning to take shape along the lines of comprehensive policies to be adopted officially as the organization's program for 1924. The convention will be held in Washington, D. C., on November 16th and 17th.

This program, according to Judge Walter D. Meals, president of the N. M. A., will include the following principal objectives:

(1). Nation-wide campaign to extend the pioneer safety work of automobile clubs, on the basis of practical methods for eliminating traffic hazards, improving streets and highways, and promoting sane regulations, rather than on the basis of spasmodic safety slogan campaigns.

(2). Correlation of anti-theft work throughout the country, by means of closer co-operation among hundreds of automobile clubs.

(3). Interchange of legislative experiences for the purpose of advancing uniform automobile laws, so far as practical with reference to peculiar local conditions.

(4). Development of a country-wide system of emergency mechanical and touring aid, so that eventually the tourist will be able to find service through the chains of official automobile club garages radiating in every direction, through every state federated in the National Motorists' Association.

(5). Standardization of motor vehicle headlight regulations, so that motorists may have sufficient driving light without endangering other vehicles by glare; and so that the manufacturer's problem of meeting the great variety of requirements in the various states will be simplified.

(6). Extension of the campaign against fakes and frauds that sell questionable merchandizing and service to the motorist.

(7). Intensive development of good roads work, and of touring service.

(8). Improvement and modernization of internal automobile club organization and operation for the purpose of bettering the service given to members.

"These policies, which were analyzed thoroughly at the convention of N. M. A. secretaries last week, mark a new advance in the work of motorist organizations," Judge Meals said. "They constitute incontrovertible evidence of the fact that the hundreds of clubs affiliated with the N. M. A. are keeping ahead of the tremendous extension of the automobile industry. As a result of the aggressiveness and foresight which these policies indicate, the recent conference brought seven new clubs to join the N. M. A., and for the same reason, thousands of automobile owners all over the country are enrolling in clubs every week."

SAFETY LESSON FOR AUTO DRIVER AUTO LIGHTS

No. 20
Prepared exclusively for the Lima News by the National Safety Council.

1. Modern laws on this subject now require that from 20 minutes after sunset until 30 minutes before sunrise (one hour in some states), no motor vehicle should be operated unless it has sufficient lights, so adjusted and operated as to render the highway safe for all the public.

2. The headlights should enable the driver to distinguish clearly a person, vehicle, or substantial object at least 200 feet ahead. Dangerous glare or dazzle should be avoided.

3. Cars should display:

a. Two headlights when in motion, one on each side, both lights of equal power. Headlights to be white or tinted, never red.

b. One or two headlights when standing still. Lights should be visible at a distance of at least 500 feet.

c. One tail-light, red, that is visible at a distance of at least 500 feet. Light should be displayed whether car is in motion or standing. Tail-light should be at left of center of car and illuminate number plate with a white light.

4. The Illuminating Engineering Society after considerable investigation and experimentation has formulated the following table of headlight intensities. If headlights conform to this table, all dangerous or dazzling glare will be eliminated. Tests can be made with a portable photometer where readings are indicated in foot-candles. These readings are resolved into candle-power at the light source by applying the rule of elimination varies inversely as the square of the distance. Thus 1 foot-candle at a distance of 100 feet indicates a light source of 10,000 candle-power; a reading of 2 foot-candles at a distance of 100 feet indicates a light source of 20,000 candle-power.

California, Connecticut, Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin have laws enforcing these intensity requirements. Pennsylvania and California specify 1,200 candle-power minimum for test Nos. 1 and 2. Pennsylvania specifies 800 candle-power for tests Nos. 5 and 6. California has no specification for tests Nos. 5 and 6. This list includes state legislation of 1920.

5. Important points are:

a. Equip headlights with proper device to make their lights conform to the above table.

b. Install lamps whose candle-power corresponds to the device used.

c. Focus lamps in reflectors according to requirements of device used.

(Next Sunday's Lesson—The Safe Driver).

STUDEBAKER WINS PINE PEAK CLIMB

Charles H. Myers, of Colorado Springs, driving a 1921 Studebaker Big-Six, won event No. 3 in the recent annual Pike's Peak national hill climb.

The race was over a course of 12 miles with a climb of 2000 feet. Myers' time for the distance, 13 minutes, 21 2-5 seconds, is the fastest time ever made over the route by cars with a minimum weight of 2,000 pounds.

The competing cars were divided into three classes governed by weight and piston displacement. The Big-Six was entered in class three, which was open to cars with motors having a piston displacement of 300 cubic inches and over, and minimum weight of 2,000 pounds.

CAR HAD BEEN IN FIRE

Many high-powered racing cars and experienced drivers were entered. Before the race Myers was not considered as a possible winner by the large crowd which thronged the course. It was evident, however, as the powerful Studebaker dashed to the front at the first quarter, that the "dark horse" would finish among the leaders.

The victory of this Big-Six is all the more remarkable because of the unusual conditions under which it competed and the hazardous route covered.

Eight months ago this Big-Six was wrecked in Pueblo, Colorado, and was so badly damaged by fire that it was not considered worth repairing. Myers, however, rebuilt the stock motor, using light pistons and rings and a stock cam shaft. After making only six adjustments on the original design he was satisfied to enter it against factory entries and special cars of various makes.

A member of the technical board, which inspects all automobiles the day previous to the race, made the statement that the Studebaker was the nearest stock car which contested in the event.

WINS PURSE OF $500

Altho this was Myers' first race, he displayed the skill of an experienced driver — taking the sharp turns and steep inclines at a speed that would have done justice to a champion. His efforts were rewarded when he crossed the finish line with a lead of one minute and a half over his nearest competitor.

Myers won a purse of $500 for the fastest time in his class; honors for the second fastest time regardless of class, and the fourth fastest time that has ever been made over the route. He also holds the record for cars of this weight, viz: 2,000 pounds, there being no weight limit in past years.

Get Gum-Dipped Cords for Your Truck!

For Mileage and Maximum Resilience

If you're using pneumatic truck tires, get the most mileage, the fullest truck protection, the greatest speed and maximum serviceability for every dollar you spend.

Put on Firestone Truck Type Cords. They are Gum-Dipped—the famous Firestone building process which gives extra carcass strength and wear resistance. It prevents internal friction, a special advantage where the weight of heavy loads puts unusual strain on tires.

The broad, beveled tread increases the carrying capacity and gives a firmer road-grip. It provides added protection against rut and curb wear.

Thousands of steady users know that these Gum-Dipped Truck Type Cords are the most economical and dependable on the market today.

Come to us when you need truck tires. You'll find the best tires on the market—Firestone pneumatics, cushions and solids—backed by as much expert tire service as you need.

LIMA WILL LEARN MORE OF VAPO

Company to Spend This Week Demonstrating Product

VARIOUS PROGRAM PLANNED

Merits of Stove Made Here to Be Presented People

Complete program for the observance of Vapo week, beginning Monday and continuing until next Saturday, was announced Saturday by Fred Ash, general manager of the Vapo Stove Co. a Lima concern.

Many interesting features have been arranged for Vapo week which includes demonstration of Vapo products in many of the large downtown stores, lectures, moving picture slides and special advertising, both newspaper and outdoor display.

Vapo Stove Co. manufactures an oil-burning stove which burns kerosene, generates a gas of intense heat and is guaranteed to burn continuously from 32 to 36 hours on one gallon of oil, making it one of the most economical stoves on the market.

No wicks are used, one of the claims for it is the stove is so well constructed there is no odor or smoke to contend with. The stove at the present time is manufactured in seven different models of cookers and ranges, two models of room heaters as well as the spiral coil hot water heater.

The Vapo Stove Co. occupies one of the most modern plants of its kind in the country, located at E. Kibbey-st, adjoining the D. T. & I. railroad. The site embraces five acres, and the buildings are built on the unit plan.

Officers of the company are: President, Joseph T. Kaufman; vice-president, John E. Galvin; secretary and treasurer, John R. Hastings; general manager, Fred D. Ash.

VAPO WEEK PROGRAM

A double-page advertisement will appear in The Lima News Monday, explaining the purpose of Vapo week and products of the Vapo Stove Co. The advertisement appears thru the following concerns: The Vapo Stove Co., The Hoover-Bond Co., Neuman-Kettler Co., The Rowlands Co., and J. A. Armstrong & Son.

The Rowland Co., Neuman-Kettler Co. and Hoover-Bond Co. will conduct baking demonstrations in their stores during Vapo week.

Dealers in Vapo products will give window displays, and the Rowlands Co. will have a special Vapo display in the center window.

Lima theaters will show moving picture slides on Vapo week activities, and special display advertisements will appear on furniture trucks.

The Rotary club at its luncheon meeting Monday at the Norval hotel will hear a talk by Ash on the subject "The Story of Vapo." The Vapo Stove Co. is a Lima concern, and because of this, Vapo week activities is of special interest to Lima citizens.

FARM BUREAU MEETING HELD AT SPENCERVILLE K. OF P. HALL FRIDAY

Farm bureau meeting was held at Spencerville Friday night at the K. of P. Hall at which time a program of music and talks was given. H. H. Rider, postmaster at Spencerville, talked on the proposed old age pension law, and pointed out that if the bill becomes law it would immediately add three mills to the tax levy, and also would mean placing a premium on indifference, negligence and carelessness.

Thomas Grubb talked on the good things of the farm and said he feels optimistic for farmers. Grubb declared that over a period of years the farmer is usually better off than the majority of those who leave the farm for the city.

George Keller, chairman, called attention to farmers and others, that the next meeting is the time for township election of officers.

Mrs. C. L. Donovan reported on the women's work on home management and kitchen efficiency, and appointed the following women to assist her on the winter program: Mrs. Edward Staller, Mrs. Charles Hance, Mrs. Elmer Stose, Mrs. John Beerman, Mrs. John Holloway and Mrs. Henry Beerman.

RED CROSS CAR IS DUE

American Red Cross service car, scheduled to have arrived in Lima Saturday morning over the Baltimore & Ohio, is due to reach here Sunday, it was reported by local railroad officials. The car is being sent all over the country to teach the lesson of safety and to help reduce the number of deaths from injuries. Special lectures will be given by Red Cross officers while the car is in Lima.

NOTED SPEAKERS BEFORE LUNCHEON CLUBS OF LIMA

Charles H. Ash, general manager of the Vapo Stove Company, will address the Rotary club at the luncheon meeting Monday at the Norval Hotel. Subject of Ash's talk will be "The Vapo Products."

Hastings H. Hart of New York City will be the principal speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon Tuesday at the Hotel Argonne.

Percy Hembs, said to be one of the few celebrated baritone of this country, will sing a number of solos. Wilford I. King, bureau of economics, New York City will address the Lions club Wednesday at the Elks hall on the subject "Distribution of Income."

AUTO ACCIDENTS IN OHIO JUMP

Railroad Fatalities in 10 Years Show Decrease

Dr. J. J. Sutter, head of the Allen county health commission, has received two interesting charts giving the number of railroad fatalities in Ohio during the last 10 years, and a chart giving the number of automobile fatalities in Ohio for 10 years. Figures are based upon statistics compiled by the bureau of vital statistics, state department of health.

Railroad fatalities in the state since 1913 show a big increase over automobile fatalities.

Peak of railroad fatalities was reached in 1917 when over 1100 persons lost their lives. Fatalities in 1921 and 1922 numbered the same with nearly 600 deaths in each year. Since 1917 a decrease in fatal accidents is shown.

Contrary to statistics in connection with railroad accidents, are those dealing with automobile fatalities which has shown an amazing increase since 1912.

In 1913 a little less than 200 persons lost their lives while in 1922 over 800 persons were killed. Of this number 80 were under 5 years; 500 were between the ages of five to 49, and the remainder over 50 years.

NOTED SPEAKERS TO ADDRESS TEACHERS AT TOLEDO MEETING

Among the prominent educators and statesmen who will address sessions of the Northwestern Ohio Teachers association at Toledo, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 6 and 7, include Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of George Washington university, Washington, D. C., who will talk Friday morning; W. L. Harding, former governor of Iowa, who will speak Friday night; Dr. Thomas E. Finagan, formerly state superintendent of instruction in Pennsylvania, and Aaron Sapire, San Francisco, who will speak Saturday.

FORCES RALLIED TO DRY FLAG

Appeal to "Carry on" Issued at Citizenship Conference

HUNDREDS IN ATTENDANCE

Enforcement of Law Demanded by Delegates

WASHINGTON—(Associated Press)—Earnest appeals to the American people to "carry on" in the fight for prohibition were made Saturday in opening sessions of the Citizenship Conference called to promote law observance.

Prominent spokesmen of religious, temperance, civic, political, business, women's and other organizations, urged a rejuvenation of the movement, which led to the adoption of the eighteenth amendment. Several hundred delegates from all parts of the country were in attendance and committees were appointed to recommend definite future lines of action to make the prohibition laws effective. These will be presented, including plans for intensive local organization of prohibition supporters, at the closing session of the conference next Monday.

Speakers promised to use the ballot in the next elections to secure "dry" representation. Several advocated creation of a new organization with headquarters here to gather facts regarding prohibition and centralize future work for law enforcement and observance.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, in the address opening the conference sessions, told the delegates that the Coolidge administration, like that of the late President Harding, was "one hundred per cent" behind the prohibition laws. He denied as "enemy propaganda" charges that whisky and beer were "flooding" the country.

Leaders of the Anti-Saloon league, W. C. T. U., Y. M. C. A., and many church organizations added their voices to the movement for re-incarnation of the fight against liquor. Miss Anna Gordon, president of the National and International W. C. T. U. declared that it was hoped to make "prohibition cover the earth." The present need, she said, was for a "daily dozen of spiritual exercises" by friends of the law. She also took a filing at Governor Smith of New York, for signing the state repeal act.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, at a mass meeting Saturday night, declared that the prohibition amendment was in the constitution to stay and urged a national movement to make it more completely effective.

CHIROPRACTORS' MOTIONS FOR NEW TRIAL DENIED

Motions for new trials by Elmer McClain, counsel for Paul and Theresa Lerner, convicted chiropractic healers, were overruled Saturday by Justice of Peace W. H. Guyton.

The two practitioners were fined $25 each, the minimum penalty imposed by law for practicing medicine without a license. Appeal of the cases will be taken in common pleas court. Bond for each defendant was fixed in the sum of $200.

Previous convictions standing against the two practitioners are already on appeal. The two were arrested on information of Frank Dorsey, investigator for the Ohio Medical board.

ENTRY BLANKS READY FOR STATE-WIDE 10 ACRE WHEAT CONTEST

Rules and entry blanks for the men's 10-acre wheat contest in Ohio have been received by County Agent Ridge. Contest is open to any person farming in Ohio, who is more than 19 years old. Contestant raising the largest amount of wheat, on 10 acres shall be declared the winner. Varieties eligible to compete will be limited to red winter wheat of good milling qualities.

Each county will have its own contest. One man in each county will be entitled to the county championship medal for his county in case the yield is 25 bushels or more. Winner in the state contest will be awarded a grand championship cup in addition to any other award he may receive.

Each contestant must agree to keep a record of the labor and items of expense involved in producing the 10-acre wheat crop. Yields to be determined when wheat is threshed from field, after the field has been measured by the county agent or other referee; B—when wheat is threshed from the barn or stack. Barn or stack threshing will be permitted only when the entire acreage of wheat grown on the farm is approximately 10 acres, or when the yield is determined for the entire acreage. In these cases the fields are measured accurately and the same process is followed as described for field threshing.

Entries in the contest are open until November 15.

County Agent H. J. Ridge received a letter Saturday from E. L. Dakan, department of poultry husbandry, Ohio state extension service, stating the time for starting poultry demonstration farms is November 1 and advised that all memorandums of agreement must be signed and sent to his office before record books will be mailed, which will be this week.

JUNK DEALER PROTEST CITY LICENSING MEAS

"When is a junk dealer not a junk dealer within the meaning of city licensing ordinance of Oct. 1921?"

"This is the question which Manager Bingham sent to City Licitor Landis for solution. It came up because some of the ordinance claim that no one is compelled to pay the annual fee of $25, their claim being that they just buy junk and send it on larger dealers in other cities. They claim that they do not sell the junk they collect."

Bingham contends that the ordinance requires a fee from any person, person, corporation or association engaged in the "buying or selling of junk" and which organization or individual maintains a junk yard. The protestants against the fee in junk yards, Bingham said.

AUTUMN FESTIVAL PLANS ARE ANNOUNCED

FEDERATION OF
IS SPONSORING

Memorial Hall Will be Scene of Enjoyable Event Nov. 14th and 15th—Whole Building to be Decorated And Arranged for Charity Affair

Booths of All Kinds to Feature Bazaar With Lobby and Halls Devoted to Selling Gifts—Dancing To be Provided

(BY HOPE HOLLIASER)

INTEREST in club circles during the coming weeks will center largely upon the Fall Festival to be held on November 14th and 15th at Memorial Hall, under the auspices of the Lima Federation of Women's clubs, of which Mrs. E. B. Taylor is the president. Plans are being made by Mrs. Taylor and her able assistants to make the affair a most elaborate one and the success of the festival is assured by the hearty response and co-operation already given by the various federated clubs.

The entire lower floor, as well as parts of the second, of Memorial Hall will be given over to the women for the bazaar.

Booths, where all kinds of gifts will be sold, will be in the lobby and halls and there will be park-plan dancing. Attractive refreshment stands and booths will be arranged and Memorial Hall, during the afternoons and evenings of Nov. 14th and 15th, will no doubt be the scene of much revelry and merriment.

One of the features of the affair will be the "Children's Book Week Booth," which will be in charge of Mrs. Gibson Dilline, as chairman of the library extension committee of the federation, and Mrs. Foss Zartman, chairman of the literature committee. "Children's Book Week" will be observed throughout the country at this time and the Lima women will have hundreds of books on sale.

As vice-president of the federation and chairman of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Henry Deisel, Jr., is in general charge of the event. Working with Mrs. Taylor, these two women have appointed the following committees:

"Doll booth": Mrs. Howard Fletcher, chairman, Mesdames E. A. Siefert, A. W. Kahle, Elmer Roberts, Ralph Shriver, A. C. Stuart, John Clay, Elizabeth Mitchell, J. E. Sullivan and F. C. Cuthbert.

"Arous and Bags booth": Mrs. J. W. Blackburn, chairman, Mesdames E. G. Weadock, Wallace Landis, Clyde Troutman, William Wilson, A. H. Beecher, J. W. Tucker, George Gail, Nell Allen, Samuel Roeder, C. C. Crossley, Glen Eversole and J. R. Tillotson.

"Handkerchiefs and fancy articles booth": Mrs. Martha Wohlgenuth and Mrs. Theodore Michael and their committee, which will be announced later.

"Candy and cigars booth": Mrs. William Deisel and Mrs. J. C. Nagelson and their committee, to be announced later.

Dancing will be in charge of Miss Gertrude Boose, who will also announce her committee later.

Booths and decorations will be in charge of Mrs. Henry Enck and Mrs. Henry Deisel, Jr.

In addition to the booths and stands, there will be displays, which will be both instructive and interesting, by the Public Welfare and Home Economics departments of the federation.

Invitations have been received here from Mr. and Mrs. David E. Pittman of Columbus, to the marriage of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Kenyon L. Campbell which will be solemnized Thursday, October 18th, at 11:30 o'clock at the King-ay Methodist Episcopal church in Columbus.

Mr. Campbell is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas H. Campbell, former residents of this city. Rev. Campbell was for several years pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church here and is now District Supt. of Methodist churches in Franklin.

Mrs. Howard Fletcher will be hostess to the members of the Bay View Study club at her home, 326 Elmwood Place, Monday afternoon.

The following papers will be given: "Ecuador, Chili and Peru," Mrs. M. U. Basinger; "Coal and Nitrate," Mrs. T. J. Duffy; "The Mineral Wealth of the Andes," Mrs. T. E. Drake; and "History of the Incas," Mrs. W. J. Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Elmer Andrews, W. High-st., will entertain the members of the Thursday Afternoon Bridge club at her home, Thursday at one o'clock.

Mrs. S. B. Adgate has a paper on "Serving Our National Resources," at the meeting of the Round Table club at the Y. W. C. A., Monday afternoon. Mrs. Harry DeWitt will be hostess. Miss Mabel Breuse and Mrs. J. C. Kelly will also be on the program. Response to roll call will be made with thoughts from the life and times of James Whitcomb Riley.

BOB YOUR HAIR—REGARDLESS OF AGE

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—(Special)—To bob or not to bob—that, it appears, is still the question.

Last season, the "noes" thought they had the matter pretty thoroughly settled.

They spread abroad much propaganda about the new styles demanding a dignified type of hair dressing, and many fell for it, ceased their visits to the barber and cultivated the hair-growing institutes instead. So the price of hair brushes went up—and up.

Then there were others who maintained dignity was an innate quality of mind and spirit not expressed by the hair or the clothes, and since they found the bob gloriously comfortable, they went on serenely in their bobbed way.

This summer, in Paris, Emile, the famous hairdresser, told me short hair had broken out with an entire new fury, and women who had never felt the cold shears on their necks before were now becoming acquainted with the sensation. He predicted as great popularity for it this season in Paris as during the war time, when one could have such a good excuse.

OLD ONES FALL

Back in New York, I consulted J. Halloh, who waves and clips the heads of some of the most fashionable Gothamites, knowing he could tell me what our own smart set is doing.

"The bob is just as popular now as it has been any time during its history," he informed me, "and the interesting part is that it keeps its hold on the older women even more than the youngsters."

"Hardly a day goes by that I do not bob some white or gray head. Not the faddy, extreme women carry on this style now, but the conservatives."

"Flappers gave up the bob easier than their elders did last year, because they did not appreciate, or need its great advantage—that it actually does lop years off a woman. Short skirts and short hair are essentially youthful, and that's why you simply can't get rid of them."

THE FAVORITE

The type of bob so popular now in New York is the style they call "La Garconne" in Paris, meaning the bachelor girl.

"This keeps the line of the head trim and neat by being very short in the back. The front may be pulled back severely, or waved about

Mrs. Vernon Fisher, State-st., president of the Non Tolls Bridge club, will entertain the members of that club at their initial meeting of the year on Monday. Mrs. Fisher has invited the women to the Elks' home for luncheon at one o'clock and bridge to follow.

New members of the club who will be welcomed at the meeting on Monday are Mrs. Frank Manning Hill, Mrs. Frederick Voss, Mrs. Robert Holman, Mrs. J. C. Nagelson, Mrs. Robert Mohr and the Misses Gale and Ruth Parmenter.

Members of the Interclub Bridge club will meet with Miss Cecelia O'Connor, W. North-st., Tuesday evening.

Miss Donna Shappell, daughter of Mrs. Charles Shappell, S. Collett-st., is home from her studies at Oberlin Conservatory of Music, for the week-end. She has as her houseguest, Miss Marie Hahn of Muscatine, Iowa.

Members of the Ciceri club will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. R. W. Ballard, Richie-av.

THIS—OR—THIS?

attribute of feminine loveliness. It did tend to make women with large features look coarse, and sometimes masculine.

"No one can accuse the modern bob of that, and for that reason, I believe, short hair is a permanent institution and that we will see more bobbed heads this winter than ever before."

day cake formed the centerpiece of the dinner table while baskets of roses were also used.

Covers were laid for Masters Thomas Hume, Junior Vernon, Mrs. C. J. Vernon, Mrs. Dora Delmez, the honored guest and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Schell, S. Pierce-st., have as their week-end guests, their daughter, Miss Florence, and Leslie Ross, both of Chicago.

Ladies of the U. C. T. social club will meet in their club rooms in Eagle Hall next Saturday afternoon for their regular fortnightly meeting.

This is the first regular meeting of the year. Mrs. Edward Hawisher is president of the organization.

Mrs. L. H. Earl, W. High-st., will entertain the members of the Mentor club at her home for a one o'clock luncheon on Tuesday. The regular club program will follow the luncheon with roll call being answered with current events. Mrs. A. C. Stuart will read the magazine article.

JOINT MEETINGS OF CLUBS TAKE TOPMOST PLACES

Members of Lotus, Arbutus, Delphian and Women's Organizations Have Some Unusually Interesting Events Ahead of Them

Sessions Will be Addressed by Persons Foremost In Progressive Movement of the State and Nation

THIS YEAR, as in the past several years, the joint meetings held by members of the Lotus, Arbutus, Delphian and Woman's clubs, four leading literary organizations of the city, will be prominent events on the club calendar. For at these gatherings, the women of the named clubs have the opportunity of hearing addresses made by men and women who are foremost in the progressive movements of the state and nation. Miss Emily Kneubuhl, of Minneapolis, Minn., well-known political woman, will be the first speaker on this year's program. She will speak to the women on Monday at a joint meeting to be held with Mrs. Frank Maire at her home, 572 W. Market-st. Members of the Arbutus club will be the afternoon's hostesses.

Miss Kneubuhl, who is a highly educated woman, is a leading figure in the national League of Women Voters. She has spent some time in Washington, D. C., New York City and other cities, studying the situation among the women in politics at those places and their positions in the business world. She delivers splendid lectures, telling of her experiences and work in this country and in England, as well. Those who heard Miss Kneubuhl last year when she talked to the local chapter of the League of Women Voters at the Elks' home were charmed with her and particularly anxious to hear her again.

Mrs. Henry Enck as president of the Arbutus club, will introduce the speaker of the afternoon, who will have as her subject, "American and Foreign Relations."

In the receiving line with the hostesses will be Mrs. Enck, Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, Mrs. F. T. Cuthbert, Mrs. J. E. Grosjean and Mrs. T. B. Greene. Following the lecture, tea will be served.

On Monday evening, Miss Kneubuhl will give her same lecture to the members of three evening clubs, Philomathean, Twentieth Century, and Chautauqua, at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Elizabeth Hay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hay, 402 W. Market-st., and Arthur Wheatley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wheatley, Shawnee, will be united in marriage Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Samuel Haecker, pastor of the Market Street Presbyterian church, will perform the ceremony, which will take place at the bride's home.

The wedding of Miss Hay and Mr. Wheatley will be a very quiet affair, due to the illness of Miss Hay's father, and only the two families will be present.

Members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Central Church of Christ will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. P. J. Simons, N. McDonaid-st.

Mrs. Robert King will welcome the members of the Squawam Five Hundred club to her home, 409 W. Spring-st., Wednesday evening.

Miss Elma Crider, who has been spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Crider, W. High-st., will return to Long Beach, Cal., on Tuesday. She will be accompanied by Miss Nora Kohl of Cleveland.

Mrs. Lester Saunders welcomed the members of the Polly Anne Euchre club to her home on Linden-st., Thursday afternoon. At the conclusion of the euchre games, high scores were held by Mrs. W. E. Hauenstein and Mrs. John Wren. Mrs. Harry Beach was consoled.

The hostess served a two-course tea at five o'clock, Mrs. M. S. Rumbaugh and Miss Mary Saunders assisting. The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. Bert Watson, E. Kirby-st.

Mrs. Geraldine Sifred, S. Elizabeth-st., entertained at dinner at her home Friday evening, honoring her daughter, Miss Bernice, who celebrated her seventh birthday anniversary on that day. A large birthday party was given.

Miss Marjorie Marmon, Olmedo-apt., W. North-st., is in Oxford, the guest of Miss Helen Jones, a student at Miami university.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. William Prosser of the date of the approaching marriage of their youngest daughter, Miss Marjorie, to Robert Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, which will take place at the Central Church of Christ at 10 o'clock in the morning of October 25th. Rev. George B. Townsend will officiate at the wedding.

Miss Prosser will be attended by Mrs. Hobart H. Lewis (Dorothy Roberts) of Alliance and Carl Young will be his brother's best man.

Several pre-nuptial affairs will be given for Miss Prosser.

Miss Sadie Geisel, W. Market-st., will welcome the members of the Missionary Society of the First Christian church to her home, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, W. Spring-st., have as their guests, Miss Helen Williams, Mr. P. F. Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ashton, all of Marion. Complimenting their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. King entertained informally at their home, Saturday evening.

Little Miss Evelyn Woods, the charming six-year old daughter of Mrs. W. M. Woods of Toledo, will appear at Memorial Hall in a piano recital Monday evening. She will be presented in concert by the Woman's Board of Managers of the Lima City hospital, of which Mrs. E. G. Wendell is president. Other officers of the board, in charge of this benefit affair, are Mrs. J. R. Tillotson, vice-president, Mrs. Harry Taylor, secretary and Mrs. M. P. Goetschius, treasurer.

Miss Woods, who is heralded as the "wonder child artist on the piano," needs little introduction to Lima music patrons. She appeared here in March of this year at Memorial Hall on a children's program arranged by the Woman's Music club and delighted her audience at this time. Later, her services were secured to play at a benefit recital in May under the auspices of the hospital board. Due to her illness, the engagement was cancelled. Monday evening, Miss Woods will give the same program that she was to have given at that time.

In addition to the difficult piano numbers to be played by this child pianist, there will be a group of dance numbers by the following local children: Misses Glenn Marie Hobart, Naomi Lippincott, Josephine Bingham, Vivian Bridenbaker, Josephine Smith and Eleanor Sherick. Following is the program to be given by Miss Woods:

1. Sonata in C.....Mozart
2. (a) Little Prelude.....Bach
- (b) Old Gull.....Schuman
- (c) Gypsy Rondo.....Hayden
3. Gertrude's Dream Waltz.....Beethoven

Mrs. Woods and Evelyn
4. Duet (Valse).....Klug

The same tickets which were purchased for the recital in March may be used for the program Monday night, which will begin at 8 o'clock.

SUNDAY SOCIETY...
Mrs. John Galvin will open her home, 515 W. Market-st., on Tuesday afternoon for the regular monthly meeting of the Young Ladies' Aid Society of the Market Street Presbyterian church. The afternoon's program will begin at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. M. D. Greenleaf will conduct the devotionals.

Assistant hostesses will be Mrs. J. E. Dexter, Mrs. John Harley, Mrs. Roy Gregg, Mrs. E. O. Steiner and Mrs. John Finley.

Members of the Strollers' club will be hosts at a Halloween dance to be given October 27th at the Lima club. Elaborate arrangements are being made for this affair, the first of the fall and winter season. A popular out-of-town orchestra has already been engaged for the dancing.

Elmer Welty and Carl Brunk are in charge of the affair.

Donald Beach, who spent the summer in Lorain, has taken up his studies as mechanical engineer at Ohio State university, Columbus.

Mrs. Edward Burden will open her home, Tuesday night, for the entertainment of the Profit and Pleasure club. A program of literary subjects will comprise the discussion.

Mrs. and Mrs. Charles A. Schierloh are spending the week-end in Toledo.

Mrs. Rachel Young, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Griffith, is spending a part of the week at her former home in Middleport.

Mrs. Joseph Beach will be hostess for the Altura club, entertaining at her home, Tuesday night.

Word has been received here from Fred E. Hauck, his two sons and Miss Maude Showalter, who motored to California, that they have reached Los Angeles. They will not return to Ottawa until next spring. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mills, of Lima.

The marriage of Miss Mayme Nienberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nienberg, of Glandorf, and Joseph Schwelckert, of Peru, Ill., was solemnized Tuesday at St. John's Catholic church, Glandorf. The large church was filled with relatives and friends to witness the ceremony.

Autumn flowers lent graceful decorations. The bride was gownned in handsome satin, with long veil, which was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilacs.

Miss Sara Schwelckert, of Peru, Ill., was bridesmaid. She is a sister of the bridegroom. She wore a gown of erlich, with picture hat of like color and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A wedding breakfast for the two families was served, following the ceremony, at the home of the bride's parents. Here, too, autumn flowers were used in decorations.

Those who came from distant points for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwelckert, of Peru, Ill., parents of the bridegroom, and daughter, Miss Sara, and Mrs. Henry Narkier, of Toledo.

A. H. Young has returned to his home in Spencerville, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Griffith, the latter of whom is a sister.

Mrs. John W. Brown opened her home, Monday afternoon, for the entertainment of the Ladies' Centennial Book club, at the initial meeting of the season. The program was dispensed with and greetings exchanged and vacation and summer experiences recounted.

As will be the plan this year, at each meeting members will give items of interest at roll call. One member will have music, another art and another current events, and so in every line of club interest.

Mrs. John P. Bailey will entertain the club next Monday afternoon.

The Ladies' Centennial is one of the oldest clubs in organization in Putnam-co, and a leader in all that concerned the village. Mrs. A. P. Sandles, president; Mrs. C. O. Mrs. Frances Gottlingham, of Columbus, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sandles.

Miss Mary Wilkins, Mrs. Stewart Robenalt, Mrs. Oscar J. Schierloh and Miss Sadie Wilkins will be hostesses at the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity Methodist church, Thursday afternoon. The affair will be held in the church parlors.

Banns were read for the first time last Sunday in St. John's Catholic church, Glandorf, for the wedding of Miss Irene Verforth, of Glandorf, and Herbert Holkamp, of Kalida. The wedding will be an event of late October.

The twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Buddmeyer was celebrated last Sunday at their Greenburg-tp. home, and to the form of a surprise dinner was served by their three daughters, Mrs. Andrew Verforth, the Misses Martha and Donald Buddmeyer. Mr. and Mrs. Buddmeyer had been invited away for the day, as they were called home only to find guests in waiting.

Banns were published for the first time today by Rev. Father V. Krull at St. Peter and Paul's Catholic church, Kalida, for the wedding of Miss Mary H. Hinkle, daughter of William Hinkle, of Findlay, and Mrs. Barney Reichte, of road-av. and Third-st. Miss Hinkle has been in Ottawa the past two years. She is an operator at the Ottawa office of the Putnam Telephone Co.

The wedding will be an event of October 30, and will be celebrated at St. Peter and Paul's Catholic church.

Mrs. F. L. German, 318 N. College-st., Lima, has returned to her home, after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. German.

Needlework Classes

Classes in art needlework for the children have been resumed Saturday mornings. A competent instructor will teach them to embroider every Saturday morning from 9 till 11 o'clock.

Make Your Own Lamp Shades

For Every Practical Use and Decorative Effect—Lamps That Are "Different"

Getting them "different" is the secret of making the shades yourself. You can put your own ideas into them and use the colors that are most suited to the room for which the lamp is intended.

We have frames in a host of sizes and shapes—for the library, the living room, the boudoir or any place where a lamp might be used.

The materials for covering and trimming the shades are here in great assortments and our instructor is ever ready to lend her aid in the designing or covering.

FIGHTS TO BEAT ALL HELL!

Scrapping Parson Finds Old Ring Tactics Come in Handy

REV. EDWARD R. YOUNG

ST. LOUIS—(Special)—“In this corner Kid Satan, in the other the Rev. Eddie Young.”

The fight, announced above, has been on for years. Kid Satan, alias Knockout Lucifer, is well and unfavorably known. His opponent is the popular favorite even tho he is less experienced.

The Rev. Edward R. Young, evangelist of the Church of the Assemblies of God, is his title now. He never was a champion—he always was a fighter—he still is.

BIBLE VS. FISTICUFFS
When Eddie was a kid and had vanquished each and every one of his playmates, two neighborhood sports arranged a bout in a barn with $5 as a purse. After 20 bloody rounds, Eddie won the fight and the $5 with an uppercut.

The sports said Eddie was cut out for a pugilist. Eddie's mother had set her heart on him filling a pulpit. But the fighting virus was in his blood and the sports won out—temporarily, at least.

“I fought all over California and Nevada and helped entertain the wide open town of Goldfield in 1906 during the gold rush,” Young recalls. “I have lost decisions, but never taken the count. In those days anything less than 20 rounds was considered amateurish. I did not stoop to anything like that, of course.”

K. O. FOR SATAN
“I guess I was like the prodigal son mentioned in the Bible. I spent my winnings in riotous living and usually was on my uppers. One time, judding over a ‘tramp fire’ on a damp night, I chanced to pick up a newspaper and read a certain article. There and then I decided I could use my gift of fighting in the pulpit as well as in the ring.

“When I first entered the Bible Institute at Los Angeles I was a pathetic figure. Some professor told me my vocabulary was inadequate and I didn't know what he was talking about.”

“For the last 12 years I've been fighting as I never fought before to put Satan down for the count. There is just as much action in the pulpit as in the prize ring and a lot more satisfaction.”

Strangely, the evangelist was not interested in the Dempsey-Firpo contest. The Bible, and not the sport page, is his favorite reading.

SILVER SCREEN FANS ARE OFFERED PLAYS VERY HIGHLY RATED

Pola Negri at Quilna; Mrs. Reid at Sigma; Corinne Griffith at Lyric

(BY GERTRUDE GILLHAM)

It has been many weeks since local movie patrons have had the opportunity of viewing such extraordinary attractions as are scheduled for appearance during the current week.

"The Spanish Dancer" which is being shown for the initial times today at the Quilna simultaneously with its appearance in New York and Chicago is the Quilna's offering for seven days. Pola Negri and Antonio Moreno have the principal roles in this delightful romance of old Spain.

Two films will be seen at the Sigma theatre this week. The first, which closes its engagement today is Betty Blythe's latest vehicle, "Sinner or Saint." Following on Monday is "Human Wreckage." Mrs. Wallace Reid's sensational photodramatic drug expose which has elicited the most favorable comment from critics in cities where it has been shown. Supporting Mrs. Reid are James Kirkwood, Bessie Love, George Hackathorne and others.

The Majestic is flashing Rodolph Valentino for two days in "The Young Rajah." Tuesday and Wednesday will bring "The Nth Commandment," followed on Thursday by "Drums of Fate," starring Mary Miles Minter. Elinor Glyn's "Six Days" with Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo is the Lyric's magnet all week.

At the Majestic

RODOLPH Valentino, first as a college hero at Harvard, then as a gorgeous young prince of India, is the treat promised for screen fans at the Majestic today and Monday where Valentino's latest Paramount picture, "The Young Rajah" is appearing.

The story was adapted from John Galsworthy's popular novel, "The White Horse Inn" and the play of the same name by Alethea Lucas. According to the story, Valentino is a Hindu prince who, as a child, is smuggled out of India to save his life and is brought to America and placed under the care of a New England family.

The boy grows up and becomes an heroic hero at Harvard. His love affair with a young heiress is broken off when he is suddenly kidnapped by emissaries from India and taken back to his native land. A usurper seizes the throne there, and Valentino, now back in the garb of an Indian prince, ousts him. Out of a sense of duty towards his people he is about to sacrifice his love for the American girl, but a series of unexpected happiness brings things out happily.

"The Young Rajah" is said to be bound in magnificent settings and lavish costumes. In the supporting cast are Wanda Hawley, Charles Ogle and Bertram Grassby.

"The Nth Commandment" with an all-star cast opens for two days on Tuesday followed by "Drums of Fate" with Mary Miles Minter on Thursday.

At the Rialto

THE SIX FIFTY, a picture-ization of the well-known Broadway stage play of the same name is the attraction at the Rialto theatre today and tomorrow.

It tells the story of a country couple; the discontent of a wife whose rebellion against farm drudgery and whose longing for the gay life of the city threaten to wreck their matrimonial bark.

A notable cast portrays the little group of characters in the story. Renee Adoree, the charming little French actress, wife of Tom Moore, plays the young wife; while Orville Caldwell, whom Elinor Glyn proclaimed "The perfect lover," portrays the young farmer, a sturdy son of the soil jolted out of the rut of farm life by the peril of losing his wife. Bert Woodruff adds a touch of comedy in the quaint character part of "Gramp," the father of the young husband. Niles Welch and Gertrude Astor are cast as jaded social leaders in the city.

There are thrills as well as laughs and tears. The railroad collision scene is reproduced with a real train and great fidelity to realism, and the cabaret scenes are elaborately staged.

BETTY BLYTHE IN "SINNER OR SAINT"

Recognized as the Best Dressed Star of the Screen

It is with great pleasure that the Sigma announces coming attractions that have been proven great successes.

Mrs. Wallace Reid's "Human Wreckage"; D. W. Griffith's latest success—"The White Rose"; "The Common Law," which broke all records in Cleveland; "Rupert of Hentzau"; "Mothers In Law," "The Broken Wing" and "The Virginian," all of which are pronounced decided successes by leading critics.

THE SIGMA THEATRE will only present attractions that have already "gone over" and been well received. At no time will Sigma over exploit and mislead or make false assumptions as to the bigness of its pictures.

For consistently good attractions—attend the Sigma.

Mrs. WALLACE REID IN "HUMAN WRECKAGE"

PIERCING deep under the surface of superficiality and fiction into the throbbing heart of humanity itself, this master photodrama will plunge you to the very brink of the Inferno of Human Experience and sweep you up to the dizzy heights of sublime emotion possible for mortals to reach.

It tears away a veil of shrinking reserve and hurls on the screen the secrets of the seared soul of a wonderful woman—a woman who bares to the world her innermost feelings so that others may never be faced with the terrible curse of NARCOTICS.

It throbs with human interest! It vibrates with emotional chords! It trembles with rushing power! It surges with dramatic conflict! It whirls with breathless action! It whips with cutting truth! It crashes with towering thrills!

—SIGMA'S NEXT ATTRACTION—

WHY "THE WHITE ROSE" IS THE BIGGEST PICTURE TODAY

ONE BILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF HUMANITY!

500,000,000 MESSENGERS RUSHING WITH NEWS TO YOUR HEART!

Something at last has been found—the thing everybody said didn't exist—the GREAT THROBBING HEART OF THE PUBLIC

THE PUBLIC SOBBING! THE PUBLIC SIGHING! THE PUBLIC ASTIR WITH LOVE!

Something that is occurring with no other picture—everywhere at every showing, the audience is swayed and shaken in the tornado of heart emotion.

Imagine such a thing! You forget the world; you forget the theatre and the screen; you even forget the players. You live the story!

PERIL OF "DOPE" IS PICTURED AT SIGMA

Unique Photodrama Features
Mrs. Wallace Reid and Other Artists

"HUMAN WRECKAGE", Mrs. Wallace Reid's smashing denunciation of the dope evil, should do more to bring the dope menace to an irreducible minimum than all the tons of printed matter, speeches, and commitments that have been brought forth since the question first became a live issue.

Because it is authentic in every detail, because it is masterfully handled by a writer, director and company, and because it is made by a woman whose chiefest motive in making it was an unselfish one, the picture should be the most convincing preaching ever delivered on the subject, according to critics.

"Human Wreckage" is not a story of Wallace Reid's own life, the it is his spirit which actuated the production of this, said to be the greatest moral play ever conceived. The story itself was constructed, not for the purpose of reproducing the life of any individual, but was rather planned to put over forcefully as many salient truths as could be logically included in a compact film, without injuring its value as entertainment.

The play is entertaining—not in a light, frothy sort of way, to be sure, but in its power to absorb, to move, to teach. It has been found, in observing popular reaction to the so-called film magazines, in which the realms of science and modern thought are pictorially explored, they gather new information. On this principle, then, "Human Wreckage" should be extremely entertaining, for it does instruct.

The cast includes Mrs. Wallace Reid, Bessie Love, George Hackathorne, Harry Northrup, Robert McKim, Claire McDowell and others.

Betty Byrne is given every opportunity to exercise her remarkable range of emotional talents and to wear clothes as only she can, in "Saint or Sinner" which appears for the final times today at the Sigma. Miss Byrne plays the role of a fake fortune teller who encounters a young and rich philanthropist—to her sorrow.

For the earnest young man, convinced despite his sincerity that people are either straight or not straight, in their essence, causes her to be publicly branded as a charlatan and thus deprives her of her means of making a livelihood.

The young man is fully convinced of his position until circumstances develop which make him forget that he is engaged to another in the love for Mlle. Iris which overpowers him. In his soul agony at his own weakness, he comes to the realization that people are not either saints or sinners, as a rule, but simply man, with all the dual attributes which go with being human. William F. Carlton, O'Neil, William Collier, Jr., and Will Tooker, are seen in the support cast.

Lima is chosen as a National Demonstration Center for Paramount Pictures

Quilna Audiences To Pass On All Paramount Pictures before Nation-Wide Showing

LIMA is going to see Paramount Pictures first! The Quilna Theatre has been chosen by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as the demonstration center in this section for all Paramount Pictures.

The first demonstration will commence at once on the Paramount Picture announced in the panel herewith, "The Spanish Dancer."

The class of people attending the Quilna is thoroughly representative of the backbone of the nation. What Lima thinks of any motion picture is apt to be a good guide as to the opinion of America as a whole.

The Quilna has a fine record in the proper presentation and exhibition of Paramount Pictures, and on every occasion it has been quick to book the pictures which made for betterment in the screen art.

Motion picture patrons will be glad they live in Lima, and value the privilege and the responsibility of testing America's better pictures for the rest of the country.

Now Lima Becomes a Partner in Paramount Pictures

If you were making motion pictures how would you check up what the public wanted? You would eagerly read box-office records, theatre-managers' reports, critics' reviews, searching always for that all-important thing—public opinion.

Paramount has done this for years, but it is not enough!

Now Paramount is making the public a real partner!

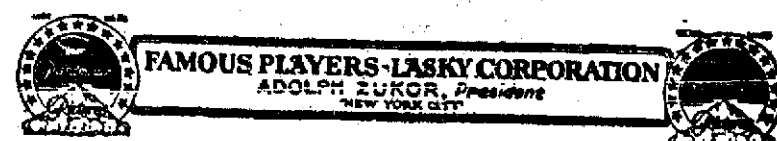

Under this new policy Paramount has arranged with some of the finest theatres in the country to act as demonstration theatres to test out its productions.

Here is a real incentive for bigger and better pictures.

You who buy your entertainment, you who pay for your motion picture going, are entitled to know and to choose in advance exactly what pictures you want to see!

The result of such a plan means that Paramount Pictures in future will be patterned along lines of known public approval, and that it will be practically impossible for pictures to reach the screen that do not have that public approval.

Lima is in partnership with Paramount from today on,
and what Lima says, goes!

EXTRAVAGANZA, VAUDEVILLE AND REVUE ARE ON FUN MENU

GIRLY KIND OF SHOWS WITH MUSIC AND FUN WILL DOMINATE BILLS

"My China Doll" Breaks In on Keith Variety Bill at Faurot With Harrison's Show Held Over at New Orpheum

ENTERTAINMENT of the highest calibre is promised at the two local legitimate theatres this week. The Faurot offers its usual Keith vaudeville bill interspersed on Wednesday by "My China Doll," the gorgeous musical extravaganza. There will be two performances, matinee and night.

Today marks the opening of the second week of the very successful engagement at the New Orpheum theatre of Harrison's Lyrical Revue. "Snooze in Mexico" will be the attraction for the first half of the week with "The Girl from Panama" opening on Thursday with a complete change of scenic investiture and wardrobe. Included on the week's program are many novelties as well as the usual special matinees on Friday and Saturday.

PROGRAM OF NOVELTY PROMISED BY FAUROT

Real Exemplification of Variety Form of Entertainment is Bill's Indication

On top of a most exceptionally pleasing bill, which closed Saturday night, comes one with still more promise of novelty, which will open this afternoon at the Faurot. There are many acts to cause wonderment, when experts put together a bill for the gratification of vaudeville goers. This style of entertainment was once called "Variety," and theatres which catered exclusively to this class of entertainment were called just plain Variety houses. In all earnestness, there could be no better name for them, if good plain English is taken as a standard of expression. Every acceptable vaudeville bill must have variety, and so in selecting a program this point is considered as the most important.

The bill opening this afternoon, begins with an act exemplifying the old Biblical parable which refers to the Lion and the Lamb; it is Arthur Nelson's act Patience, in other words he possesses sufficient of that virtue to train a lot of cats and rats to "like" each other; they are a happy family under the same roof. The felines and rodents do stunts together, just as the family tradition did not make of them deadly enemies.

The act is surely a novelty, unique in character. It is one fitting for the incredulous to sit up with amazement. O'Malley & Maxwell, snappy song singers, are also counted in this bill. They have changed from the principal revues to vaudeville for a few months. When this expires they will begin their engagement with Ziegfeld Roof.

HARRISON'S REVUE HELD OVER AT NEW ORPHEUM

"Snooze in Mexico" is Title of Lyric Offering First Part of Week

ENLARGED to a cast of more than thirty stellar artists, Harrison's Lyrical Revue, by insistent demand of New Orpheum patrons during the last seven days, will be held over for another week, offering a complete change of program today and another one Thursday.

The two comic operettas which will be presented this week are declared to be entirely different from anything ever before seen at the Orpheum. There will not be one piece of wardrobe, scenery, stage setting, a single song, dance, comedy bit duplicated from last week.

"Snooze in Mexico" will be the place de resistance for today and the first part of the week, and will be followed on Thursday by "The Girl from Panama." Each of these extravaganzas is equal to any road show playing at much higher prices in the big theatres of the cities. Manager Shaw declares, "Snooze in Mexico" will be staged in two acts and five beautiful scenes.

An unusual novelty for the week starting with the matinee today will be an electrically illuminated runway, extending from the stage into the auditorium, and upon which sixteen beautiful girls will present a variety of sensational bits of entertainment. Thus, the members of the audience will get a closeup view of the chorus and of the gorgeous creations in gowns they will wear.

The 7:30 performance at the New Orpheum Tuesday will be given as usual but the 9:15 show has been cancelled to make way for the wrestling match between William Demetris and Carl Anderson, for the world's light heavyweight title. Regular bargain matinee will be given Friday and children's matinee on Saturday.

ENSEMBLE FROM "SNOOZE IN MEXICO" AT THE ORPHEUM

"MY CHINA DOLL" GETS FLATTERING BOUQUET

Manager Clark of Faurot Feels Sure He is Not Buying Any "Pig in Poke"

BY CADRE

Manager Clark of the Faurot, doesn't believe in buying a "pig in a poke," so far as attractions, outside of the chosen few that everybody wants are concerned. He had assurances that "My China Doll" was a most excellent entertainment, so far as musical extravaganza is concerned, but he wasn't sure, and held his contract and word in reserve until he found out just exactly what it was, and how well it compared to the best from Broadway, or from anywhere else, for that matter. It is a fact that he has turned several back this season, because about all that was left, so far as a relic of decency and excellence were concerned was the name. But in this instance, even the name of "My China Doll" was an unknown quantity.

Skepticism is an important factor, not only in buying a horse, but in booking a theatrical attraction, so inquiries were broadcast; and they bore fruit; not alone in substantiating what the press agent had claimed but an added excellence quite pleasing and encouraging. The dramatic critic of the Quincy, Illinois, Herald, was unstinting in his praise and put it: "The play is simply prodigious in its great appeal to please; it is a masterpiece of its kind, with themes, roles and characters, melody and good looking women—a great resourceful pageant filled to the brim with romance and ragtime."

NOT SATISFIED

But one newspaper might extol, so Manager Clark did not rest with any degree of comfort until he had canvassed about all the principal cities "My China Doll" had played in, and reports amounting to ecstasy corroborated the Quincy Herald. The Ottumwa Courier, of Sept. 21 says: "The pictures presented in 'My China Doll,' by the players in the several musical numbers, equal anything that has come here in sheer abundance and beauty. 'Chinatown,' 'The Land of Books,' 'The Land of Music,' 'The Land of Flowers,' 'The Wedding,' each brought its own gasp of amusement and delight from the well packed house." Then the Gate City, of Keokuk, Iowa was just as profuse in its praise of this clever musical extravaganza. It said in its issue of a very recent date: "Insofar as unusual scenery dazzling costumes and unique electrical effects go to constitute a measure of success, 'My China Doll,' the extravaganza, which opened the theatrical season at the Grand last night, may be counted as one of the more than ordinary productions."

Now, here is the point to be arrived at. If one takes up the same careful scrutiny of the Broadway production—those of the successful kind, he will find no more flattering critical opinion, than careful writers have expressed about this show; which should be sufficient to every fair minded theatregoer to convince him that "The China Doll," is bound to prove one of the most pleasurable musical plays that has visited Lima in many a day. It takes a little better than a good show to please nowadays, and in this instance there is every reason to believe that this is one well worth seeing. You'll hear of it on Broadway soon. It's headed that way.

It will play the Faurot next Wednesday.

SOUSA FEATURES WORK OF YOUNG COMPOSERS

Percy Grainger Takes Prominent Place on Program to Be Given in Lima

"It seems to be the thing, nowadays, for our young and successful pianists to be also young and successful composers," said Lieut. Com. John Philip Sousa, in a discussion recently. "And," he added, "I always do everything in my power to help along a good time of a good composer, and so I am furthering the music of several of the country's younger composers this year."

And since Percy Grainger is among those whose worthy music is being played by the Sousa band, it would seem that Grainger is to be considered "one of us," altho he is a native of Australia. Grainger has spent much time in this country, in the past few years, and has been received enthusiastically wherever he has played in concert, as have his compositions been received when played, and exceedingly popular they are, too.

Grainger's music, for the most part, is like Liszt's—not original compositions with the composer, but transcriptions and arrangements of folk music. The old music of Merry England ripples thru the compositions bearing the name of Percy Grainger, and it is one of these "The Country Garden," that has brought this young composer much favorable mention. Sousa and his band will play "The Country Garden" in their concert at Memorial hall on Wednesday, Oct. 24. The House of Porter is in charge of the program.

"SIX DAYS" IS LYRIC'S FEATURE FOR WEEK

Screen Dramatization of Elinor Glyn's Novel Comes As Goldwyn Picture

IN "Six Days," the new Goldwyn photoplay which appears at the Lyric theatre for the entire week, Elinor Glyn, author of the sensational "Three Weeks," tells one of her most original and colorful stories. It has powerful drama, swift action, with characters all drawn in bold relief. There are thrilling episodes and spectacular events in this screen story which was directed by Charles Drabin, the man responsible for "Driven."

"THE SPANISH DANCER" IS BOOKED AT QUILNA

Play is First to Come Here in New Demonstration Plan of Paramount

AS noted in another column the Quilna theatre has been designated as one of the demonstration points of Paramount's new screen productions and commences its new relations with this powerful organization today with the presentation of "The Spanish Dancer," featuring Pola Negri and Antonio Moreno.

Manager Cunningham saw a private screening of the picture in Detroit last week and returned with a glowing account of its merits. He states that with the possible exception of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," no photoplay can approach it in genuine dramatic power, entrancing beauty of settings and costumes, brilliancy of action and strength of cast.

Miss Negri is given a role of sympathetic interest and Moreno is the reasons. The girl meets and falls in love with the man's son. They are married in circumstances that lead them to expect certain death. Rescued separately, the girl is forced to marry the father and is then claimed by his son. Suspense is admirably acclaimed; the photography is clear with many extraordinarily beautiful shots and the story is one sure to appeal to every taste.

Corlino Griffith, one of the popular screen stars of the day, is seen at her best as Lallie Kingston, an American girl engaged to Sir Charles Chelwyn, but who falls in love with the latter's son, Frank Mayo is featured in the role of the lover. Both give extremely good and appealing performances. The cast contains many other notable names such as Myrtle Steadman, Claude King, Maude George and Charles Clary.

TO THE PUBLIC:

The gratification of the Quilna management on our theatre being selected by Paramount as a demonstration point for their new pictures is greatly enhanced by the fact that the first production to be shown under this arrangement is "The Spanish Dancer." I saw a private screening of this picture in Detroit last Tuesday and in my opinion it is a masterpiece of film art. Nothing so colorful, so dramatic, so full of spirited action has been seen on the screen in a long time and the production is one of dazzling splendor. Pola Negri has her first sympathetic role and will be a revelation to you. Her support is flawless. Patrons of the Quilna will find "The Spanish Dancer" a delight from beginning to end.

A Convenience—Not a Luxury

The day when cab riding was a luxury in Lima has gone forever. There was a time, before YELLOW CAB came, when cab service, such as it was, was costly.

Today, however, everyone is enjoying the benefits of unsurpassed cab service at five-and-ten-cent store rates. YELLOW CAB has ushered in a new era of cheap transportation.

Business men, women, young folks, people of all stations in life, are riding in YELLOW CABS as a result of our low rates and courteous service. The cost is so low that it is an actual economy for them to ride in YELLOW CABS.

YELLOW CABS enable business men to transact more business in a day, make shopping and calls a pleasure for the ladies and add to the enjoyment of the pleasures of the young. Mothers send their children to school in Yellow Cabs because they know they are safe from harm in our care.

For the one who has no automobile, and the one who has as well, YELLOW CAB now offers quick, dependable transportation at very low rates. Our service is cheaper than owning a private car and is much more convenient.

JESSE L. LASKY writes:
"I just finished looking at a dozen reels of 'The Spanish Dancer,' which looks as big in production as 'The Four Horsemen' and 'Robin Hood.' We have produced a super-special that will make motion picture history."
"Pola Negri is a revelation; Antonio Moreno is the most gallant, romantic, lovable figure as 'Don Cesar' that I have ever seen upon the screen. You can imagine Wallace Beery as the king. The story is tremendously dramatic, with wonderful comedy relief and brilliancy, romance and beauty in every scene."
Written for the screen by June Mathis and Beulah Marie Dix from the play "Don Cesar de Bazan" by Adolphe D'Ennery and P. S. P. Dumas.

NEW POWERS WON BY STRESEMANN

Emergency Measure Is Put Thru The Reichstag

OPPOSED BY COMMUNISTS

Session Held in Atmosphere Of Intense Excitement

BERLIN — (Associated Press) — The reichstag Saturday adopted the emergency bill giving Chancellor Stresemann extra constitutional authority to deal with the grave economic and financial situation of Germany as he sees it. The vote was 316 to 24, with seven abstaining, among the latter being Hugo Stinnes, the industrial magnate.

When President Loeb of the reichstag opened the session shortly after one p. m., it was in an atmosphere of intense excitement. The house was densely packed with deputies, the public galleries were overcrowded and thousands surrounded the reichstag building.

It was uncertain until the last moment which way the voting would go, as the coalition parties turned out in full strength and the chancellor held over the house the alternative of dissolution if it did not vote the measure.

COMMUNISTS HISS The debate began with the usual denunciation of the government by the Communists. The Bavarian People's party spokesman then announced that the party could not withdraw from the house. This settled the fate of the bill, which the demonstrative withdrawal of the Nationalists was unable to alter and the result of the vote was received with applause from all parts of the house, except among the Communists, who booed and hissed.

While that section of the press supporting the chancellor is jubilant over the outcome it may be said that the man in the street is considerably less elated, as public opinion, regardless of party affiliation, undoubtedly would have welcomed dissolution of the reichstag and the election of a ministerial dictatorship.

Impatience over the reichstag's failure to constitute itself a constructive legislative agency for the promotion of urgent enterprise and social relief measures has acquired such a cumulative force throughout the country that a non-parliamentary era would have been welcomed if only for the popular belief that any substitute for the present reichstag would have been acceptable.

STORES LOOTED

DUESSELDORF — (Associated Press) — Fifty or more stores were sacked for food and clothing in Duesseldorf during Saturday by unemployed and lawless elements, and the looting continued Saturday night almost unhindered, except by a few resolute, but quickly vanquished, store and shop keepers. Piling likewise is reported from many other parts of the Ruhr.

The French troops at request of the city authorities took over protection of the public buildings because since the French disbanded the security police, there remains only two hundred blue police who are able to do little against the plunderers. French armored cars and cavalry frequently cleared the streets today, but the crowds scattered only to gather again when the troops passed.

The French have also placed detachments to guard the buildings where the allied personnel are employed, but otherwise have adopted a strict "hands off policy." The German population in general showed an apathetic attitude or found the scenes amusing, no one even trying to dissuade the looters from breaking open the stores and emptying them of merchandise.

Many of the half-hundred stores entered were stripped completely. Pillagers this afternoon broke into one department store in the heart of the city and carried off about three hundred suits of clothes and a large amount of other merchandise. One looter came out carrying a lavender suit of high visibility which he tried on in the presence of a laughing crowd at the foot of the Von Moltke statue. This attitude of disinterested amusement was adopted even by scores of French soldiers who mingled with the Germans.

Plundering is reported from Duisburg, Buer, Bochum, Cologne and a number of small towns like Neustadt in the French area, where German police fired, wounding eleven. The situation at Duisburg became more menacing with the complete shutdown of 18 large factories employing about 100,000 operatives.

BANKERS ASSERT OPTIMISM

Lima Men Back From Group 2 Meeting Held at Celina

Round table discussions of the 300 bankers attending the meeting of group 2 of the Ohio Bankers' Association at Celina, Friday brought out the fact that most of the bankers in this district are optimistic regarding the business and financial outlook for this section of Ohio.

Mercer-co bankers were hosts to the bankers of the group and the Lima bankers who attended the meeting are loud in their praise of the entertainment afforded. One of the features was a fish dinner.

H. O. Jones of the Old National bank, Lima, was re-elected secretary of the group and C. P. Palmer, cashier of the Continental bank of Celina, was elected vice chairman. He will fill out the unexpired term of the late S. W. McFarland, of Wapakoneta, who was chairman of the group at the time of his death. Resolutions of respect to his memory were adopted by the meeting.

Dr. Jacob Vinor, professor of economics of Chicago University, gave the principal address, his subject being "The Present Situation." J. B. Huntington, Columbus, vice president of the Ohio Bankers' Association, also delivered an address. City Manager C. A. Bingham, of Lima, urged the bankers to support the Taft tax law at the referendum election in November.

Y. W. C. A. PLANS SUPPER

Offers Interesting Program For Industrial Clubs

Industrial clubs affiliated with the Y. W. C. A. will hold the monthly supper, Wednesday at 5:45 p. m., when Judge Florence Allen, of Cleveland, is expected to speak.

Each club will have a table, decorated in the club colors, and at which members of each organization will be seated.

Miss Florence Hayes and Miss Bernice Phelps, of Dayton and Toledo, International Institute, will tell of work with the foreign people.

Foreign-born girls representing Czech-Slovakia, Italy and Greece will be present and favor with songs, folk dances and talks. R. B. Miksell will sing.

Recreation in the gymnasium has been planned from 7 to 7:30 p. m., under the direction of Miss Mary Hagerd. Current events class, basketball, chess and a knitting class will assemble at 7:30. More than 100 members are affiliated in these classes.

The association will hold the first vesper service of the autumn today on the lawn at the country home of Mrs. D. J. Cable. Services will begin at 3 p. m. Girls wishing to walk out to the Cable country place will meet at the association rooms at 2:30 p. m.

A meeting of finance workers will be held for lunch and a business session Monday at 12:30 p. m., at the Y. W. C. A. A joint meeting of the religious work committee and world fellowship committees will be held Monday at 7 p. m.

The industrial department of the association will give a Halloween mask party to the north side Delser-Wemmer girls and their girl friends Friday at 7:45 p. m.

The past week has been an active one in the girls reserve department. The Alumnae Blue Triangle club, composed of alumnae members of both Blue Triangle clubs, held the second meeting, with election of officers Monday night.

The following were chosen to head the club for the year: President, Elizabeth Lamb; Vice President, Beatrice Robinson; secretary-treasurer, Cecile Valentine. The club was addressed by Miss Grace Reynolds, industrial secretary, on "The Version of the Y. W. C. A." Plans were made for a Halloween party, a masquerade to be held at the home of Miss Audrey Shade, Oct. 22.

The South Blue Triangle club held the recognition service at the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday afternoon, at which time eighty new members were initiated into the club. The initiation service was followed by a stunt, "High Spots at Conference," put on by the girls from both South and Central, who attended the Girl Reserve Conference at Winona Lake.

Leroy Federspiel and Mrs. Harry Wilcox, a son and daughter, respectively, who reside in Cleveland, also survive.

CANDIDATE GETS REMINISCENT

J. H. Wahnhoff, Delphos, Thinks Times Have Been Worse

RECALLS PAY OF $3 WEEK

Remembers Being in Business 58 Years in One Store

DELPHOS—"I heard they had switched opponents on me," said J. H. Wahnhoff, Democratic nominee for mayor of Delphos, Friday afternoon as he came into the Delphos bureau to get a copy of Wednesday's Lima News to read the article about the mixup in Republican candidates. "I want to see what there is to it," he continued, as he looked over the said Wahnhoff, "who I understand said Mr. Leasure was the Republican nominee. It makes no difference to me anyhow. I didn't want the nomination and I am not making any campaign. I have served the people in official capacities many years and when I retired from active business last January I thought I was thru and had done my share," he continued. "Then he became reminiscent."

"I was in business in Delphos in one store 58 years, and 51 years of that time I held offices in the city, township or county," he said. He enumerated the various positions he had held. Eight of the years he was a member of the city council, several more in the fire department, and nearly as many on the school board.

"The people want me for mayor they will have to elect me. I feel that I have served my time and quit office and business to rest."

WAS 24 IN 1855 "In 1855, when I was 24, I obtained a position in the drug and jewelry store of Hunt & Walsh. My father had died and I was the oldest of the children, so I had to help my widowed mother support the family. One of the ways we thought we wouldn't do as I was too short to reach goods on the second shelf, but the other said, 'Oh, let's give him a trial anyway,' and so I got the job at $2 per week and thought, 'I'll be the first month I was much relieved and I continued in that same store until I retired last January, having been clerk, partner and proprietor."

"People don't know what hard times we've had here in Delphos. When I was yet on the home farm, and before I was 15 years old, I took bushels of potatoes to Delphos to sell, wheeling them two miles thru the mud on a wheelbarrow. We children used to gather herbs and roots and berries in the woods and take them to town to sell to get money for shoes and clothes. We would walk barefoot to the edge of town, carrying our shoes then wash our feet in the creek, wipe them on a towel we brought along, and put on our shoes to wear in town. When we went to school we wore wooden shoes. In those days coffee was 50 cents per pound; tea was $2 a pound, shoes cost as much as they do now, and calico and cotton clothes were of cents a yard. We sold eggs for 2 and 4 cents a dozen and milked cows, churned the cream, and sold the butter for 5 to 8 cents a pound."

"We had no automobiles, nor any of the luxuries of the present day. We had to live very economically. When I hear men telling that they are getting $2 to $3 a day now and yet complain of hard times I feel like telling them they don't know what hard times are, and don't realize how well off they are," continued Wahnhoff.

Ind. Miss Margeurite Cramer also spoke.

WEIGHING OF CHILDREN IS BEGUN AT DELPHOS

DELPHOS.—Weighing of the children in the public schools is in progress under direction of the public health nurse. When all the children have been weighed and examined, a list will be made of those under weight and under-nourished, and a half pint of milk will be furnished each morning and afternoon during the school year to all such.

Last year the number was around 65, and beneficial results were noticeable. The teachers assist the nurse in the weighing and keeping of records after the first weighing, greatly simplifying her work and allowing her more time for service outside the schools.

The money to pay for the milk used is provided from the annual sale of Christmas seals, sale of which will start the first of Dec.

SAFETY HEAD

Lewis A. DeBlols of Wilmington, Del., is the newly elected president of the National Safety League and will direct that organization's nation-wide campaign against accidents in home, street and industry.

$600 IS DELPHOS SEAL GOAL

Plans Shaping for Red Cross Tuberculosis Campaign

DELPHOS — Six hundred dollars, which means the sale of 60,000 seals, is the goal set by the local health bureau for the Christmas seals drive this year. Although the campaign does not open until Dec. 1, the bureau has already received calls for the seals. Supplies have not been received here, but if they had, no seals would be sold until the appointed time set by the state officials in charge of the distribution and sale.

Headquarters for the seals will be at the office of Dr. N. E. Brundage, as heretofore, it was stated there yesterday.

Last year, the Delphos goal was set at $300, and the actual receipts were $392.24, which meant the sale of 39,224 seals. Delphos was third in this district, with per capita sales of 6.9. Sidney was first with per capita sales of 9.5, and Findlay was second, with a per capita of 7.6.

The design of the seal this year is very attractive, and much different than that of last year. The colors are chiefly red and green—Christmas colors. A child in green is sitting before a fireplace in red, wearing Santa Claus in the flames. Santa is white and red. Over the fireplace, on a background of light green, are the words, "Merry Christmas, 1934." On either side of the double crown in red, are the words, "Red Cross." The proceeds of the sale, Delphos will retain 50 per cent for local health work. Ten per cent goes to the Ohio public health service work and ten per cent to the National Anti-Tuberculosis society, with headquarters in Washington. Last year's funds were used to supply milk daily to under-nourished children attending the public schools. The same use will be made of the money this year. Good results have been shown from this work, done under the auspices of the public health nurse.

LEAVE FOR WISCONSIN

DELPHOS.—Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Knight, who resided on E. Fourth-st., left for Mendota, Wisconsin, to make that their future home.

CASE IS SETTLED DELPHOS — The case of Alfred Smith, by his next friend, his father, against the Muller Implement Co., was settled Friday morning and the costs in justice court paid. Smith, who is a minor, bought an automobile of the Muller company and paid $10 on it. He could not make further payments so the company took the car back but declined to return the money. He then brought suit in Justice D. M. Bliss' court for the $70 he had paid. The hearing was to have been held Friday at 10 o'clock, but settlement made the trial unnecessary.

TEACHERS RECEPTION DELPHOS — Next Monday evening a reception will be held by the W. C. T. U. officers and members in honor of the teachers of the public schools. The affair will be held in the First Presbyterian church. Music, talks, and refreshments will be included in the program.

MARRIED AT CUMBERLAND DELPHOS — Miss Helen White of Cumberland, O., teacher in the Delphos high school last year, was united in marriage Thursday morning at her home in Cumberland to Charles Benjamin of Sidney. News of the happy event was received here Friday morning by friends. Mr. Benjamin is connected with the People's Savings & Loan association of Sidney, and the home of the bridal couple will be in that city.

ILL AT PAINEVILLE DELPHOS — Henry A. Prillman, a former resident here, is very ill at the home of his children in Painesville, O. He sustained the second stroke of paralysis last Monday, according to word received by friends here. Up to two years ago, when his first stroke came, Mr. Prillman was an old-time engineer on the Cleveland railroad. He had been in employment of the road about 30 years. After he was stricken he left Delphos to reside with his children.

"DEADBEAT" BILLS TO BE SOLD

Merchants Plan Drastic Action In Matter Of Accounts

ADVERTISEMENT PROPOSED

Educational Campaign On Credit Mapped Out

Retail merchants, members of the retail credit bureau of the board of commerce, are going to publish the names and addresses of those who get credit and then refuse to pay their bills. Along with the names and addresses will also be the statement of what the credit was for and the amount of money owing.

Decision to take this drastic step was made by the credit bureau members at their weekly luncheon Friday along with a decision to get out a new set of collection letters. There will be three letters in the new set, the first from the merchant to the customer direct and the next two for from the credit bureau to the delinquent.

WILL SELL ACCOUNTS

When no payment has been made or arrangements made to pay the bill, then will come the advertisement. This will contain a list supplied by various members of the credit bureau. The accounts will be offered for sale, thru an agent of the credit bureau, asking for bids. The title to the notice will read "Delinquent Account Sale Notice."

Prior to deciding to take drastic action to force payment of bills the credit men decided also to have an educational advertising campaign extending over a period of six months in which the main theme will be "Pay up. Keep your credit good." These advertisements will run from time to time over the six months' period, the merchants having agreed to pay for them by subscribing to a special advertising fund.

Committees to handle these activities, one credit men are soon to be named by Chairman A. S. Chenoweth of the bureau. Then will come the publication of lists, probably at least two, it was said at the credit bureau office, prior to Christmas.

There are something like 1,500 bad accounts in one line of business in Lima, according to credit bureau officials and 90 per cent of these are due, they charge, to spending incomes customer direct and the next two for

OTTAWA TO HAVE LYCEUM COURSE

Course Of Five Numbers Has Business Men's Backing

OTTAWA.—Ottawa is to have a lyceum course, to consist of five members, the course to be guaranteed by Ottawa business men.

The numbers include Granville Jones, orator, who will appear on Oct. 22; Emily Waterman, entertainer, on Feb. 15; the DeWille Concert Co. on March 19; the Cleaver Opera Singers on Jan. 15 and the Colonial Mariophone quartette on Nov. 30.

Young women of the city who had been selected to sell the tickets by the Lyceum, were guests at a dinner at the Fernal restaurant, Thursday night.

E. J. Beckman delivered an address, impressing the responsibility of the work upon minds of the young women. "D. K. McBride, a traveling salesman of Dover, O., who was here with Beckman, told of "Putting It Over."

Each of the five numbers will consist of 15 names to whom she believed she could dispose of 15 tickets. A number of the girls have more than completed sale of their quota, it was announced Saturday night.

In the party were the Misses Ruth Parrish, Nellie Cartwright, Martha Hittner, Nora Meyers, Marie Utendorf, Martin, McDowell, Eva Jane McDowell, Lottie Westrick, Mary Wilkins, Lenore Pope, Wava Stuber, Elizabeth Kerner, Ethel Fruchey, of Columbus Grove, Mary Stampe, Monies Hunchberger, of Glandorf; Helen Agnes Diermer, Dorothy Sandies, Hazel Ruch, Hilda Ball and Helen Graham.

FARM BUREAUS TO MEET
Van Buren-tp Session To Be Held On Thursday Night

LEIPSIK.—Annual meetings of township farm bureaus will begin this week and Van Buren-tp meeting has been scheduled for Thursday night in Center school house.

The program to be carried out will be similar to the one followed in each township and which was outlined by J. W. Henceroth, county agricultural agent.

D. Bright will give the annual report of directors, Guy Hummon the report of the secretary and treasurer. Mrs. W. D. Bright will give the report of the fireless cooker demonstrations.

The women of the township will read the yearly purchasing report of the township.

Charles Schroeder will speak on "Permanent Soil Fertility." F. C. M. Florence Wingate, food club leader and John Henry, pig club leader, on their various departments of work. The state chairman of the county demonstration team, and Virgil Elko, who won eighth place in the market class for pigs will tell what club work means and has done for them.

Mrs. H. Z. Zeman will tell what club work means from a mother's point of view. F. E. Perry will speak on "The Co-operative Livestock Shipper's Club." Mrs. S. C. Phillips and Mrs. Floyd Doll on Poultry Demonstration "Farm" and Mrs. Guy Hummon on "Relation of Farm Women to the Farm Bureau."

Plans will be formulated for the coming year and J. W. Henceroth county agricultural agent, will speak and show lantern slides. J. P. Gerde-mann, Ottawa, Delphos, and Mrs. Howard Stoltius, farm bureau clerk, also are on the program.

Direction of officers will complete the program.

PARENT-TEACHERS HOLD SEASON'S FIRST MEETING
CHAWWIS COLLEGE.—The Parent-Teacher association of Blanchard-tp held the first meeting of the season, Friday night, at which plans for the year were formulated.

The association was in progress last year and according to Prof. J. T. Clemmins, superintendent, was a success, and added teachers in their work and parents to a better understanding of school work.

EXTENSION CLASS SOUGHT IN NORMAL SCHOOL WORK

OTTAWA.—Teachers from Leipsic and Ottawa met Friday night in the rooms of the board of education in Ottawa and formulated plans for the organization of a class to further extension work of the Bowling Green normal school.

This work amounts to credits of three hours on work done in the school if carried out during the term.

D. R. RISSE LEFT $71,000 ESTATE

Appraisal Completed for Late Vaughnsville Man

OTTAWA.—D. R. Risser, elevator owner, lumber mill proprietor and farmer, who died in September at his home in Vaughnsville, left an estate of $71,517.93, it was shown by an inventory and appraisal of his property, filed Saturday in probate court.

The appraisers were Henry F. Light, of Columbus Grove; William Caldwell, of Rushmore, and Rudolph Raabe, of Fort Jennings.

Risser never married. His property will be divided equally between two brothers and a sister. He left no will. He resided with his sister, Mrs. Augustus Redding, at H. H. Good, his partner, was administrator of the estate.

MONROE-TP EDUCATION BOARD PASSES ON BILLS

CONTINENTAL.—Bills were allowed at the monthly meeting of the Monroe-tp board of education, held Friday night in the high school building.

At the same time the monthly meeting of the Monroe-tp teachers was held in another part of the building. The teachers have adopted the reading course as laid down by the Ohio Teachers' Reading circle. Meetings for carrying on the work will be held regularly.

SCHOOLS OF PUTNAM-CO OBSERVE COLUMBUS DAY

OTTAWA.—Significance of Columbus day was told Friday in story in all of the schools of Putnam-co. While no set programs had been arranged, every teacher told of the meaning of the day and the part the discovery played in the development of the world.

Banks of the county did not open for business and many business houses and court offices closed.

Members of the order of Knights of Columbus here journeyed to Lima to attend the celebration of Columbus day.

DR. FOWLER IN HOSPITAL
OTTAWA.—Dr. John Fowler, ill for sometime at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. P. Leasure, on Thursday was removed to St. Rita's hospital, Lima, for treatment. Fowler was a former Ottawa dentist. Another sister, Mrs. W. J. Leasure, of Columbus Grove, visited him here before he was taken to the hospital. The transfer was made in the Herringhaus & Pope invalid coach.

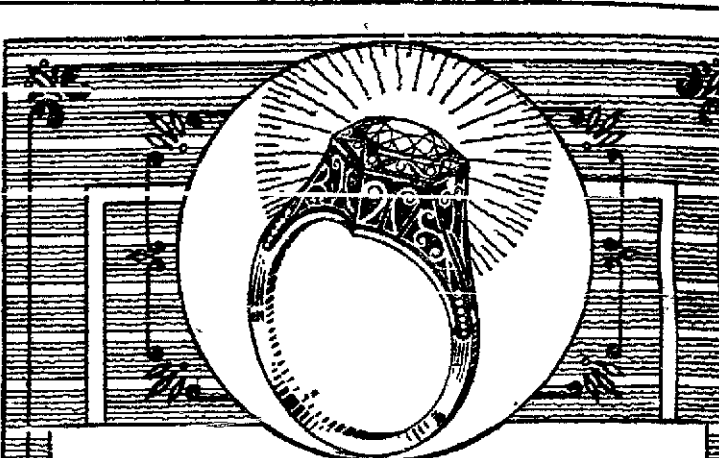

THE CAMEL SQUAWK

It may be all right to walk a mile for a camel, but here's proof a camel hollers when he has to walk the mile. This animal, like the of his brainy brethren, is used as a draught animal in Samara Russia. They have mean tempers, always try to bite persons standing near them, and are usually complaining in loud raucous tones.

OBTAINS SCHOOL
OTTAWA.—Miss Vera Davison, who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pope, obtained a school in Hayland, Ohio, just north of Wheeling, W. Va., on the Ohio side. Miss Davison writes she is well pleased with the place.

REMOVED FROM HOSPITAL
OTTAWA.—Dr. John Fowler, who several days ago was removed to St. Rita's hospital, Lima, for treatment,

LIMA'S ONLY CASH FURNITURE STORE

We Court Comparison—We Invite Inspection

Stop and consider that cash is king, and that when you buy furniture from a cash furniture store you are not paying for the other fellow's credit nor are you paying interest on an unpaid balance.

It is only reasonable that a business should and does figure a reasonable amount of interest on money loaned and also the amount of money lost on bad accounts and that is what it really amounts to when furniture is bought on credit.

We buy for cash and sell for cash. Have no credit losses and feel that a call at our store will prove to you the saving that is yours by paying cash.

"One of the Greatest Inventions of the Age"

The NuBain Hot Blast

The Nubian Hot Blast consumes smoke, gases and every combustible element in any fuel.

The Nubian by discharging superheated air over burning fuel ignites the smoke and gases, which in most stoves are lost up the chimney.

In the Nubian—the superheated air is discharged through a slotted ring directly over the burning fuel, thus entirely consuming the smoke and gas wasted in ordinary heaters and permitting the economical use of practically any fuel without smoke, dirt or clinkers.

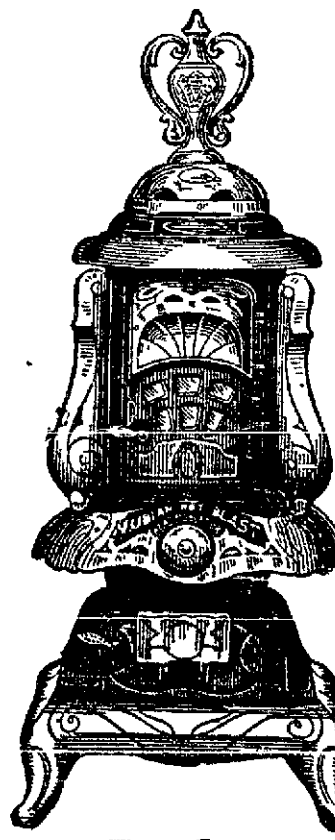

After the gas is consumed, a fine bed of pure coke remains, every ounce of which is utilized in heat production.

Nubian Hot Blasts are made by The Indianapolis Store Company, established in Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1849. The record of these successful manufacturers for over seventy years, not only as a guarantee of this product, but assures you reliable, established service on replacements for any part.

A complete cast iron stove including bowl. Comes full nickel trimmed. We guarantee this bowl to last a life time.

WHEN young Allister McCormick, heir to a large lump of the McCormick reaper millions, and on-again-off-again fiancee of Miss Mary Landon Baker, the capricious Chicago heiress beauty, announced his unexpected engagement to Miss Joani Stevens, of London, England, society in two hemispheres smiled broadly.

Society had begun to believe that Allister, left high and dry by Miss Baker no less than eight times, had the halbit. What, asked society, broke him of it? This is the answer the wise ones give—Alistair McCormick, like a man surfeited with fancy cooking, who craves simple home fare, merely went to the "other extreme."

Perhaps the pictures on this page explain this theory even better than the wise ones can. They tell a story in contrasts—the very contrasts, no doubt, that sprang to the much-jilted Mr. McCormick's mind when he made his choice between Miss Baker and Miss Stevens.

Here are the pictures of Miss Baker—a batch of them selected among dozens that have been brightening the front pages of the nation's newspapers ever since Mary Landon Baker made her glided debut on the Gold Coast. Mary, in air, playing tennis; Mary perched rakishly on the rail of a transatlantic liner; Mary dancing in the chorus of a society ball; Mary in a war worker's uniform, fox-trotting with Gaston Maurer, of the French Alpine chasseur.

In short, Miss Baker's career has been much like that of other rich, restless, high-spirited American girls with a yearn for adventure.

Marriage was suggested to Miss Baker, and Miss Baker accepted the suggestion. She became engaged to Allister McCormick in the Winter of 1921, and all her friends said, "Well, we suppose flyaway Mary will settle down at last!" But Mary was still a rich, restless, high-spirited American girl. If pictures had been taken of this phase of her capriciousness, they would be something like this:

May, 1921—Allister McCormick, his groomsmen and his guests waiting forlornly at the church; a message arrives, "Miss Baker indisposed."

January, 1922—Allister McCormick, his groomsmen and his guests again waiting forlornly at the church; another message, "Miss Baker indisposed."

February, 1922—Miss Baker cancelling her steamship passage in New York immediately after announcing she would marry Allister McCormick as soon as she arrived in England.

April, 1922—Miss Baker, sailing, says the wedding surely will take place; Miss Baker, reaching London, says the wedding has been postponed a fourth time.

Exactly what Allister McCormick's feelings were all this time, only his best friends know. It was, of course, part of his code to say nothing. Presumably,

"YES."

Again pictures tell the story. There were only a few of them, but "home girl" was written all over them. Miss Stevens, young and dimpled and shy, posed in a simple white pleated dress and sweater; Miss Stevens, with her mother and her little brother, on the lawn of the unpretentious family home—these were typical of Allister's new fiancée.

"We may be wrong," the gossips murmur, "but it seems to us that after his experience with 'contrary Mary,' Allister has decided to play a contented Darby with an old-fashioned Joan!"

Taming Europe's Royal Cut-Ups with a 4-Cornered Match

"Peppy" Princess Marie-Jose, Whose Parents, the King and Queen of the Belgians, Hope She Will "Calm Down" When Wedded to Prince Umberto, of Italy.

Kings and Queens Have as Many Woes with Their Kids as Do Plain Folks, So the Monarchs Hope Marriage Will Make Their Youngsters Behave

At Right: Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium, Betrothed to Princess Mafalda, of Italy.

Meditative Princess Mafalda, Caught in One of Her Rare Moments of Animation, Before the Recent Report of Her Attempted Suicide.

POOOR, distracted old Europe's most vexing problem, which isn't one of boundary lines, or possible prohibition, or even the latest gasp in Paris gowns, finally has been solved. Or, at least, four personages (who ought to know) think so.

They are King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, of Belgium, and King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, of Italy. Their dilemma—to tame two troublesome, though charming, children, the "cut-ups of the Continent"—has been untangled at last. How? Why, with a four-cornered match in which the pair of madcaps figure!

One of the latter is the twenty-year-old Umberto Nicholas Thomas Jean Marie, officially known as the Prince of Piedmont and the Chevalier of the Order of the Annunciation. The other is seventeen-year-old Marie-Jose. He, however, is unofficially known as the "Daredevil of Rome," while his bride-to-be has a string of roguish nicknames which include "Colonel Princess," the "Belgian Firefly," and the "Fair Matador."

You may judge from this that both the Prince and the Princess are veritable temperamental cannon-crackers. Their married life, whatever else it may be, isn't likely to prove spiceless. After they wed, just WHAT will happen? This is the question which the gossips from Rome to Brussels are asking one another, with shrugs, winks and chuckles.

For the little tomboy and the "royal Boy Scout," as her fiancé, is affectionately termed, have in common peppery tempers, unlimited love of adventure, and the dash and bravado that go with romantic natures.

But, fascinating as they are, Umberto and Marie-Jose, after all, form only two sides of the latest matrimonial rectangle. The other couple are Crown Prince Leopold, Duke of Brabant, and the Princess Mafalda, of Italy.

Oddly enough, Leopold is the brother of Marie-Jose, and Mafalda is Umberto's sister. More oddly still, while Marie-Jose and Umberto, betrothed to one another, are as like in disposition as the proverbial peas, Mafalda and Leopold, also engaged, share striking similarities of personality.

They are gentle, tractable, mild—even on occasion, meek, it's said. They are studious, retiring, simple in their tastes, and much given to meditation. In short, they are as much unlike the "Fair Matador" and the "Daredevil of Rome" as they could be.

Naturally, the four-cornered match does not lack political significance. It is to unite, perhaps for all time, the two great houses of Savoy and Saxe-Coburg.

and-Gotha. But, the diplomatic wise-ones declare, the parents of the engaged quartette had more in mind when they planned the alliances than just international harmony. They were thinking how jolly it would be if the two "live wires" should fall in love, and stop throwing off so many sparks.

Let's suppose—and it's not impossible—that Umberto and Marie-Jose are devoted to each other, and pass on to a character sketch of the former. From babyhood, he has had his own way—with a vengeance. It is recorded that at six he tyrannized over his household with the vigor of a pugilist and the "airs" of a major domo. There are many confirming incidents.

There was the episode of the picnic, when he leaped toward a jutting rock, fell, and hurt his knee. Scolded by his mother, he snatched an orange from a servant and hurled it into the sea. "You must beg the man's pardon," declared Queen Helena, "or go without candy for a week!" For seven days Umberto never touched a sweetmeat.

There was, too, the time when Umberto was made head of the Young Explorers of Italy, equivalent to our Boy Scouts. Clad in very "dressy" white starched things, he rebelled; created panic in the royal household and finally ended the rumpus by donning a "regular" uniform, to the horror of his dressers.

And there was a day when, seeing marching soldiers in the lower Isonzo Hills, Umberto, mad about military matters, threw himself amongst them; shouted "I'll go wherever you're going!" and even emulated them to the shocking extent of taking off his stockings and plodding along barefoot beside them!

"Rather like his mother," laugh the Romans. They do not mean, however, that Queen Helena is hoisterous, but simply that her dark, Montezuma beauty is reflected in the glowing face of her son. Despite their resemblance, there are things which Umberto has done that his mother never could. He has soared aloft in airplanes—gone beneath the sea's surface in submarines—steered warships—sailed boats—shot wild boars and ridden wilder horses.

He served as an ordinary seaman in the Italian Navy. He cruised the Mediterranean in a man-of-war. He entered the army as a private in 1922, working his way up to a sub-lieutenancy. "SOME boy!" say American tourists in Rome, when told of his "goings-on."

Now Umberto's fiancée, Marie-Jose, hasn't had all these chances to test her mettle. But, for a girl, she has amply proved her high spirits and whatever is Belgian for pep. Educated at a broad-minded British school, the "Firefly" skimmed through the exhilarating air of democratic ideas with eager wings. Even when she studied, later, at the famous Santissima Annunziata Institute, in Florence, she never swanked or swaggered over her social standing. Living a Spartan life—plain food, early bedtime, rigorous exercise—she was boundedly healthy, also popular. "A sore trial to her teachers, but a rapturous joy to the other children"; thus was she summed up.

"Colonel Princess," aflame with gaiety, her bushy blonde hair catching the light like a fluffy halo, indulged in many pranks. At the age of six, after "trying on" her mother's diamond tiara, she flung it aside with contempt, exclaiming, "Take that thing away! It's not for a soldier like me!" And, enthralled with everything military, she went quite wild with delight when her father "presented" her with a regiment, the Garde Civique of Ostend.

How at various times she lectured learned physicians for "not curing Daddy soon enough"; turned somersaults before her mother's astounded guests in the palace; stuck out her tongue at a Brussels crowd and drew caricatures of fellow pupils—these and many more amusing tales are recounted of her.

Contrast this vivid little person with the sombre Mafalda. Only recently the report sped from Rome that so great was this delicate girl's devotion to her sister, Giovanna, that she could not bear to be separated from her, even by marriage. Then the serious illness of both princesses gave rise to the rumor of their attempted suicide. The world, horrified, could not help marveling at such a spirit of unity and self-sacrifice.

But Mafalda, so runs the gossip, is not less grave and subdued in nature than her intended, Prince Leopold. Though a thoroughly manly chap, he is, in all, a masculine mirror of his betrothed. "Why, each couple seems just made for one another!" That is the way Rome and Brussels have greeted the four-cornered wedding announcement. But the voices of the cynics will not be still. "THAT so?" they cry. "The two mild youngsters may hit it off perfectly. But Umberto and Marie-Jose? It will take more than a mere marriage to tame those charming cut-ups!"

When the 400's Egyptian Ball Got Too Realistic —

Then Came the Crushing Snub from the Daring Dancer to the Dignified Dowager—"Mind Your Own Business! My Art Is Authentic, Aesthetic and Perfectly Proper!"

Two New York Society Debutantes, Leaning on "King Tut's Pup," Which, Despite Its Grotesque Spots, Caused Less of a Sensation Than Miss St. Denis at the Egyptian Ball.

Marc Antony deserting the Queen of Egypt to pursue a slender dancing girl! The slave's husband, mutely peevisish, vastly put out at his wife's popularity! The Alexandrian court aghast and amused at the incident!

These are episodes for which you may scan the history of the Ptolemies in vain. Yet they DID happen. And all because New York society and the stage took up cudgels in the battle over "Art Versus Propriety."

Numerically, society had the best of it, though art was represented by the renowned dancer, Ruth St. Denis.

"Did you ever SEE such a costume?" whispered Mrs. J. Theus Munds, 400 leader and arbiter of fashion, as she shivered (but only with indignation) under her pearls and silks.

"And did you ever even READ OF such gyrations?" whispered back Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, raising a most un-Egyptian lorgnette to her wondering eyes.

"SOMEBODY should do SOMETHING about it!" muttered Mrs. Carroll Wainwright, with elevated brows and pursed lips. Her exclamation was echoed by a chorus of blue-blooded mutterers, including such notable matrons as Mrs. Lytle Fox, Mrs. J. P. Satterlee and Mrs. Frank V. Storrs.

Society, you see, after "starting something"—an elaborate Egyptian ball—had quailed about finishing it.

The climax, still regarded as fresh gossip behind Fifth Avenue's discreet doors, would never have occurred if only the blue-bookers hadn't felt such a charitable urge. But society folk are usually altruistic, so when someone suggested a benefit for the New York Auxiliary of the Women's International Alliance, there wasn't a dissenting voice.

It was to be a subscription affair. It was to be a "period" affair. And it was to mark the last step in gorgeousness of costume, richness of gems, authentic "atmosphere."

Thrones and runways and a courtyard were constructed in the Ritz-Carlton, to the ring of a pretty penny.

The committee smiled, rubbed its hands and awaited the great evening. In due course, the evening came. So did the "Nubians," beauties, orchestra—and Miss St. Denis.

Now, the idea of getting her to dance for the guests was not a hit-or-miss scheme to lend "tone" to the ball. It was a carefully arranged proceeding to clinch the "realism" of the Egyptian "atmosphere." For Miss St. Denis is famous, from India to Indianapolis, for her Oriental postures.

So far, so good. Mrs. Munds, regally garbed as Helen of Troy, beamed at the in-pouring, heavily subscribed guests. Mrs. Satterlee, in Tutankhamen's tunic and opal-encrusted sandals, wore a look that seemed to say, "We said we'd show them, and we're going to!"

But just then in wafted Ruth, and a d a f t e r Ruth, the deluge!

She was gowned. She was bejeweled. She was graceful. But the gown, say the gossips, was a shred of gold cloth, a violet-colored personating Cleopatra.

Peering eyes, focusing on what ensued, detected a most striking disregard for historical facts. No sooner, add the tattlers, had Mr. Knight spied Miss St. Denis, undulating rhythmically in the soft glow of a "baby" spotlight, than he flew to the sidelines of the dancing floor. And there he stuck, like a bit of magnetized steel.

Cleopatra bore up nobly, even if her nose did lift slightly in disdain, according to onlookers. But there was another lifted nose in the vicinity. It belonged to Ted Shawn, Miss St. Denis' husband. Mr. Shawn, also noted as a dancer, had come to the ball with his wife. He was on the sidelines, too. So how could he help noticing the attentions of Antony.

He couldn't. He didn't. But just as an irate glow appeared in his eye, Fate, in the form of a portly dowager, cut the knot of cross-purposes into which the situation had resolved itself. Miss St. Denis had just executed a particularly sinuous writhes (on strictly Egyptian lines) when a white-haired matron advanced to her and quietly remonstrated.

"Really, really, my dear," she began, in a low tone, "realism is no doubt desirable, but don't you think this is just a little—well—too—ummm—realistic?"

Was Miss St. Denis abashed? Did she stammer, blush, call for her cloak and a taxi, beat a retreat? She did not.

"See here, Mrs. —," she retorted, "it's all very well for you to take that stand, but it won't go—with me. You society people may regard dancing as a lark, something to amuse yourselves with for five minutes. For me, it's as serious as death or taxes. It's my life work—an art form to which I've devoted years of study."

"You wanted the 'real thing.' Well, you're getting it. And now, please, be good enough to leave me to my job and attend to your own—whatever that may be, aside from censoring artists who are laboring to amuse you!"

Just what happened next? Ah, as to that, the Paul Pry's of Fifth Avenue are demurely mute. But whether the dowager broke down or the ball broke up, one thing is certain.

At our next charity fete—so says New York society, with only a few dissenting voices—realism will NOT run rampant. And if it MUST be a "period" function, let us choose, not ancient Egypt, but the Arctic regions!

When a Millionaire's Daughter Goes in the Movies

How the Rough Edges Are Smoothed Down for Fantastic Mary Hartje, of the Four-Motor-Cars, Who Goes to the "Lot" to Work for $7.50 a Day.

Craig Biddle, Jr., Scion of an Old Philadelphia Family, Who Has Millions Behind Him and a Film Wage of $7.50 a Day Ahead of Him.

FILMDOM is devoting many otherwise occupied hours to talking over the chances of a daughter of wealth and social position within its own peculiar field.

Does she stand an even opportunity to compete with women whose perceptions have been sharpened and experiences broadened by years of service first on the stage and then on the lot?

For example are opportunities even—or otherwise—for the spectacular achievement of the former Mary Louise Hartje, daughter of the late Augustus Hartje, millionaire paper manufacturer of Pittsburgh?

Member of one of America's old families, figure in the society of Pittsburgh, New York and Newport, Mary Louise Woods, as she is known on the records of the casting directors of Hollywood, startled the country when she eloped with J. L. Woods, Pittsburgh clubman. Now that she has attained the age of twenty-two and complete disillusionment, she has set out to discard society, attain freedom and help along the silver sheet.

The people of the silent drama called her "The Million Dollar Extra Girl." Incidentally, she is said to have brought four motor cars with her to Hollywood.

Among Miss Hartje's supporters who rally round her are many of the country's millionaire set. Craig Biddle, figure of Philadelphia fashion and wealth, frequently is her escort. Craig's younger brother, George Drexel Biddle, is another of her friends who now hopes one day to attain stardom in the newest of the nation's great industries.

The exquisite Charlotte Merriam, known as "Maine's most beautiful girl," is another daughter of the very rich who is trying her luck in the movies. Charlotte invaded Hollywood from the army post at Fort Preble, Maine, where her father, Colonel Henry Clay Merriam reared her from childhood.

Then there is the "Million Dollar Flapper," Miss Margaret Caldwell Shotwell, sixteen-year-old daughter of a distinguished Omaha lawyer, who went to Hollywood fresh from the seclusion of a finishing school for girls at Omaha.

J. Borden Harriman, son of Mrs. Oliver Harriman and nephew of E. H. Harriman, is appearing in the unattractive role of a bartender in the film version of a crook story. From the limelight of the social world he has dropped into comparative obscurity in the mimic world.

Does "young Harriman" stand a real chance to "make good?" Will Little Charlotte Merriam and Margaret Caldwell Shotwell find difficulty in "arriving?" What is Mary Louise Woods, born Hartje, to find in the life awaiting her in Hollywood? Listen to the words of one who knows the life on the "lot."

By Gene Strong

WHAT mean these buds and buddies of social status entering the silent drama? Is the lure of the studio lights more attractive than their native round of gayety?

Well, we who have worked in front of the spot-light don't blame them. It's the most fascinating work in the world and we understand why farmers, bank clerks, bus-boys, stenographers and so on throw up their regular jobs to go "into the pictures."

Tragedy lurks back of those who come empty-handed. Starvation stares them in the face, for checks are essential when work stops—which is often. What, then, are these "lilies of the fields" likely to encounter?

First of all they never will be compelled to stand with a crowd of "extras," extending sometimes to the side-walk, jostled and pushed about, in order to get a job. Phone calls will eliminate such a condition for those in the social register.

But can people who always have known luxury "emote," portray deep feeling? Most celebrities have faced hunger. Pauline Starke was a half orphan, scarcely able to exist. Pearl White, it is said, was employed on a ship, cleaning up refuse. The Pickfords were poor. Most talented persons have been "driven."

If Miss Hartje entered pictures without disclosing her identity she might be requested to appear in a bathroom scene, as did one girl of my acquaintance. Seated in a tub of water the girl was supposed to leap from the tub, back to the camera, and run for her life when a lion wandered upon the scene. Men were stationed outside the range of the camera ready to fire in case of emergency. But when the animal entered with hair bristling the girl was frightened into hysterics and they were obliged to cut the scene as being too dangerous. Lack of funds made the girl attempt to go through with an act of this kind.

Miss Hartje, of course, never will be pressed into doing anything so distasteful.

Another girl was engaged to dance on a table, clad in some bells and ribbons, at a portrayal of a stag affair. She had been an artist's model, and took the work as a pure business proposition, it being her first venture in pictures. Later when she appeared on sets women ignored her, but the male gender of the profession gave her plenty of side glances. Finally, chagrined, she returned to her old work of modeling.

Lately it seems to be the fad among stars to appear scantily clad. Miss Hartje can follow suit, if she wishes, since everybody is doing it. On one set I visited recently there were fifty girls among seventy unkempt negroes. It was a slave market in which the negroes clutched the girls in apparent frenzy. Would Miss Hartje have enjoyed that? In another picture a crowd of derelicts was brought from the Bowery and allowed to make advances to the girls!

How would the daughter of luxury enjoy being on a ship with sulphur sticks being burned all around to give the appearance of a huge fire?

Borden Harriman, Son of Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Becomes a Bartender in the Land of Make-Believe.

Mary Caldwell Shotwell, Another Millionaire's Daughter Who Is "Crashing" the Movies.

Swimmers jumped from the decks and the smoke was so intense that a number just escaped death. Stars and principals stood on the landing, away from danger.

In another picture an actress I know was struck—by accident of course—in the chest by an actor applying a cat-ninetails. After emerging from a faint she insisted upon going on with the scene. Would Miss Hartje have been so brave?

There is no doubt in my mind that Miss Hartje and the other heiresses and debutantes who are going into the pictures think they are getting a thrill in doing the same things that regular extras do. That is funny.

To take your place with a crowd of extras after all preliminary arrangements have been made is one thing.

To make the preliminary arrangements yourself—as an unknown outsider—is another. To have the pleasure of going from studio to studio, agent to agent, day in and day out; to be told to come back repeatedly, only to find the director has changed his mind or that you are not the type after all! This is motion picture life without frills—practical, hard-boiled experience. There is not a living in it, even a meagre one, for those on the outside looking in.

A parting word to Miss Hartje, Miss Merriam and Miss Shotwell! If they feel inclined to bring a thermos and their own lunch they need feel no pangs, since half the movie people do this. Or they might have a hot dinner served from one of those cute stoves used in hotels for room service, feeding a few who kindly assist them in "making it." It usually is every dog for himself in studios. Another detail of importance: It is unsafe to allow jewels to run riot about a dressing room. Sometimes beneath jangling sequins there beats a heart of flint connected with light fingers, and harvests are reaped surreptitiously, as many can prove to their sorrow.

In conclusion I must say that I imagine these millionaires' daughters to be nice kids filled with illusions of the teens and early twenties. I believe they are looking through smoked glasses at a world which they imagine to be filled with hyacinths and daffodils.

Pleasures and Palaces

By Royal Brown

Not Every Department Store Clerk is Courted by a Millionaire—
There Are Motor Cars and Motor Cars—But—

Even in khaki overalls, the little woman who was not without masculine charm, in evening dress, as grand marshal of the annual ball and a benefit of the Plumbers' Union, Lenhard Double-Six, No. 673, he-well, Denise Luydon had reason to look like the kitten who has swallowed the canary. For the sake of Denny he even dared the depths of Marston's bargain basement where she was "At Home" from eight-thirty to five-thirty, every weekday.

"Oh, I'll say you've got him hooked!" acknowledged pert-lipped, dark-haired Number 833. "My Marty wouldn't come down here for a couple of cents, none, she added gratuitously, 'that you aren't throwing yourself away on him though. If I had your looks I'd marry a million. You could!'"

But Denny was beginning to suspect that she would rather have him than a million than any other man with. The only trouble with Jimmy as a lover was that he was red-headed and you never knew when he was going up in the air.

"And I," as Denny admitted to Number 833, "have some red in my hair myself."

Jimmy had just bought a second-hand driver with what is known as a speedster body. He explained that he had picked it up dirt cheap.

"It's not good enough for you, kid," he said huskily. "And neither am I. You ought to be traveling around in a Lenhard Double-Six."

The smile she flashed at him was worth traveling more miles to see than that old pseudo-speedster of Jimmy's had left in it.

"I'd look fine in a Lenhard Double-Six, wouldn't I?" she mocked. "Let's go!"

"Let's," agreed Jimmy, with renewed buoyancy.

This made it unanimous save for the car. Its misbehavior, coupled with the impertinence of the younger set ever in evidence in the neighborhood, had removed some of the sheen from the morning's Sunday in May. But the irrepressible right had not happened if, after they had swung into the Pews, a limousine had not rolled by.

"Is that a Lenhard Double-Six?" demanded Denny with interest.

Jimmy gave it an austere side glance. "Yep," he assented in a tone that should have warned her.

"I'd like," she murmured, "to ride in a car like that—if only just once!"

"I don't doubt it," commented Jimmy unpleasantly. Then as Denny looked at him wide-eyed with surprise he added, "Don't let me stop you!"

Denny's lovely eyes narrowed. "Do you mean you think I couldn't get the chance?" she demanded forthwith.

"Not at all!" he retorted, but she knew he meant her to believe just that.

"Have you any family?" persisted her inquisition. The glance that Denny gave Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm was a match for that which the latter gave her.

"No," she retorted coolly, "have you?"

Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm was eyeing the flushed loveliness that Denny presented her so unflinchingly.

"She'll do," she murmured. And then addressing Denny directly, "Please get your hat—I want to talk to you."

"Oh!" Denny protested. "I couldn't get off—"

"That will be all right," Marston intervened. "Do as Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm says."

"Don't be an ass, Marston," suggested Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm. Then, to Denny, "I'm not going to eat you, child. Don't be afraid!"

"Afraid! That was enough for Denny."

"You're on," said she. "I'll be ready in a jiffy!"

"Oh, yes," breathed Number 833, while Denny lowered her nose and adjusted her hat, "supposing she should adopt you?"

"If she does you can have my gum," retorted Denny coolly. "I parked it under the counter."

"She," Number 833 went on, "has a wonderful place at Exeter Pool, greenhouses and tennis courts and cows with class written all over them—"

"I hope it hasn't bars on the windows," commented Denny. She sounds as if she had escaped from some such place."

Nevertheless she went along with Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm.

"Wonder," that lady suggested abruptly, "what you are thinking about all this?"

"I am thinking," retorted Denny diplomatically, "that in about five minutes the old alarm clock will go off and I'll wake up."

Appreciation of that glinted briefly in Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm's eyes.

"Remember Cinderella, child," she retorted. "Perhaps I'm your fairy godmother. Anyhow the modern version of the coach and four awaits outside."

It was after all an American car, the best, perhaps, but at least three years old. The upholstery was luxurious if sedate, and the chauffeur and footman were smartly in somberly liveried. As Denny's quick glance took all this in, the older woman watched her.

"She'll do," she decided yet again.

"Then aloud," "I'm not crazy," she announced grimly. "Merely in my dotage. An old woman to be humored until she has the grace to pass on and leave her money to those better fitted to spend it. But—well, I'm not dead yet!"

"I'll say you're not," thought Denny.

"No," Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm went on, "I guess I've got enough of what my granddaughter calls pep to beat her at her own game. And that's what I propose to do with your assistance."

"Now," thought Denny, "for the strings."

"What," she demanded, "do I do?"

"Act natural—be yourself!" Denny gave her a direct glance.

"Say, what do you expect, that I'll eat with my knife? Am I to be a state road, up a poplar-lined drive to the house, Denny caught her breath. "Eggs? Queen?" she thought. "It looks like the Art Museum!"

"Now remember," Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm reminded her, "what I expect of you. You're Irish and you have Irish wit. I'm counting on the combination to carry you through."

In her eyes there was a certain humorous suggestion of a good joke shared that kindled Denny.

"Leave it to me," Denny promised blithely. "I'll be the limit. Say—shall I shake hands with the butler?"

The corners of Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm's mouth twitched. "Try it!" she said.

To the butler's horror Denny did. He withdrew his hand as if an adder had bitten it.

"Is Miss Mildred at home?" demanded Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm directly.

"No, ma'am thank you, ma'am. She's gone to Gloucester—"

"I didn't ask you where she had gone," snapped Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm. "Send Moulton to me."

"Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm," he informed Moulton, "nearly took my 'ead off when I told her Mildred had gone to Gloucester—"

"I heard her tell Mildred she would take a girl from the bargain basement and adopt her if she didn't give up that artist chap," Moulton said. "You don't mean to tell me though that she has done so?"

"If Mildred persists we'll 'ave in her place," Mrs. Moulton, a young woman who is utterly himpsible, he assured her.

The room in which Denny was established, with its soft tones of silver-gray contrasting with the vivid rose of the rug and the hangings, was exquisite enough to awe her.

"Is there anything more I can do for you, Miss?" the austere-eyed Moulton was demanding.

"You can stop looking as if you thought I had something contagious," Denny suggested coolly.

Moulton started. "Beg pardon, Miss?" she gasped incredulously.

"Oh, run along!" commanded Denny impatiently.

Moulton obeyed and Denny inspected her room as a kitten might inspect a new and strange garret. Then she turned to her bath, with its white tiled floor. It was the floor itself that staggered Denny. This was of marble set not on but into the floor, with steps leading down to it. From the tub she glanced up at the array of faucets.

"Well," she decided, "Jimmy would certainly feel at home. It looks like a plumber's paradise."

In surrendering her to Moulton Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm had announced that she herself was going to nap.

"My sole concession to age," she had explained. "Dinner will be at seven and your frocks will be here by six. Until then amuse yourself as you choose."

From her window Denny was seeing the grounds.

"Quite an improvement on McCarthy's backyard," she admitted.

Abruptly she turned from the window and, emerging into the long hall outside, found the marble staircase that led down to the reception hall.

can think of at this moment. Is there anything else, Miss?"

"No," Denny assured him. But as he bowed again, mischief lighted her eyes. "Unless you happen to have a piece of gum about you, I don't often indulge—but I'm desperate."

If Hawkins had, he swallowed it—anyway he swallowed something.

"Oh sorry, Miss—"

"Oh don't mind!" reassured Denny.

"You made a hit!" she said. "I'm going to run up and tell Granny all about it before I dress for dinner."

Denny went to her own room. Spread out upon the bed was a smart little orchid satin frock for that evening and all the things that went with it—and under it.

"A shooting star," he exclaimed. "Do you know what that's a sign of?"

"Sure," returned Denny. "It's a sign somebody's about to get their face slapped."

"I didn't expect you would have."

The nod she dismissed him with was worthy of a princess.

The bathhouse was closed. She surveyed the greenhouses and garage, stables and kennels.

"I wonder," she mused, "if they really have a good time with all this or just kid themselves into thinking they do?"

"I've been looking for you," came a blithe voice. "I've been looking for you."

Denny turned. A girl in a yellow sweater and sport hat, with linen skirt and low buckskin shoes, was coming toward her.

She was very blond and very pretty.

"Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm," she announced. "Granny just broke the news to me and I told her I'd look you up and take you over to the Country Club for tea."

"That rather floored her I think," Denny gave Mildred a quick, searching glance.

"Oh please come!" urged Mildred. "Granny would throw a fit if we should become friends. She's trying to scare me into submission to that awful will of hers by threatening to leave you all her money, you know. But I don't care if she does. I'm going to marry Jimmy anyway."

"Jimmy?" gasped Denny incredulously.

"Why—you've got a Jimmy too!" exclaimed Mildred delightedly. "How perfectly delicious. Come along and tell me all about him."

She linked her arm through Denny's and started back toward the roadster she had left parked in the drive.

"My Jimmy's an artist. He's the most awful dear—I adore him," she cooed. "What's your Jimmy?"

"A plumber!" said Denny.

"Really? Where does he work? Tell me all about him. And about yourself too!"

By the time they reached the Country Club, Mildred had the details.

"You mind if I tell them about the bargain basement?" she asked. "They'll be thrilled beyond words. Really!"

They were. They fairly besieged Denny with questions.

"That," announced one dark-haired little girl, "is what I call living. Really doing something—anything!"

Envy was in her eyes as she gazed at Denny.

"You change your mind quick enough," thought Denny.

Nevertheless she saw no reason to lessen the impression she had made. As they returned home, Mildred turned a glowing face toward her.

"You made a hit!" she said. "I'm going to run up and tell Granny all about it before I dress for dinner."

felt called upon to issue warning at bed time.

"He always rushes a girl that way," Mildred assured Denny. "Still, he's really a dear, although his mother has done her best to spoil him. She was furious when he disappeared with you—and so was Granny. You see she wants me to marry him."

"She does?"

Mildred nodded. He sort of had a crush on me when he came back from France—and well, I couldn't see him. That was enough to get Granny off. She's a thoroughly old woman—but I'm kind of fond of her. . . . My dear! What is happening in the bathroom?"

Denny looked about, startled. The bathroom door was just ajar, through which came feather wisps of steam.

"Milly," gasped Denny, "I left the water running!"

Milly sprang up. "What a lark!" she cried. "You must have turned the steam faucet by mistake. The room is full of it."

The expression on Denny's face, however, was not one of merriment.

"Don't worry," she advised. "We can turn it off."

They tried. But the bath was like a boiler.

"I almost reached it that time," coughed Denny. "Perhaps next time."

"Let's not bother any more," suggested Mildred. "I'll ring for Hawkins."

Hawkins appeared. "What do you want to shut off the steam faucet in the bathroom?" Mildred commanded.

Hawkins managed to enter the bathroom.

The faucet seems stuck," he announced and coughed. "Begrime your pardon, Miss. I'd better shut the steam off downstairs and have somebody in in the morning to fix the faucet."

"So," directed Mildred.

Then when Hawkins had retired, she turned to Denny.

"Don't worry—the plumbing's forever getting out of order," she said. "She rose. 'I'd better go to bed. Jimmy—my Jimmy, is painting a picture at Rockport and I promised to be on hand by ten to motor him over. Night—night!'"

They met again at breakfast, served in a bright little morning room. Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm as Mildred explained, never appeared before lunch.

"I'm commanded to appear before her at nine-thirty," she added. "I fear the worst."

"She added irrelevantly, 'that Stacy Ames will be around this morning to see you. He has a peach of a new roadster—a Lenhard Double-Six. Stacy is a dear!'"

Stacy is a dear! she went on to say, but he's a awful will-o-the-wisp but he's fallen hard for you. Trust another woman to see that. If you want a Lenhard Double-Six here's your chance."

Denny made no reply.

"I'm sorry to leave you to Granny for lunch," Mildred apologized as she rose, but I'll be back for afternoon tea, you survive. And by the way—where did you say your Jimmy worked?"

That surprised Denny, but she gave the desired information.

"Thank you," acknowledged Mildred. "I wondered if I remembered rightly."

And then, with commendable blitheness, she departed, leaving Denise to pass out on the terrace with nothing in particular to do—and all day to do it in.

"I'll say his for the bargain basement," Denny was thinking. "At least there's always something doing there."

Eventually she found herself down by the bathhouse and there she seated herself, waiting for Stacy Ames.

"He," she mused, "is just red-headed and stubborn enough to marry Katie Kennedy to spite me, I suppose. Well—here he is!"

When an hour later, she started slowly back toward the house, Stacy Ames suddenly appeared.

"I've got a new boat waiting," he announced joyously. "Will you take a ride with me?"

"I'll be ready in a jiff," she promised him.

Inside her room, however, she stopped short. The door to the bathroom stood open; on a rose-colored rug—invariably-reposed an open bag of plumber's tools. The plumber stood back to her, lean and lithe and just six feet tall as she knew. The problem in plumbing engrossed him deeply, he failed to hear Denny. And that gave her all the time she needed to recover herself—precisely a second.

"Hello!" said she coolly, "what are you doing here? Oh, it's me!" she assured him, meeting incredulously with all serenity, and asked sweetly, "How are you and Katie Kennedy getting along?"

"Fine," he retorted.

"I knew she was just the girl for you," she assured him. "And she's always been crazy about you, Jimmy."

Jimmy grinned. "I'm glad to hear that somebody is," he managed.

"Lots of girls are," Denny assured him. "I was sort of crazy about you myself once, you know."

"You needn't hammer that pipe so," she observed sweetly a moment later. "It's not a million all right, all right, and the sweetest disposition. I'm wazy about him already."

To prove which, presumably, she searched to her dressing table and produced a note that kept her with great vigor. And there Milly, bursting in, discovered her.

"I've been looking everywhere for you," she announced. "Granny wants to see you at once."

The sound of metal against metal, from the bathroom, gave her pause.

"Has the plumber come?" she demanded quickly. And as Denny nodded she rushed on breathlessly. "Did they send your Jimmy to express orders that I wanted him and no other. I had a time getting them to let him come so far, but—"

"He's in there," admitted Denny. "Introduce me to him," begged Milly.

"Introduce yourself," suggested Denny. "We're not exactly on speaking terms this morning—"

"I will," agreed Milly, but paused to remark: "You better not keep your waiting. I told her right out she was bluffing and she is perfectly furious."

Then she disappeared into the bathroom. Denny heard her blithe greeting to Jimmy. But she saw her dropping, and lifting her firm little chin very high, she left the room.

The chimneys in the steeple of St. Peter-by-the-Sea were sounding eleven, exactly, as she entered the intimate domain of her brother, a first-year graduate who, at that moment, looked more like a fire-breathing ogre.

"I hope," snapped Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm, "that you'll learn that one of my little peculiarities is that I prefer people to come at once when I send for them, and not at their convenience. Sit down, I have something to say to you."

"I prefer to stand," Denny retorted in a voice that matched Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm's. "That's one of my little peculiarities. I get used to it in the bargain basement, you know."

Now as to what followed after this unapologetic declaration is that Denny Winthrop-Chisholm nor Denny ever had much to say, but at the end of ten minutes Denny emerged and, walking down the marble staircase with her head held higher than ever, almost walked into Stacy Ames.

"Say!" he announced reproachfully, "I'd begun to think you'd given me the go-by."

"Oh!" she retorted, startled. "I—I'm sorry, but—"

Exactly five minutes later Jimmy gave the steam faucet a twist and threw the Stillson wrench into his bag.

"I'm sorry," Milly murmured helplessly. "I just thought that if I could get you two together you'd forgive and forget—"

He stopped and picked up his bag. "I'll be around," he promised, "whether she got down on her knees and begged me to. And there's that."

"I don't think you're very nice," flashed Milly.

"Neither does she," he retorted, "as that makes it quite unanimous, I suppose."

And thereupon he took his departure down the backstairs over which he had come.

The door by which he had entered gave into a latticed arseway. He had left his silver drawn up so that just the rear end showed beyond this. He lifted the cover up, hurled his bag at Rockport and I promised to be on hand by ten to motor him over. Night—night!"

They met again at breakfast, served in a bright little morning room. Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm as Mildred explained, never appeared before lunch.

"It might be a good one," remarked Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm thoughtfully.

"Yes—why not? I'd rather go back to the bargain basement." This Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm ignored.

"I don't know," said she, "but what I would do well to adopt you at that. You might amuse me and that—ever so greatly." "Is more than most people do."

And so they swept on to that far-famed millenaires colony that lies along the North Shore, and finally to Exeter Pool. They stopped there in the village before the specialty shops. "We'll get you outfitted now," Mrs. Winthrop-Chisholm said.

Soon they were on their way once more. The car, turned in from the

What Well Dressed Women Will Wear

Veils As Drapery Loom Into the Limelight Along With New Autumn Hats

If any woman thinks she can put the bulk of her dress money into gowns and economize on headgear, she is walking straight toward disaster. Knowing the value of a proper and becoming hat, there are fastidious women who take a morning with the milliner to choose that part of the costume before they even glance at frocks. They are keenly aware that no good gown rises above a bad hat.

It is foolish waste of money to be careless about hats. The American women in mass need reconstruction in that field of dress as they do in corsets. They need more knowledge, also, in what certain faces demand. Many a woman can make good in a foolish frock, utterly unsuited to her age, type, environment; she cannot overcome a foolish hat.

The French women have a good rule that no crown should be narrower than the cheekbones beneath it. A good rule. Would that more of us would abide by it. There would be less tiny helmets surmounting fat florid faces. The new top hat, the Prince of Wales, would not be worn by one who descends from the Nordic race by breadth of forehead and chin. The revived Dutch bonnet, which with the Prince of Wales topper is put forth to kill the cloche, would not be seen above a Roman nose and pointed chin.

It is possible to arrange the body to correspond with the frock at times; it is nearly impossible to arrange the face to fit a wrong hat.

Hats Continue Difficult

There are not many types of hats to browse among this season. Who unto women that it is so. But milliners are delighted at the chance to sell anything but the helmet and the turban, so all one has to do is to ask and to suggest. The variants from the cloche and the Oriental turban are the Cavalier hat, with sweeping brim and feather or scarf at side; the Dutch bonnet, with ear flaps that stand out from the temples or lie close to the neck; the exaggerated student's beret.

There is a helmet with a gracious and wider brim than the strictly fashionable shapes carry. It can be worn by the majority. It has not the topnotch style of the tiny brimmed hats, but if they are unsuitable, why sacrifice to them? The beret which, like Hailey's comet, comes around just so often, has the large crown needed by broad-faced women, and it is shaped down to the demands of finely cut faces, but it calls for jauntyness, for a care-free expression, an absence of wrinkles, a semblance of youth, even if youth is not there. Such limitations make it difficult to wear at random.

The sectional crown invented by the Paris milliner, Rose Recat, who put the helmet on the heads of near-collar of seal or ermine or chin-chilla. The milliners take the cue and attach scarfs to the hat to carry out some part of its decoration. It may be merely a suggestion of a muffler, an outline, made of brightly printed crepe or embroidered lace. There's a smart beret of black velvet with headband embroidered in gold, Chinese fashion, ending in two important tabs over one ear; from these tabs drops a scarf of the gold and black. It is thrown once about tween roof and pavement clothes, with success. Chosen to top a slim black velvet frock with a Chinese neckband of ermine, long tight sleeves edged with ermine, and a mutton-fat jade buckle at one hip, the ostrich feather that usually decorates the Cavalier hat is not becoming to any woman unless she has a delicate face. It does not go with a high color and a full face. The trimming of heavy silk floss, it assists in a costume that would give distinction to a common-place woman.

There are Cavalier hats that boast of veils which are not draped over the crown, but are gathered to the inside edge to fall like a masquerade over the nose and bang at back.

Black Rules as a Color

There has been no success to get away from black. Ten out of every twelve women wear it. Brown is good second. Red has had its day. Purple is the choice of a few Paris milliners, and may succeed, but it is not for youth. Grey felt helmets are worn sometimes, but only by accident, it would seem.

If one does not desire to depart from the conventional, the helmet should satisfy every need. This is the truthful way to sum up the situation. It remains the choice of the well-dressed woman. It dominates the scene when new hats are shown. Coming along with shingled hair, it gives the fashionable head the appearance of a point.

FASHION NOTES

The short fur jacket springs to life on cool days. It likes itself in ermine, tailless, of course. It is straight in line, its collar high and its cuffs conspicuous.

New black tailored suits and frocks are touched with ermine. A year ago Paris started the fashion for white fur on black velvet. The best evening wrap the was a reversible coat, also a cape the two. We will take up the fashion this season.

Summer ermine leaps into popularity. It is dust color and is used with black, beige, brown. American furriers have handled it ably with sealskin, and the combination may return under the influence of a wide spread fashion for both the belt and white ermine. Those who have pieces left from other days can turn them into collar and cuffs on tailored suits.

A curious new fashion is to put fur above an embroidered cut jacket, the cuff itself wide and strikingly embroidered. The fur band separated from it by several inches.

The most joyful tidings are that monkey fur is dropping into the shadows. Back with it should the rainbow-striped long coat as the jumper jacket covered with stitchery, fastened with a cash one side. The world could get along a year without these.

High-crowned hat of soft black felt entirely covered with a black lace veil showing figures faintly embroidered in bright gold. The veil extends over each ear in imitation of the Dutch car tabs which appear on the new French hats.

At left—Cavalier hat of brown panne velvet; beneath the sweeping brim is a veil of brown lace gathered at the inside edge of the brim and falling as a masque over the face and dipping in long streamers at back.

Neck muffler and beret of black velvet boldly embroidered in gold threads in Chinese design. This is worn with a black tailored suit of duvelyne, the scarf serving as a substitute for fur.

ly all women, has its merits, but it is sold in such large quantities at such small prices that one shies at it. There is a method of making a melon from a beehive by use of narrow ribbon that redeems many a crown that is too high and stiff, making it possible for a part of the majority instead of a segment of the minority.

The Veil Redeems the Helmet

The sudden appearance of the decorative veil attached to the helmet gladdened the eye. It gave one a leaping impulse to confine one's millinery to the cloche and be done with experiment and speculation in other shapes. It was the sop thrown out by the milliners to the unwary, although it may have been a shrewd trade trick to keep the universal Dec... hat in fashion. Goodness knows, the trade needn't make an effort in that direction. There should be a strong pull in the opposite direction.

The plain black felt helmet first felt the pressure of the splendid veil. It is gold and black lace thrown over the hat to hang to whatever length suggested, the shorter the better on some faces. The shop windows now carry such hats. They are a curious combination of simplicity and ornateness. There is something incongruous in throwing a gold embroidered Spanish lace veil over an English piece of felt intended to wear on the moors or shooting. Yet the fashion goes. It is attractive. It redeems the helmet if one wants it redeemed.

There is a visored helmet of black velvet which carries a promise with it, suggesting what will be done with the conventional shape before the snow comes. It has a high crown, of course, sloping back from the forehead, the front made gay with a massed wreath of vari-colored flowers running to a point beyond the ears. Over this wreath is a veil of black lace that shields the eyes in the Venetian fashion, then turns into streamers at back, one longer than the other. Both are banded with black velvet ribbon. There's a deal of coquetry in this helmet, and its difficult features have been overcome with artistry.

Veils as Neck Scarfs

The fashion of the hour is to wear a scarf about the bare neck. It is a part of the incoming fashion for high necks. The furriers put forward foxes and flat pieces of fur, also the small sable and the choker the neck if one wishes, or it is permitted to drop over the frock.

Another beret of black hatter's plush, a fabric of fashion this season, has its wide, high crown encircled by a narrow band of printed Indian crepe, ending in a bunch of fur tails over one ear and a long thin streamer that is weighted with the fur. The crepe, by the way, is in the reddish-brown tones with glimpses of yellow that Chanel of Paris likes. It has superseded the Egyptian designs, and is preferred to the Chinese by women who cannot stand large figuration. There is a wonderful day coat in it, built by Chanel for American trade. The body is slimly cut to wrap across the figure, there's a long cape at back gathered to a dull brown crepe yoke and a high fur collar. It's all kinds of a costume in one.

Glorifying the Felt Helmet

There's further work on the simple cloche to give one woman's head a different appearance from her neighbor's head in the use of Chinese lacquer ribbon run carelessly scalloped around the crown. This trick gives color for one thing; also, it breaks the height required of fashionable crowns. Whenever such ribbon decoration is used, it is shielded by a black face veil, as though the creator were rather ashamed of departing from the conventional ribbon band or shaving-brush ornament.

Veils with color are not considered. Gold embroidery is correct if a contrast to black is desired. The work ends there. When veils are put on metal turbans, silk net is used, usually without a design. On one tarnished silver turban of high dignity there is a brown veil used to dull the gleam and form a Russian arch crown. Any matron could wear this hat.

When Large Hats Are Worn

The attempt to reinstate the large hat starts with the Cavalier shape, which is sufficiently conspicuous in size to please those to whom the small hat is anathema. But it does not solve the problem; as it is rather grand in its manner and cannot be worn about town with a tweed suit and low-heeled shoes. It asks for something imposing in gowns. It is admirable for afternoon occasions, but its dashing effect has to be somewhat subdued for morning. Possibly, women will not attempt to make it serve in the street. There should be a line of demarcation be-which shows itself on several new shapes and for wigs at fancy dress parties, is preferred to the hip plumage of the African bird. That bunch of shaded red popples which is placed on tiny black velvet pill-box hats is borrowed for the Cavalier with good results. It holds the brim up at one side, or makes a colorful group on the side that tilts downward.

It is quite unusual, this flaming bunch of popples on a turban. It departs, widely, from the ribbon cockade or flat bow, the shaving brush, the downward falling coque feathers. But it takes a woman with daring in her face to wear it.

SYNOPSIS

Hope Ranger is abducted by a band of criminals. Her wealthy father, Lord Ranger, offers a reward of a hundred thousand dollars for the return of his daughter.

Ranger is friendly with an adventurer called Charlie. Charlie turns out to be a quiet hunter for Hope. The car is on a quiet hunt for Hope. The car is on a quiet hunt for Hope.

She stared blankly at the crumpled bulk of the overturned car, and then ran toward it, stifling a scream.

"Oh, where, where?" she cried, and stopped.

Kelsey lay almost at her feet, motionless, half under the tonneau.

The man caught him by the shoulders and dragged him out. Hope dropped.

She lifted his head and it fell limply against her arm. The blood was running down over his temple, clotting his hair.

She forgot everything, their plight, the probability that this stranger was sent to capture them, and cried out, imploring him.

"Oh, go! Go for a doctor at once!" He jumped to the saddle, caught his spark almost immediately, and the jerky crackle of his machine was soon lost in the distance.

Hope made a pad of her own handkerchief, and taking Kelsey's from his pocket folded a bandage of it and bound it about his forehead.

Then with his head on her lap, she waited, bending over him.

At last he stirred, there was a flutter of his lids, and he opened his eyes.

"What's happened?" he asked. "The car turned over, and you were unconscious."

"Oh, I'm all right. I was only shaken up a little."

His eyes veered to the ruin of the car. "Good heavens! They've got us sure. To think that it's all ended so."

"No!" vehemently. "Not if you can walk. The house is near. It's an old place that my father owns," she explained.

He spent every summer here when I was a child. It's empty now; the old caretaker died about six months ago."

He got up and took a staggering step or two.

"Lean on me," she said quickly. "I'll have to, I'm afraid."

A hedge loomed ahead of them. With some difficulty she guided him to a gap in it, and they slipped through. The house was only a short distance away.

"Wait!" she ran toward it, and dived to the rear, trying the windows as she went. He followed slowly.

"Here's a broken pane!" he called cautiously.

Joining her, he slipped his fingers through the jagged hole, unlocked the sash and pushed it up.

CHAPTER XIX

Without waiting for Kelsey's rather shaky assistance, Hope clambered through the window. Following more slowly, he closed and locked it.

reached out for some support and snatched a table.

She was untangling the bandage, and he felt her light, cool fingers on his forehead.

She moved swiftly away from him, and he heard the sound of running water across the room. "I'm going to the bathroom."

"HURRY! WE MUST HIDE NOW," SHE URGED to wet this handkerchief," she said, "here at the sink. This is the kitchen."

"Wait!" He got up and made his zig-zag way toward her. "Let me get my head under the faucet."

"Is the cut still bleeding?" she asked.

"No; the blood has clotted on it. It's only a scratch anyway. Ah!" He inhaled deeply and stood upright, brushing the water from his face.

"I'm all right now."

"But it's dangerous drawing water," he said. "They'll know we've been here."

"Let it run a little," she suggested. "It will look as if had been left so a long time."

"That's so," he said. "And now we've got to plan our next move. You know this place, the house and grounds. They'll be here soon, and they're bound to track us to the house. We've got to get out. Is there any way we can throw them off?"

"We stay right here. They won't find us. There was an irrepressible, mischievous bubble in her low laughter. Leave that to me. I know every inch of this place. Give me your matches."

"You mustn't strike a match here."

"Not here of course. But in the closet there. Quick—give them to me. Oh, don't be afraid. I shall close the door."

Here, as on their wild drive, who had taken the initiative and still protesting, he reluctantly gave her the box.

"Lean on me," she said quickly. "I'll have to, I'm afraid."

A hedge loomed ahead of them. With some difficulty she guided him to a gap in it, and they slipped through. The house was only a short distance away.

"Wait!" she ran toward it, and dived to the rear, trying the windows as she went. He followed slowly.

"Here's a broken pane!" he called cautiously.

Joining her, he slipped his fingers through the jagged hole, unlocked the sash and pushed it up.

CHAPTER XIX

Without waiting for Kelsey's rather shaky assistance, Hope clambered through the window. Following more slowly, he closed and locked it.

Sneaking on his feet, Kelsey

She laughed again; and he heard a door open and close. A moment and she came back.

"Good hunting," she said. "I went after provisions and found a box of crackers and some jam. My father came down here occasionally for the duck-shooting and I thought something might have been left."

"Now come with me," she slipped her hand in his, and led him through what seemed to be a dining-room into the hall, and then up a flight of stairs.

Kelsey stopped. "What's your idea?" he asked. "To hide in the attic? That won't do. They'll make for that the first thing."

"We're not going to the attic. Come on." She tugged at his sleeve. "Don't stand there and argue. I know what I'm doing."

He yielded the point, and followed her without further remonstrance into a long, low-ceiled chamber which he assumed to be directly above the dining room.

"Now you can rest for a moment," she said, guiding him into a chair. "Sit down. And, please, the matches again. Oh, anticipating his objection, 'there will be no light that can be seen from the outside.'"

His eyes accustomed to the darkness made out a great stone fireplace at one side of the room. She passed it, a light, gliding shadow among shadows, and stood before the wall beyond, in front of an old-fashioned cupboard about two feet above the floor. She stepped into it. There was a tiny spurt of light as she struck a match.

By it, he saw her kneeling figure close to the dark wood which lined the back of the closet. One finger outstretched, she was tapping the boards rapidly. Counting, was she?

The match went out. He heard her jump down, and she came toward him in an airy rush.

"Let me tell you," she forced herself to sober coherence. "This is an old, old house, built in the early days of the Colonies, when people had to be constantly on guard against Indians and provide ways of escape. Can you make out that big, old-time chimney, where the fireplace is? It runs up from the cellar and there is a fireplace in it. Like this the dining-room below, and another back of it in the kitchen which is in an ell or wing not quite so high as the main house."

"The chimney tapers gradually as it goes up, and so is narrower on this floor than on the one beneath. That leaves a space on either side of it up here, and the colonists utilized this as a hidden passage by which they could get to the rear of the house if the front was taken, or vice-versa. The entrance on this side is through that cupboard where you saw me. All you have to do is to slide back two of the boards, and by pressing around the chimney, you can get out through a similar opening into the attic of the kitchen wing. Once there, you must crawl across the rafters, drop through a gentle into a small room over the kitchen, and from this down a stairway to the woodshed outside. But it will not be necessary for us to do all that. We shall simply hide in the passageway until the search is over."

from a chair, and going back to the cupboard, stowed them in the apartment.

"Now I'll get some pillows to sit on. We'll be luxurious."

She gathered them up from a couch, and stuffed them also into the passageway.

A thought pricked the bubble of his exultation. "But surely this is known all over the neighborhood?"

"No," positively. "My father showed it to me when I was about twelve years old. I had never heard a whisper of it before; and I would have, if it had been gossip about the servants would have been full of it."

Thru the dead quiet of the night they heard the sound of a motor—more than one. They went to the window. Along the rough road they had come they saw headlights approaching, moons of orange thru the fog. There was a stop where their car had crashed.

"Hurry! We must hide now," she urged.

He stepped up into the cupboard, and crept into the passageway behind. She closed the cupboard door and slipped the concealing panel into place.

"Sit down on the pillows, and we shall make a sound," she ordered. Heavy thuds on a door below, reverberating thru the house. Then the tramp of feet and the slamming of other doors. Men were on the stairs now. Passing the chamber door, they went on up another flight to the attic.

They came down at last to begin their search of this floor, and now they were in the room. The cupboard doors were jerked open; threads of light streaked thru the cracks of the panel. Kelsey and Hope sat motionless, hardly daring to breathe, her hand clasped tight in his.

MUTT AND JEFF—JEFF WANTED SOMETHING FOR HIS TEN BUCKS PER DAY—

SHORT SHAVINGS

According to reliable reports it is understood that Germany has at last decided she didn't win the war.

"My wife always agrees with me," said the biggest liar in Buckland the other day.

"Farmers today want too many luxuries," remarked the bricklayer as he rode home from work in his 3,000 automobile.

"Family Entrance" signs will again become popular. Chief T. A. Lanker has asked that pool rooms and cigar stores be compelled to have entrances.

People respect Coolidge's silence because they have a notion that when he talks he will make a noise.—Cleveland Times-Commercial.

Information that there are plenty of servant girls in Germany will make many of our families wish they lived in that country.

"Bill" has become a popular name for babies in these days of high cost of most everything.

He was a Scotchman and was proud of the Macintosh clan, of which he was a member. He was having an argument with a taxicab driver.

"Do you know who I am?" he asked when he became tired of the argument. "I'm a Macintosh."

"I don't care if you are an umbrella," replied the driver. "I want my money."

On Ole Stage Coach Days

FLASHIN' ANDY JACKSON'S ELECTION IN TH' OLE STAGE COACH DAYS

Many o' th' habits an' customs o' th' early stage coach days are still in vogue regardless o' th' airplane, th' radio an' other means o' rapid transportation an' communication. Lots o' folks still consider "sixty days" cash. In th' ole days when a feller bought a pair o' boots an' some calico it really required about sixty days t' go t' town Saturday night t' pay fer them. Besides, most things wuz pad fer in skins or pelts, an' pelts wuz only available fer barterin' at certain frosty seasons. It took a feller a month t' call on his gal once a week. Weddin's wuz dated away ahead so a feller could git home after a proposal an' dress up an' git back. If th' weather wuz bad, snow too deep or somethin', th' weddin' wuz put off. Some times a weddin' wuz set fer a certain month instead of a certain day, an' sometimes they took place upon proposal, thereby savin' th' groom a long, lonely ride thro' th' Injun infested woods. A girl generally married th' feller closest t' her, an' a feller invariably married the handiest gal t' call on. Looks an' disposition cut no ice. Availability wuz th' watchword. An' we must confess a pretty good, rugged citizenship wuz th' result. A couple jest had t' stick together an' make th' best o' things. Ther wuz no stores fer th' girls t' work in, an' only skimpy cabin homes t' return to, an' th' husbands home an' settled down in ten days. (Copyright, 1923)

Modern permanent roofing for modern permanent buildings

YOU can estimate the endurance of a Carey Built-up Roof when you consider the fact that it is built up with three to five layers of Carey roofing felt and is cemented with Carey asphalt between the layers and coated on top.

Many steep roof buildings are roofed only with a single layer of asphalt ready roofing, without coating. They give a long period of service. Naturally then, a three-layer roof, built up with several layers of asphalt, makes a decidedly permanent roof for the most permanent buildings.

We can give you a built-up roof made of asbestos felts or one made of rag felts. The asbestos felts have superior acid resisting properties, while the rag felts are unusually tough and elastic. Let us discuss your roofing conditions and necessities and suggest the right type of roof for your particular kind of building.
